Ford's son isn't sure he wants dad to win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jack Ford has traveled the campaign trail on behalf of the President, but he isn't sure he wants his father to be elected to a full term. Life, he says, was better before the Ford family moved to 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

President Ford's 24-year-old son said, in an interview with Rolling Stone magazine, that campaigning is "an emotional drag" and that he looked forward to the campaign's close. When asked if, deep in his heart, he wanted his father to be elected, Ford replied:

"Deep in my heart? I don't even have to go that deep. No.

"It's an incredible paradox, you know. I get up in the morning and say to myself, 'God, does it really make sense to do this, even if I'm not convinced that I want him to be President?' "

Predict full recovery for Pat Nixon

LONG BEACH (AP) — Pat Nixon's doctor says the former First Lady will completely recover from her recent stroke but her husband and daughters will have to guard her from the depression that often afflicts stroke victims.

Dr. John Lungren, the Nixon family physician, said Monday that Mrs. Nixon should be out of the hospital within a week to 10 days and should fully recover from the partial paralysis brought on by last week's stroke.

Although the 64-year-old wife of former president Richard Nixon remains listed in serious condition, Lungren said slurring of her speech has diminished and that her blood pressure is under control.

"From the standpoint of function, said neurologist Dr. Stanley van den Noort, who was consulted by Lungren, "I believe she is going to have full recovery...That's our hope and belief."

He added, however, that most stroke victims "usually have some minor problems associated with fatigue."

Lungren said if the former First Lady regains full use of her limbs, "she will probably never have another stroke."

Nixon, his daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, and Julie's husband, David, visited Mrs. Nixon at the hospital twice Monday after she had been moved from the critical care unit to a general treatment area on another floor.

Lungren said the move means Mrs. Nixon will begin a "stepped up" exercise routine. She has been performing simple exercises and taking a few steps for the past several days.

Big Bear blaze under control

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Fire fighters are mopping up the last of a fire that razed 10 structures and burned 5,000 acres of bone-dry brush in the San Bernardino Mountains near Big Bear Lake, officials said.

Close to 1,000 men fought the wind-whipped blaze for four days before bringing it under control at 10 a.m. Monday.

A U.S. Forest Service spokesman said the fire destroyed eight summer cabins, a shed and a garage valued at $90,000. Four firemen received minor and moderate injuries.

Officials still are investigating the cause of the fire.

Another blaze also under investigation burned 10 acres of brush Monday on the south bank of the Pomona Freeway in the Industry area. Officials reported a minor injury to a fireman, but no damages to any structures.

Sharp hikes in property assessments

Pomona has lowest gain (6.4%), while L.V. highest (35%)

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Property values on the Los Angeles County side of the valley are going up an average of 16.52 per cent, Assessor Philip E. Watson announced today.

The increases in assessed valuation, released today, range from 6.41 per cent in Pomona to 35.18 per cent in La Verne, the fastest growing community in the area.

The average increase here is slightly higher than the 14.33 hike recorded for the county, and reflects a $56 million rise in the assessed valuation of property in Pomona, La Verne, San Dimas, Claremont and Walnut.

Assessed valuation is 25 per cent of the market value of the property, Watson explained. Claremont recorded an increase of 31.26 per cent, San Dimas showed 29.90 per cent and Walnut 14.95 per cent.

Over-all, assessed valuation in the five cities on the Los Angeles County side of the valley jumped from $341 million to $397 million. This does not include assessed valuation of property in unincorporated territories such as Diamond Bar and Rowland Heights.

The increase in the assessed valuation was more than anticipated by local officials. It meant additional revenue both for cities and school districts.

In Pomona, City Administrator Gerald Gonce said the budget had been based on a 1.5 per cent increase in assessed valuation. He said that though the finance department has not had a chance to refigure the additional income, it will mean considerably more money.

And in La Verne, where city officials already had an inkling that assessments would take a big jump, the budget had been worked out on a 20 per cent increase. City Treasurer Gerry Peck said the higher assessments will yield at least $20,000 more.

Watson said nearly half of the real estate in the county was reassessed this year, with the largest increases ascribed to those areas which showed the greatest demand in real estate and the largest growth.

Assessed valuation of Del Mar, a small seaside community, went up on average of 96 per cent. But there were areas whose values dropped. They included Duarte, whose value went down .38 per cent and Monrovia, with a drop of 2.82 per cent.

The county assessor said with the assessed valuation rising so steeply, the county will find itself with "many millions of additional dollars. The supervisors could drop the tax rate, if they want to."

While the average throughout the valley was held down by Pomona's light increase, there were homes in the Claremont area whose value jumped nearly 100 per cent, mostly to make up for past years.

Watson pointed out that even if the taxing agencies here do not call for additional levies, they will get large yields of additional income from the reassessments.

Besides the cities the county assessor also recomputed the value of property within local school districts. Bonita had the largest jump at 30.46 per cent; Claremont was close behind with 29.88 per cent, Walnut Valley followed with 12.26 per cent, and Pomona showed 6.90 per cent.

Watson's breakdown for the cities showed these increases:

Pomona — from $192,196,532 to $204,514,458; Claremont — from $54,331,765 to $71,313,698; La Verne — from $31,562,081 to $42,665,126; San Dimas — from $41,775,474 to $54,266,440; Walnut — from $21,129,029 to $24,286,838.

Assessed valuation of the local school district showed:

Pomona — from $220,325,727 to $235,522,623; Bonita — from $77,537,116 to $101,157,251; Claremont — from $71,340,052 to $92,654,118; and Walnut Valley — from $54,112,299 to $60,746,724.

The county assessor said the supervisors are scheduled to set the county tax rates next month.

SIDEWALKS OF NEW YORK — An elderly woman dances to music of a band participating in a "block party" in vicinity of Madison Square Garden. Festival was one of many as National Demo Convention opened.

Platform, VP selection spice convention

NEW YORK (AP) — While Democrats prepared today for a long convention session devoted primarily to laying out their platform, Jimmy Carter, their choice for president, worked in seclusion narrowing his search for a running mate.

After a morning meeting with New Jersey delegates, Carter's schedule was clear. Jody Powell, press secretary to the former Georgia governor, said Carter wanted to use the time for "some working and thinking" about a running mate.

Carter intimates said it was likely he would make his decision today but would not make it known until after the convention nominates him for president Wednesday night.

Most speculation about Carter's choice centered on Sens. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

Others under consideration were Sens. John H. Glenn Jr., of Ohio, Adlai E. Stevenson III of Illinois, Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Frank Church of Idaho.

As co-keynote speaker, Glenn shared the spotlight at Monday night's opening session of the convention.

But the star of the show was the other keynote speaker, Rep. Barbara Jordan of Texas. The black woman who became a national figure as a member of the House Judiciary Committee during its impeachment hearings two years ago was cheered for more than three minutes when she appeared on the podium.

For more than two hours, speakers had called for party unity, for a renewed sense of national purpose and had berated the policies of the Nixon and Ford administrations.

Delegates listened with less than total attention. They milled in the aisles, they chatted, they yawned, they ignored pleas for attention from the presiding officer.

But when Miss Jordan steped to the podium the hall came alive, delegates leaped from their seats to cheer and then sat attentive as she spoke with deep tones that echoed through the hall.

"We must restore our belief in ourselves," she told them. "We must address and master the future together.

"It can be done if we restore the belief that we share a common national endeavor, if we restore our sense of national community."

"We are a people in search of a national community," she said, in order "to fulfill our national purpose, to create and sustain a society in which all of us are equal."

In an interview on the NBC "Today" show, Mondale said he'd had no word from Carter or any one on his staff about the vice-presidential nomination.

Mondale said that during a discussion with Carter last week in Plains, Ga., "I told him I was not interested in a ceremonial office ... that I wanted to be heard." Mondale said Carter replied that he "wouldn't want a vice president of any other kind."

Miss Jordan's name had been included in an early list of potential running mates under consideration by Carter.

Two Pomonans among seven slain in Fullerton shootings

Two Pomona men were among the seven persons shot to death in the library of Cal State Fullerton by a 37-year-old janitor despondent over the breakup of his marriage.

The Pomona men slain were Paul Herzberg, 30, and Bruce Jacobson, 32.

The suspect in the Monday morning shooting, Edward Charles Allaway, is being described by authorities as a quiet, clean-cut loner distraught over the failure of his marriage to his 22-year-old wife, Bonnie.

Allaway surrendered himself to police shortly after the shooting. He was taken into custody at a nearby motel.

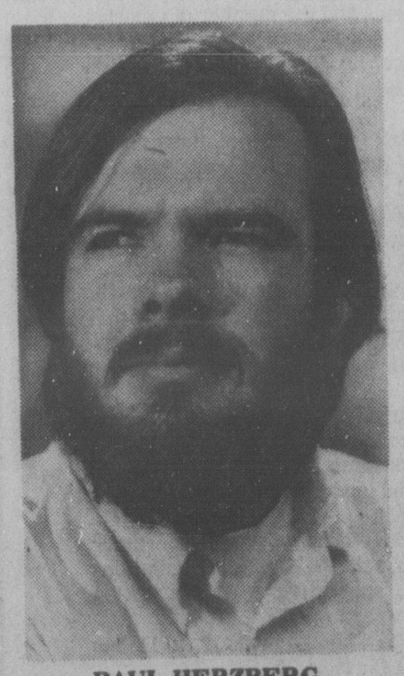
Herzberg had worked for Cal State Fullerton as a photographer since 1970. He prepared movies, slides and other photographic material for professors to use in classrooms.

He and his wife, Judy, 28, moved to Pomona from Brea in 1972.

She didn't learn of her husband's death until about four hours after the murders, when the president of the college, Donald Shields, reached her at work.

The Herzbergs have no children.

Herzberg's mother, Mrs. Bernice Davis of Orange, Va., was contacted about two hours later by friends and relatives while on her vacation with her husband in Vermont.



PAUL HERZBERG

Funeral arrangements at Todd's Memorial Chapel will await Mrs. Davis' arrival in Pomona.

Mr. and Mrs. Herzberg met while both were students at Cal State Fullerton.

Jacobson had been an employe of the university since 1966. He was an equipment technician, specializing in audio equipment in the media center.

The Orange County Coroner's Office listed Jacobson's address as 2020 Nichols St., Pomona.

His widow, Sondra, is also an employe of the university, working in the personnel department. They had no children.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

The shooting spree left bodies strewn throughout the basement of the library building. One policeman said later, "It was just too damn gruesome. It looked like Vietnam."

Authorities said Allaway, a custodian at the school, failed to report for his regular 6 a.m. shift, but turned up about 9 allegedly carrying a rifle.

"I'm gonna' get you SOBs for messing around with my wife," Allaway

Patty's life saved by 'a freak chance happening'—Emily

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Emily Harris has told jurors a story of life on the run with Patricia Hearst—a time when each day was lived "as if on the edge of a precipice" and death was around every corner.

Miss Hearst herself escaped by hours—and by sheer luck— an appointment with death, Mrs. Harris revealed.

The 29-year-old Mrs. Harris' unusually personal opening statement, delivered in the role of cocounsel, set the stage for prosecution testimony to begin today against Mrs. Harris and her husband, William, charged with kidnaping, assault and robbery along wtih Miss Hearst.

The 22-year-old newspaper heiress is to be tried separately after sentencing on her San Francisco bank robery conviction.

Miss Hearst's name arose frequently in Mrs. Harris' first memoir of their fugitive days.

She recalled the events of May 16, 1974:

"A freak chance happening" saved Miss Hearst's life, Mrs. Harris said—but for a twist of fate, the newspaper heiress would have been slain with five other Symbionese Liberation Army members in a fiery shootout May 17, 1974.

"Bill and I were going shopping," Mrs. Harris recalled.

Patricia "Mizmoon" Soltysik, an SLA soldier, was to have joined the outing. "But at the last minute, she stayed home and Patricia Hearst stated a desire to come with us. That chance decision cost Mizmoon her life and saved Patricia Hearst from death."

Miss Soltysik died on her 26th birthday in a battle with police which left only charred remains of her body and those of five other SLA "soldiers" at the hideout Miss Hearst had left the day before.

But Mrs. Harris, defending her husband and herself, said Miss Hearst fired two machine guns without orders.

"In the course of these events, Bill and I never fired a shot...We never harmed anyone," she said, recounting how Miss Hearst opened fire on Mel's Sporting Goods store to cover the Harris' escape from an alleged shoplifting.

"These events at Mel's were totally unexpected," she said, "and Patricia Hearst's resulting actions in firing of the automatic weapon were spontaneous...

"...Patricia Hearst was not there to protect Bill or me," Mrs. Harris said. "If anything, it was the reverse."

"We anticipated no problems," she said. "If we had, Patricia Hearst would have been the last person we would have wanted to involve....She was the least experienced of us all."

Miss Hearst has admitted that she fired the guns as "a reflex action" drilled into her by the Harrises. Miss Hearst, kidnaped by the SLA on Feb. 4, 1974, portrayed the Harrises as captors, not comrades. But Mrs. Harris depicted the heiress as a new convert to the SLA.

"She was not a revolutionary," Mrs. Harris said, "and she was not familiar with weapons....She could not be an heiress one day and a trained commando the next. Patricia Hearst was simply a young woman going through a process of change, learning about herself...and she had made the decision to go through this process in the company of people who considered themselves revolutionaries."

Mrs. Harris was calm and softspoken as she faced the jury. She wore blue jeans and a print blouse and read from a yellow legal pad at a lectern. She became slightly flustered when the prosecutor objected to her legal style and, during a recess, she wept outside the jury's view.

But she regained her composure quickly and concluded her remarks, urging jurors not to be swayed by politics.

"The evidence will show that Patricia Hearst, Bill and I were members of the SLA," she said. "...You will hear that Bill and I considered ourselves to be revolutionaries."

This, she said, is irrelevant. "Our political beliefs were only a backdrop."

Mrs. Harris indicated that the recounting of that fateful day in upcoming testimony would be painful to her.

"That short period of time made an indelible impression on Bill and myself and affected our lives," she said softly. "The events began with Bill and myself and Patricia Hearst going shopping...It ended with six of our friends lying dead in the ashes of a burned-out house on 54th street."

Mrs. Harris' remarks followed a statement of the bare facts of the case by Deputy Dist. Atty. Samuel Mayerson and an explanation of the legal defense by attorney Leonard Weinglass.

William Harris, acting as his own attorney, reserved his opening statement until the defense case begins.

Lockheed payoff scandal

Three more testify

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The last of three Lockheed figures subpoenaed to face American and Japanese prosecutors in connection with the giant aerospace firm's admitted multimillion-dollar payments in Japan has begun tesimony.

A. H. Elliott, a marketing executive involved in sales of the firm's TriStar airbuses during the time the payoffs occurred, strode through a crowd of Japanese reporters and photographers as he entered the federal courthouse here. Elliott and his attorney declined comment.

Elliott was preceded at the unusual deposition sessions by J. W. Clutter, former head of Lockheed's Far Eastern operations, who testified Friday, and by A. Carl Kotchian, former vice chairman and chief operating officer of the Burbank-based aerospace company.

It was Kotchian who admitted under questioning by Senate investigators earlier this year that the company had paid at least $12 million in Japan to promote the sale of its products. Tokyo authorities have arrested eight Japanese businessmen in connection with the payoffs scandal, which has threatened to topple the Liberal Democratic government of Prime Minister Takeo Miki.

Free immunizations given Wednesday

Immunizations against 10-day measles, rubella (German measles), polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough will be given free of charge at the Pomona Health Center, 750 S. Park Ave., Pomona, Wednesday from 5 to 7 p.m.

Today, it is possible to prevent and control many diseases which once threatened the lives of children and adults. But many children have not received this protection, according to Dr. Annabel J. Teberg, health officer.

Individuals are encouraged to get the needed boosters for polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough since most immunizations do not last for life.

Children must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. Those attending should provide their previous immunization records. These records will be reviewed to determine the immunizations needed by each individual.

To avoid last minute confusion, parents are urged to attend this clinic rather than to wait until the end of the summer to obtain the required immunization for fall school registration.

A high blood pressure testing clinic will be held at the same time. Special nutrition information will be available. Adults who are not under the care of a private physician or a member of a health care group are invited to attend the clinic.

Additional information about the evening clinics may be obtained by calling 623-6811, ext. 528.

Murders linked to smuggling of illegal aliens farm workers

STOCKTON (AP) — Smuggling of illegal alien farm workers is considered a common link in five recent northern San Joaquin Valley murders, a U.S Border Patrol agent says.

The homicides, all in Stanislaus and Merced counties, indicate increasing violence in the large-scale smuggling of Mexican illegals to work in California's fields, said Jim Kerr, resident agent in charge of the Border Patrol office here.

"Smuggling of aliens is a multimillion-dollar proposition here in the San Joaquin Valley, and it and the violence it breeds are going to get worse," Kerr warned in an interview.

Authorities listed these homicide cases that, although not necessarily directly connected with each other, have the common denominator of involving illegal alien smuggling:

—Ramiro Ramirez, 28, an illegal alien bearing phony identification papers, was gunned down at a Livingston bar on July 5. Charged with his murder was Gutierrez Serrano, 29, another alien. Police linked both to smuggling operations.

—The stabbed body of Luouis Cervantes Rodriguez, 63, of Avenal, was found in a Salida vineyard on July 1. Detectives say he may have been killed at a Crows Landing tavern during a misunderstanding with "coyotes," the nickname for those who smuggle aliens across the border for money.

—The beaten body of illegal alien Miguel Anaya, 36, was found at Newman on June 24. Authorities believe he was a "coyote."

—An illegal alien is being sought for investigation of murdering two men in western Stanislaus County.

The shooting of Ramirez was the first homicide in Livingston, a Merced County community of 3,900 residents, in more than a decade.

Food ads stir up controversy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Proposals that would ban the word "natural" from cereal boxes are being hotly debated at public hearings here.

The Federal Trade Commission is sponsoring the hearings, which began Monday and continue to July 30 and which one grocery representative called "a waste of taxpayers' money."

The FTC has proposed regulations to require that advertising for food and drink items — not including alcoholic beverages — must contain nutritional information about the product.

The proposed rules would prohibit advertising a food as natural or organic.

They would prohibit advertising that represents that a food "contains, provides, enhances or is a source of energy or food energy" unless it clearly discloses the energy is supplied by calories and the number of calories per serving.

And they would require products to meet certain criteria if they are advertised as low in calories, fat or cholesterol.

Paul Hyman, representing the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., said the proposed rules were "riddled with constitutional holes."

He said his group is vitally interested in providing consumers with truthful and meaningful nutritional information.

But he contended that what he called "bureaucratic overregulation" can only discourage voluntary nutrition advertising and that the FTC "is not qualified by scientific expertise to deal with the needs of consumers for nutrition information."

George M. Briggs, a nutrition professor at the University of California at Berkeley, said the regulations are necessary to ensure that consumers receive "truthful, accurate information about the food products they are urged to eat through advertising."

Barbara Erickson, a home economist and consumer advocate from Sacramento, said the proposed regulations "could be a very viable, supportive tool in nutrition education."

The hearings will move to Chicago Sept. 13, to Dallas Oct. 11 and Washington, D.C., Nov. 15.

Claremont commission reviews housing plans

Reviews of architectural and site plans for three housing developments in northeast Claremont are scheduled for the Claremont Architectural Commission Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall.

Continued from a previous meeting is a review of a condominium development for P.E. Howard Construction Co. at the northeast corner of Claremont and Foothill boulevards.

The commission has requested examples of stain and paint colors for exterior materials color-keyed to location of house, and a design of common parkways, fencing, landscaping, and pool structures.

The developer has submitted samples of stain and paint colors, but no design of common parkways and the other aspects.

The commission also will look at residential unit developments for Hughes Development Corp.'s tract of homes at the northwest corner of Mills Avenue and Base Line Road, and for John D. Lusk and Son's tract south of Miramar Avenue between Forbes and Bonnie Brae avenues.

The commission also will look at proposals to construct a duplex at 507 Yale Ave., to remodel the danson restaurant at 109 Yale Ave., and to remodel the facade of the building at the corner of First Street and Harvard Avenue.

Chino school board interviews candidates

The Chino school board will conduct public interviews of candidates for the seat vacated by Roy Ward at tonight's special meeting at 7.

Eight individuals have announced intentions of seeking the appointment. The newest candidates are the Rev. Robert Erickson, pastor of St. Margaret Mary Church; Dennis Weik, part owner of a Chino cabinet shop; Earl P. Owens, a consultant to Los Angeles County Schools; and Paul Peterson, a Cal Poly Pomona professor.

Others include Patrick Hooven, a teacher who lost in a tie breaker drawing for a third available seat in the March 1975 election; Robert Bertschinger, a mayoral candidate this year; Kenneth Main, a write-in council candidate last March; and Carol Dobrikin, a teacher.

Walnut's annexation proceedings to be discussed by council tonight

Looking two years ahead, the Walnut City Council will decide Wednesday night whether to start proceedings toward annexations to its open space and landscape maintenance district.

The district itself already affects 390 homeowners in the Grant, La Salana Corp. and Larwin Corp. tracts. It was approved June 23 over opposition from many residents in an audience of 100.

The initial district was two years in preparation, according to city officials, and annexations would require the same amount of time.

One of the tracts annexation would affect, developed by the La Solana Corp., already is completed. It consists of 124 units.

Others, being developed by Umark Corp. and Larwin Corp., are partially constructed or not yet constructed.

2 elderly women held as hostages killed in separate robberies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two hostages — both elderly women — were killed in separate robberies, one a bank hold-up involving a high-speed auto chase and the other a supermarket stick-up in which the bandit purportedly beat his victim to death, then killed himself.

One of the bank robbers also was killed Monday when he tried to shoot his way out of the arms of pursuing police, authorities said.

Police said four persons were hurt, one hostage died and one suspect was killed following the robbery of a Bank of America branch in the Wilshire District.

A separate robbery attempt at a Safeway store left two dead when an armed bandit bludgeoned an elderly South Pasadena woman to death and then turned his gun on himself, authorities said.

Police said two suspected robbers entered the bank at 11 a.m. and opened fire after a teller summoned police with a silent alarm. One customer was wounded by gunfire and another was struck by flying glass, police said. A policeman was slightly injured in the ensuing chase.

The robbers fled with two customers and a bank manager as hostages, firing a sawed-off shotgun and handgun at pursuing officers.

One of the hostage customers and the manager were shot after being dragged from the bank, but authorities said they did not know if police or the suspects fired the wounding shots.

Sgt. R. Carleton, of the Wilshire Division Robbery-Homicide squad, said "it's possible" the hostages were felled by police gunfire during the 10-mile-long chase.

One of the hostages, 78-yearold Osee Newfield died late Monday at USC-County Medical Center from a gunshot wound to the head.

One suspect — as yet unidentified — also died Monday, and another, Aaron Weaver, 24, Los Angeles, was in serious condition, police said. Weaver was booked for investigation of murder and armed robbery.

The woman bank manager was treated for a gunshot wound and released from Queen of Angels Hospital. The two customers hurt inside the bank were in fair condition.

Twenty police units joined in the chase, which ended when a flattened left front tire brought the speeding car to a halt, police said. One suspect was killed after he tried to flee as policemen reached him.

A bank bag containing the stolen money and a large quantity of .45-caliber ammunition allegedly was found in the car, police said.

In the other stick-up, police said two suspects waited inside a Safeway store in South Pasadena to rob armored truck drivers expected on a delivery.

Police arrested one of the suspects, later identified as William Wolf, 26, of Los Angeles, then conducted a house-to-house search before cornering the second suspect in the house of an elderly woman.

Officers said the suspect — later identified as Chuck Fairbanks, 26, of Los Angeles — refused to surrender. Police said they entered the house after hearing a shot and discovered Sarah Gardiner, 80, bound and beaten to death and Fairbanks dead from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Wolf was booked for investigation of murder and robbery. Police said they are looking for a third bandit who may have been an accomplice.

AIMING FOR A MILLION

Plank on abortion may stir convention debate

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrats are expected to give quick approval tonight to a platform pledging "an orderly beginning" to national health insurance and a guaranteed minimum income. The only ripple may be a convention floor debate over abortion.

A spokeswoman for the platform committee said some delegates may attempt to change the wording of the platform plank on abortion. The plank now opposes any attempt to amend the Constitution to overturn U.S. Supreme Court decisions upholding the legality of abortion.

"Many, many delegates are unhappy with that language, although I doubt it's a majority," the spokeswoman said.

Among delegates disapproving of the abortion plank are members of the Missouri contingent who said today they hoped to force a floor debate on the issue by getting the platform committee to endorse a minority report challenging the plank. That would take approval by a fourth of the platform committee.

If the report got to the convention floor for debate it would take a two-thirds majority to change the abortion plank, something platform committee members see as unlikely.

But passage of the whole platform, which also supports legislation to reduce unemployment to 3 per cent in four years, was expected to go smoothly.

Powder Puff Derby pilots injured when plane crashes

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — Two California women whose airplane ran out of gas and crashed into a backyard garden in the transcontinental Powder Puff Derby were listed in serious but stable condition by hospital officials.

A single-engine plane piloted by Mrs. Kay Huffman and Mrs. Lynn Greer, both of Riverside, Calif., apparently ran out of gasoline about 10 miles from Wood County Airport, their scheduled landing spot.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the aircraft was going into a strong headwind when it attempted to land on a golf driving range just outside of town Sunday.

Instead, the aircraft landed in a garden patch in the back yard of Mrs. Pauline Patterson. She said she was getting ready to hose down her patio when she heard something that "sounded like the roof was falling in or a building collapsing.

There was no explosion or fire, the FAA said, although there was "severe damage" to the aircraft. A reporter on the scene said a wing had apparently been clipped off on a tree prior to the crash.

Wood County Airport, some 10 miles north of here, was an alternate refueling stop for the 196 aircraft in the female-only race.

The fliers had been competing for a $10,000 first prize in what might be the final running of the 2,915-mile event. The sponsoring All-Woman Transcontinental Air Race Inc. of Dallas blame fuel and money shortages, crowded skies and a lack of cooperation from the FAA as reasons for the demise of the race.

Growers dump onions; market price down

RIVERSIDE (AP) — The pungent, nose-wrinkling aroma of onions may become familiar to residents of this Southern California community: Farmers are dumping them by the ton to rot on the ground.

Ken Foulke, an agricultural biologist said growers have dumped more than 200 tons of red and yellow onions, including bagged ones ready for the market, because of a glutted market.

"Many growers don't know if they will harvest them. They can't afford to," Foule said.

Onions prices have dropped to as low as 15 cents a pound in markets, down from the 30-cent prices that caused many housewives sharp pains in their budgets.

Foulke said the overabundance of onions — which sent the price spiraling down — stems from last year when growers reaped high profits on crops, encouraging larger plantings this year.

purportedly shouted. Seconds later, he allegedly opened fire. Within five minutes, the nine victims were cut down.

"It was a bloodbath," one observer said.

Others killed were identified as Karges 41, Santa Fe Springs, a custodian; Deborah Paulsen, 25, Anaheim, a custodian; Stephen Becker, 32, a library assistant; Seth Fessenden, 72, Fullerton, professor emeritus of speech communication, and Frank Teplansky, 51, Anaheim, an IMC graphic artist.

Listed in serious condition at St. Jude's Hospital, Fullerton, were Maynard Hoffman, 64, Fullerton, supervisor of custodial services, and Donald Keran, 55, Fullerton, a library employe.

Allaway was described by his supervisor as a soft-spoken, diligent worker.

"He was a quiet type," said Amol Navarro, a chief custodian who said he had known Allaway since he was hired 18 months ago.

"Whenever he went on a break, he would go alone. And he never seemed to eat lunch with anyone. He always seemed to want to be alone."

Navarro said Allaway "never cussed, had a good attendance record at work and was cleancut."

Navarro added, however, that Allaway had been troubled for the past few weeks over the separation from his esranged wife, Bonnie, 22.

"He had a problem," Navarro said. "He told me he had a family problem and the last two days he worked, he was awful hard to get along with."

Navarro said Allaway had tried to fight a co-worker last Friday, and he had to separate the two and give them different work assignments.

Bonnie Allaway is employed at the Hilton Inn in Fullerton. Following the shooting, her husband drove there from the campus and spoke with her before telephoning police to turn himself in.

A waitress at the hotel coffee shop said, "Bonnie said he called her early this morning and told her not to go to work. She said he told her it was his last day to live."

"I think they'd been married two or three years," said Mary Ferguson, Mrs. Allaway's supervisor at the motel, "and Bonnie had recently filed for divorce.

"She's a real quiet, sweet girl. He apparently didn't tell her anything about what went on at the school," Mrs. Ferguson said of his visit with his wife after the shooting.

"She didn't realize what had happened until the police arrived. Then she just backed up against a wall and started crying."

Four suspects arrested after Stater Bros. Market is robbed

Two armed men held several employes and customers of the Stater Bros. Market at 550 S. Garey Ave. at pistol-point late Monday afternoon while robbing the place of $1,100. POMONA police reported.

Officers a few minutes later arrested four suspects at Eighth Street and Hamilton Boulevard and booked them in connection with the robbery. All the money taken in the holdup was recovered, police said.

Employe Sheila Burnett, 22, said the men entered just before 5:30. They were wearing gloves and drew .38-caliber revolvers as they approached. One hit her on the back and announced that they were robbing the store.

The men took money from the cash registers while covering the customers and employes with their weapons. Then, as they fled out the door, one hit his hand against the door causing the revolver he carried to fire. Employe John Truehitt, 18, said the shot almost hit his foot.

The two ran across the parking lot and through an alley to a van parked nearby and were driven away. It was a description of the van which led to the arrest of the four suspects.

The suspects vehicle was stopped and its occupants forced to lie on the ground while police searched and handcuffed them. Inside the van officers reported finding two pistols and the loot.

Those arrested were James Wayne King, 25, Larry Darnell Taylor, 25, John Lee Hodge, 29, and Norma Jean Money, 28, all of Pomona.

Pair booked

A 21-year-old Montclair man and a juvenile seen climbing up a fire escape at the Pomona Valley Miniature Golf building at 1500 W. Seventh St. in UPALND Monday night were arrested by police on burglary charges.

Tony Ramirez, 21, of 9178 Camulos Ave., was booked in the West End Jail this morning for investigation of second degree burglary and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The juvenile was released to his parents.

Police said that Ramirez and the youth were seen on the fire escape by Officer Lonnie Poe. Poe and other officers called to the golf course ordered the two to come down and placed them under arrest.

Detectives said that Ramirez will be questioned by officers in connection with the burglary Sunday night or Monday morning of the miniature golf course that netted burglars about $8,000 in weekend receipts. Police said it was unlikely that the early burglary was committed by the same burglars, however.

In the Sunday night burglary, burglars pried off the steel grill of an office window. They entered the office and managed to find a safe key and opened the safe containing the $8,000.

Pastor Robbed

A masked bandit robbed a POMONA church pastor Monday morning, taking a small amount of cash, the victim's wrist watch and his car.

The victim, the Rev. D. M. Newton, 50, said he was in the office of the White Avenue Baptist Church at 675 S. White Ave. when there was a knock on the door. When he opened the door he was confronted by a man wearing a black ski mask and holding a small pistol.

The man forced the victim into the office, tied his hands behind his back and went through his pockets, taking his car keys before fleeing.

The robber was described as black, 22, 5 feet 10 and 180 pounds. He wore a blue, short-sleeved shirt blue jeans and gloves.

Teenager attacked

ONTARIO police are seeking four teen-agers in connection with a robbery and attack on a 15-year-old Upland boy Sunday morning.

The boy told officers four Latins struck up a conversation with him at the Thunderbird Bowling Lanes on Mountain Avenue at the San Bernardino Freeway at 3:07 a.m. Suddenly, the youths punched him to the ground, knocking him unconscious.

He woke up and found seven cents missing from his pockets.

Police were looking for the youths, who reportedly drove a lowered silver Chevrolet.

Boy arrested

POMONA police late Monday morning arrested a 14-year-old boy they said admitted making firebombs.

The youth was arrested after a witness said he saw a firebomb thrown into Reservoir Street just north of the Pomona Freeway. The arrest was made in the 2300 block of S. Marquette Street where officers reported finding several bottles containing gasoline and wicks in a backyard.

The suspect was booked on suspicion of possessing and manufacturing firebombs.

No landing site but lots of data on Mars

PASADENA (AP) — Though scientists haven't had much luck in finding a safe Martian landing site for Viking 1, they say they are learning a great deal about the mysterious planet as the spacecraft continues its orbital trek.

"We have spent an enormous amount of time trying to find a landing site," Dr. Gentry Lee, head of the project's science analysis team said Monday. "But the synthesis of Mars as a plent is starting to come together."

Much of the data has been used to try to gain an understanding of the rarified Martian atmosphere, likened by one scientist Monday to "a smoggy day in Pasadena."

In most of the recent photogaphs scrutinized by the landing team and released to the news media, the Martian surface could be seen quite clearly, making the atmosphere seem all but transparent.

"The Viking pictures that you've been seeing, pictures of the surface, show no haze or anything like that, so one would get the impression that the atmosphere is crystal clear," said Dr. Bill Baum of the orbiter imaging team.

"In fact, the Martian atmosphere is far from that. It's much like a smoggy day in Pasadena."

Baum explained that while trying to scrutinize the surface of Mars for possible landing hazards scientists had "stretched" Viking's photographs to clear away atmospheric features. When those features are left in, he said, Mars looks much like a polluted city on earth when viewed from a mountaintop.

"The sky, if you could be down on the surface of Mars and look out," said Baum, "would not look blue like it does on the earth. It would look sort of white or gray."

That is because there appears to be a scattering of fine particles in the Martian atmosphere, much thicker than those in the earth's atmosphere. The particles seem to be either ice clouds or dust storms kicked up by Martian surface winds.

The landing team, meanwhile, continued its search for a safe place to touch down, having twice postponed landings because of rugged terrain on the Martian surface.

Scientists were optimistic about a third potential landing site, called the "West-Northwest" site, and are hopeful that it lacks many of the rough edges and huge craters that caused them to delay the previous landings.

"We have identified what looks to be a promising elipse (landing site)," said mission director Tom Young.

Young said scientists would look at still another possible landing area Monday night, and possibly decide by Tuesday whether a landing at the West-Northwest site would be attempted.

If so, Young said, the Viking 1 lander would make its descent to the surface of Mars on July 20.

U.S. defends Israel raid in Uganda

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United States defended Israel's rescue of hijacked hostages from Uganda and called on the Security council Monday night to rally the members of the United Nations against hijacking and international terrorism.

Ambassador William W. Scranton reminded the 15-nation council that the Israeli raid on Uganda's Entebbe airport on July 4 never would have taken place if Palestinian and West German terrorists had not hijacked an Air France jetliner and taken it there with some 250 hostages.

In Brussels, Belgium, the heads of nine West European governments promised today to prosecute or to extradite anyone who takes hostages. They called for a worldwide agreement to do the same.

Straight Talk from UCB/Number 7

9 ways to go to the bank without going to the bank.

1. Bank by mail.

It's great. And unlike some banks and savings & loans, UCB pays postage both ways.

To arrange it, call the Customer Service Representative at your branch for a supply of postage-paid deposit envelopes.

2. Save automatically.

With our Automatic Savings Plan. Just decide how much you want deposited, and on what dates each month. The money is then transferred from your UCB checking to your UCB savings account. Automatically. At no extra charge.

If you already have both a UCB checking and savings account, phone our Customer Service Representative to start your Automatic Savings Plan. If not, come in to open them.

3. Write yourself a loan.

Yes, you can if you qualify for Balance Plus.®

All you do is write a check for more than you have in the bank. We transfer the money into your account from the unused part of your credit line. It's a loan to you – ready any time you need it. Like any time you spot a bargain.

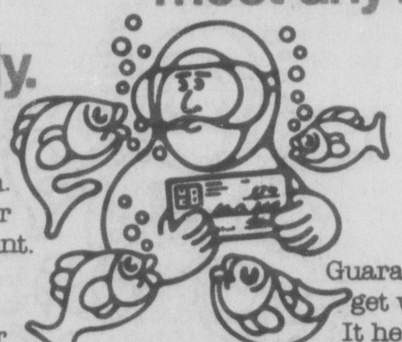
For more information about Balance Plus, call the Customer Service Representative at any branch for a brochure and application.

4. Carry less cash.

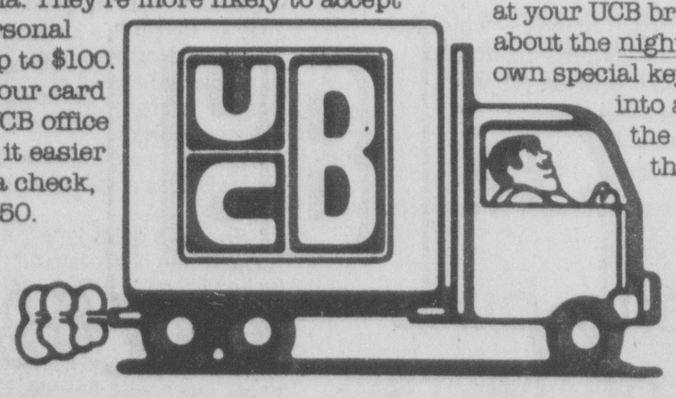
A UCB Master Charge® Card gives you credit with over a million merchants around the world.

To get an application, phone the Customer Service Representative at any UCB branch. No UCB account required.

5. Cash checks most anywhere.



With the Check Guarantee Card you can get with Balance Plus. It helps identify you to participating merchants throughout California. They're more likely to accept your personal check, up to $100. Or use your card at any UCB office to make it easier to cash a check, up to $150.



6. Move your money by phone.

Recently a customer called her UCB branch about a family emergency. Because of it, she had to catch the next jet to Boston. But to finance her trip, she'd have to transfer funds from her savings to her checking account. Could this be done by phone?

It can, in special situations. Because she called one of our officers during regular banking hours, we could make the transfer promptly. So our customer left for the airport without delay. With checkbook in hand.

7. Bank from your car.

Some of our branches have tellers perched at windows you drive up to. Some have teller windows that pedestrians can walk up to. And some have extended hours.

8. Bank when we're closed.

Many UCB branches have envelope drops. Just drop off your mail deposit, loan payment, or whatever, any old time.

If you have your own business and need to put a bundle of hard cash in the bank at night, see the Operations Manager at your UCB branch. He or she can tell you about the night depository. You have your own special key; your deposit pouch slides into a receiving safe that's inside the bank for processing the next day.

9. Deposit your pay automatically.

If your company's payroll is handled by UCB, you can arrange for your employer to deposit your pay for you.

You can have all of it automatically put into your checking account. Or some there, and some in your savings account. Or have some of it deposited, and some of it come to you as a check you can cash.

This is not only the easiest way to get your money to the bank; it's also the quickest. And at no extra cost. Ask your payroll accounting department about automatic deposits.

So if you don't find bank lobbies so exciting, or if it's difficult to get to your present bank when it's open, maybe we're the bank that belongs in your life.

THE POMONA RED CROSS BLOOD DONOR CENTER reports a sharp decline in donors due to the hot weather.

Yet the need for blood to be used for hospitalized patients continues during the summer, a Red Cross spokesman said.

During the past year, 350,000 transfusions were needed in the Los Angeles and Orange counties hospitals. This means that 1,400 donors are needed each working day.

The Pomona Donor Center, 420 N. Reservoir St., is open on Tuesdays from 2 to 6:30 p.m. and Wednesdays from 1 to 5:30 p.m. Appointments are requested and may be made by calling 629-7455.

The Statellite Donor Center at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, 1798 N. Garey Ave., is open to the public each Thursday from 12:30 to 5 p.m. Appointments may be made by calling 623-8715.

New students at Mt. SAN ANTONIO COLLEGE participated in orientation programs this month.

College Discovery Days have been scheduled for three sessions to give entering students an opportunity to get acquainted with college procedures, programs, purposes and places before classes begin Sept. 13.

Students will be introduced to the registration system, student government, financial aids, work-study programs, handicapped center, veterans' services and many other facets of campus life.

Discovery days are set for July 14 and 21, from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., and July 20 from 6 to 9:30 p.m.

Pomona Red Cross has new booklet

A new Red Cross booklet, "First Aid for Foreign Body Obstruction of the Airways," is available now, according to Dwight L. Hanawalt, director of safety programs for Pomona Red Cross Chapter.

The 22-page booklet provides instruction in the prevention, early recognition and emergency treatment of blocked air passages, usually caused by food particles — the so-called "cafe coronary."

Foreign body obstruction of the airway rates sixth as a cause of accidental death in the United States and accounts for approximately 2,900 deaths a year, according to the National Safety Council.

Hanawalt urges all interested residents to contact the Pomona Red Cross Chapter so that courses in this emergency care can be scheduled.

The new material will also be incorporated in future first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation courses, as well as presented as separate seminars to individuals or groups with special interest in the subject.

The booklet itself is designed primarily to be used by authorized Red Cross instructors as a guide for teaching this emergency care in existing Red Cross safety or nursing courses.

A companion poster with illustrations on emergency procedures to aid choking victims will also be available soon, said Hanawalt. The poster is ideal, Hanawalt said, for posting in restaurants and other public or private dining areas, so that restaurant employees and bystanders will be aware of the annual "cafe coronary" toll and will be better prepared to provide assistance to chokers.

Hanawalt emphasized, however, that it is not always easy for a bystander to differentiate between an airway blockage and a heart attack or stroke. For this reason, it is important that people enroll for Red Cross instruction so that they may make a swift judgment on whether to apply "manual abdominal thrusts" for choking, or some other emergency care, such as artificial respiration or cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), for heart attack victims.

Ugandan says he saw body of Dora Bloch

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A Ugandan who arrived in Nairobi said he had seen the halfburned body of 75-year-old Dora Bloch in a forest near Kampala, Uganda, the Daily Nation newspaper reported today. Mrs. Bloch was left behind when Israeli commandos rescued other air hostages in Kampala on July 4.

The Ugandan, who was not identified, was quoted as saying he saw Mrs. Bloch's body in the Namanve Forest. He said the forest is a dumping ground for people executed by the army of President Idi Amin.

A British government spokesman told the House of Commons in London on Monday there was "little doubt" that Mrs. Bloch had been killed.

Diplomatic efforts have been under way to determine her fate.

Mrs. Bloch, who held dual British and Israeli citizenship, was believed to have been hospitalized in Kampala when she became ill during the week she was held hostage. She was not at the airport when Israeli commandos stormed it and rescued more than 100 other hostages.

There was no way to determine the accuracy of the report by the Ugandan quoted in the Daily Nation, a leading Kenyan newspaper.

The newspaper quoted him as saying a number of Ugandan soldiers wounded in the Israeli raid were taken to the same hospital as Mrs. Bloch. They recognized her, he said, and dragged her away.

The Ugandan said he personally saw Mrs. Bloch's body and "all that remained unburnt was her right hand and leg," according to the Daily Nation. He said that when Ugandan army personnel discovered that civilians had recognized Mrs. Bloch's body it was immediately removed.

He was also quoted as saying that the bodies of three airport radar men were also seen in the forest.

City may pay fees

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city of Santa Ana may have to pay $125,000 in attorney fees to the Center for Law in the Public Interest in connection with an employment discrimination case.

A Los Angeles federal judge Monday ordered the city to make the interim payment until a suit about the city's hiring practices for police and fire personnel is settled. The center contends the practices discriminate against Mexican Americans.

It's not hard to 'nose' what culprits are

ALBANY (AP) — It took no great piece of gumshoe work for policemen to pick up the scent of this tiny town's latest public nuisance.

Skunks, those rank little critters with the lingering stench, have got the whole town's nose out of joint.

"This has been an unusually heavy year for skunks," said John Sawer, Albany animal control officer, noting that 10 skunks had been killed already. "Last year we had only seven all year."

He explained the reason for the situation:

"There's a lot more wildlife up on the hills this year for them to compete with, and the skunks, raccoons and oppossums are coming down into Albany looking for food by way of the creeks."

Albany's police force has been performing the skunk hunting duties. Police Chief James Simmons said capturing the skunks and then releasing them elsewhere is not practical because of the high volume of the unwelcome visitors.

Jackie Onassis

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Onassis threw the switch that sent a beam of light onto the statue of the god Mercury atop New York's Grand Central Terminal.

"My, it's beautiful," the former first lady said Monday night as the white beam played on the statue from the top of a building across the street.

It was the first time the four-story statue has been lighted at night since the famed terminal was completed in 1913 and French sculptor Jules Couton finished the piece.

"It's a present to all the people of New York," Mrs. Onassis said. "And to the conventioners who've come here to elect a president. Maybe they'll come home tonight and see it by surprise."

The Democratic National Convention began in New York City Monday evening.

The lighting was arranged by the Municipal Arts Society and paid for with $6,000 in donations from businesses.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the exiled Soviet author, thought he was headed for a U.S. jail when his wife was stopped for speeding in central Kansas, a highway patrolman says.

Highway patrolman Keith Denchfield said he stopped a van driven by Solzhenitsyn's wife on Interstate 70 in Trego County. Denchfield said Solzhenitsyn emerged from the van and came to her aid as she was struggling with the language. The officer said the Nobel prize winner also became confused.

Not understanding the American legal system, Solzhenitsyn had the impression that he and his wife were headed for jail, Denchfield said.

Denchfield wrote a ticket with a note on the back of it to Mrs. Solzhenitsyn's brother in Vermont explaining the violation. The ticket was paid by money order a few days later. The couple was traveling from California to Vermont when the ticket was issued last month.

Hannelore Schmidt

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Betty Ford may be able to influence her husband with "pillow talk," but Hannelore Schmidt says she finds it more convenient to talk to her husband during their evening chess game.

Mrs. Schmidt, 57, said her husband, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, gets ready for bed by reading. "That is the only opportunity for him to read books."

She was asked in an intervew about Betty Ford saying she had been able to occasionally change President Ford's attitude on certain issues with chats before they fell asleep.

When Schmidt wants her opinion on an issue, she said, he will ask her during their evening chess games. "Sometimes there are such important questions that my husband wants to speak with different persons about them," she said. "And I am one of those persons."

Sen. Hugh Scott

TOKYO (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., had a "friendly and frank conversation" with Chinese Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua on Monday, a Peking radio broadcast says.

The broadcast did not say what was discussed.

The official Hsinhua news agency, in a broadcast monitored here, said the Senate minority leader and his wife arrived in Peking on Saturday at the invitation of the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs.

Jack Ford

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jack Ford, who has actively campaigned for his father, says campaigning is an "emotional drain" and he is looking forward to the end of the campaign.

The 24-year-old son of President Ford has said several times before that he believes the Ford family lifestyle was better before Ford became president.

In an interview with Rolling Stone magazine, young Ford was asked whether he really wants his father to be re-elected.

"Deep in my heart? I don't even have to go that deep. No.

"It's an incredible paradox, you know," Ford continued. "I get up in the morning and say to myself, 'God, does it really make sense to do this, even if I'm not convinced that I want him to be President?'"

Clarence Kelley

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, suffering from a painful back ailment, has been admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital for a second round of treatments.

Kelley was in the hospital for about a week in June for tests and treatment of the back problem and for his annual physical examination.

The spokesman said Kelley, who was admitted to the hospital Friday, will undergo additional tests before being discharged this week.

Rosemary finds long road back

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Nostalgia time. Remember Rosemary Clooney? In the late '40s and through the '50s, there wasn't a girl singer around who could touch her. She could sing ballads and uptempo tunes and the Clooney voice was like spun gold.

I'm pleased to report that she's back. And in fine fettle and fine voice, too.

"I'm going back to work, seriously," Rosie says.

It's been a hard time for her. She had a breakdown in '68, she says, and things were rough.

"I tried to sing again after that," she says, "but I just wasn't very good. But now I think I'm singing as well as I ever have and, more important, I'm enjoying it again."

She's about to leave for London, where she and Bing Crosby will share the Palladium stage. She says she likes to work in the summer, because that's when her five children are with their father, Jose Ferrer. She and Ferrer have long been divorced.

"I'm still singing the old songs," Rosie says. "I start out with 'Come On-a My House,' to get that out of the way, otherwise they'd be calling for it all through my act. But I like some of the new songs, too. I love Paul Simon's songs, and I do some of them."

She isn't red-hot about her career now. She's had success — as much as anybody — so she isn't hungry for that. Now she's working for the fun of it.

"I'm doing some talk shows, some guest shots, some personal appearances," she says. "I don't want to work too much, just in the summer."

Whenever she wants to work, I want to listen.

* * *

Barbara Cartland is the world's best-selling author of romantic novels — but not one of her books has been made into a movie.

"I'm too expensive," says the English author. "All of my stories have lavish settings — gold chairs and tables and many characters. I'm just too late for movies. Twenty years ago, they would have loved me."

ROSEMARY CLOONEY

It really doesn't matter. Her books sell so well and so often she doesn't need the movies. There are now 194 Barbara Cartland novels out, and they keep spewing forth, like from some gigantic writing volcano.

She turns them out, at the rate of one in seven days. That's the writing; she says the research takes longer, because each one is rooted in historical fact. She says she'll read 30 books about a period, then sit down to write.

"Sit down" is not exactly accurate. Her method of writing is unique.

"I recline on a couch," she says, "cuddling my white Pekingnese, and I tell my story to my secretary, who sits behind me, where the sight of her wont' disturb me."

She attributes her phenomenal sales to the increase in pornography in books and on film. A side effect of that increase, she says, is that her sales are increasing.

"My books are all pure and chaste," she says. "My characters all believe in purity and chastity and all those lovely things."

Minces no words

Hillman knows bands

By STEPHEN FORD

Chris Hillman minces few words, uses no euphemisms when describing fellow musicians.

Now fronting his own band and with a solo album "Slippin' Away" (Asylum, 7E-1062) recently released, the 32-year-old Hillman sees small point in perpetuating the facade many bands maintain.

A charter member of the Byrds, Flying Burrito Brothers, Manassas and the very shortlived Souther, Hillman and Furay band, Hillman stands well-qualified to vent criticism.

"I know exactly why and how bands break up after a great relationship over a few years," he says, exasperation in his voice. "But I have no idea how to prevent it. Any band together more than few years always finds members getting on each other's nerves, especially on the road.

"I marvel at bands like the Beach Boys or The Four Seasons," he says. "I don't know how they stay together that long."

His all-American features soften and he pauses, "I guess it's a matter of maintaining that respect for each other as professionals. You know you all have a common goal when you get up on that stage every night. But virtually living with the band tears you down. Most country rock bands depend on a lot of touring and that's why their break-up rate is among the highest."

Looking back at his own experiences, he adds that it's not exclusively personal conflicts that ruin a band: "An artist's creativity can become exhausted," Hillman states. "It was personal hassles that broke up the Byrds and probably the Burritos, but Manassas was just a good thing that ran its course and came to an unproductive end. Steven Stills got together a fine band with a lot of ideas and we turned out a great first album. We weren't ready for a second, did it anyway and everyone decided after that it was time to split up."

Stills headed back to Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young and Hillman set his sights on a super trio with highly-praised country rock singer John David Souther and Richie Furay of the legendary Buffalo Springfield.

With the world anxiously awaiting a masterpiece on the level of other super unions like CSN&Y or Poco, Souther, Hillman and Furay's debut was a dud.

"I wasn't too surprised when the album did get a poor reception," Hillman confides, "That was the strangest band I'd ever been in. We didn't have any fights but doing an album was like the three of us all going off in separate corners and each doing a few songs without anybody else contributing. What we ended up with were three mini-solo albums. Worse yet, we all saved the best songs we'd written for our own solo albums.

"Then," he continues, "We wanted to go on the road and Richie was having a personal problem. He didn't want to travel and just after that, we decided we had all better go our own ways."

He is equally apologetic about the Byrds' disappointing reunion Lp released last year. "That was a disaster," Hillman declares, "because none of us was ready to do an entire album together.

"But it wasn't because we couldn't compromise with each other," he quickly points out. "Hell, we compromised ourselves right into blandness. We hand't been together for five years and everyone was afraid of stepping on the other's toes, so nobody did anything worthwhile for fear of causing a scene."

Hillman believes the only way the Byrds can atone themselves for the reunion debacle "is to get together again, maybe next year, and do an album right, take more time. More care."

For one so obviously immersed in the country sound, Hillman's solo Lp mysteriously evades the Country rock influence everyone expected from him.

"I deliberately stayed away from an all-country sound," he explains. "I still plan to do one but I don't think I'm ready for it just yet. I still can't believe I went ahead and did 'Slippin' Away'."

He recalls how he and another country rock pioneer, the late Gram Parsons, sat around in Los Angeles eight years ago churning out Country tunes non-stop.

"And now people are making all that money doing Country rock," he says, eyes widening. "Gram and I couldn't make peanuts doing that then. I told my band a few nights ago that we should go back to playing only Country, especially when I see the New Riders of the Purple Sage on television wearing rhinestone suits and making all kinds of money and THEY'RE LOUSY!"

He shakes his head, voice lowered, "S'true. They can't sing, no harmony. Gram should hear this stuff now."

Taylor due at Forum

Johnnie Taylor, due for a Saturday performance at the Forum in Inglewood, started his career as a gospel singer.

"I grew up with gospel music," explained Taylor, a West Memphis, Ark. native. "My first public appearance came at age 5 when my aunt enlisted me in her church choir. I was enchanted by the music and loved the appaluse. It was the ham in me and I decided that very day to become an entertainer."

Taylor soon became a hit in West Memphis gospel circles. He was bitten by the blues bug after seeing blues artist Lil Green in the old Beale Street Theater in Memphis.

At 14, Taylor moved to Chicago and joined the Highway C.Q's, a top gospel group. There he met the late Sam Cooke, who was with The Soul Stirrers gospel group at the time. When Cooke entered the pop field, Taylor replaced him in the Stirrers. Later, when Cooke formed his own company SAR Records, he signed Taylor as his first artist.

Taylor's current album "Eargasm" includes the single hit "Disco Lady." Other albums include "Taylored in Silk."

On the program will be The Sylvers, a brothers-and-sisters act; the Brass Construction Band direct from the New York disco scene; and Dorothy Moore, rhythm and blues singer.

GOLDEN TRUMPET — Harry James puts his all into performances at Disneyland's Plaza Gardens from 8:15 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. nightly through Saturday. Also appearing at the Anaheim amusement park is recording star Ray Stevens, who performs on a stage near the It's a Small World attraction at 8:15 and 11:15 p.m.

School board okays publication budget

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

A $37 million 1976-77 publication budget, reflecting a 10 cent cut in the general purpose tax rate, was approved by a 4-0 vote of Pomona school board at a special meeting Monday night.

Approval grew from a five-part motion by board member C. Allen Braswell, and followed a discussion during which member Gene Whitlock warned that "passing the publication budget may be walking into a trap."

Whitlock stopped action on the publication budget last week when he requested 1974-75 and 1975-76 expenditures in order to make "realistic comparisons" with 1976-77 budgeting.

Board members received "updated accounting" for expenditures of 1974-75 on July 6. They still are waiting for an accounting of 1975-76 expenditures.

Braswell's motion covered this ground. His proposal, which won Whitlock's support, was:

—That the board approve the publication budget as presented, recognizing that it is not a final budget for which the deadline is Aug. 3.

—That it reaffirm the general purpose tax rate of $4.6029, down 10 cents from the 1975-76 rate of $4.7029 per $100 of assessed evaluation.

—That it establish 1975-76 actual expenditures (which Braswell said he felt would be closer to $30 million) as the base budget for 1976-77.

—That any proposals for increases or decreases from that base budget be related to board-approved program changes reflecting policy priorities, grade and step pay increases, salary adjustments or inflationary trends.

—And that these final expenditure figures with proposed changes and cost estimates be presented to the board at a special meeting July 27 at 6 p.m. in the Education Center board room during a line-item budget presentation.

Board President Mary Montes instructed Lynn Rountree, assistant superintendent of business services, to prepare, if possible, one printout sheet showing 1974-75 budget and expenditures, 1975-76 budget and expenditures and 1976-77 budget, "so we don't have various documents to compare."

Rountree said he would have to check with the Claremont computer center to see if that could be done.

"It is very difficult to make an analysis. We don't know how the money has been spent. We have critical questions in many areas," said Mrs. Montes.

"I have dozens of questions I could not get answered," said member Don Donnelly, "particularly in the area of adult education where there are tremendous increases in administrative costs."

"We are extremely late in coming to this point," said Braswell. "This is where we should have started in March."

However, of all the board members present Whitlock was most vocal in expressing his dissatisfaction. (Board member Ken Pine is at Pomona Valley Community Hospital recuperating from surgery performed July 8.)

"I have studied these 1974-75 updated costs I received July 6, which was a handwritten document, and I have picked items which I want to bring to the public. They should know what's going on," Whitlock said.

In what he termed "shocking" errors in budgeting, Whitlock read "$36,500 budgeted for transportation for the handicapped while $382 was the true cost.

"Five thousand dollars budgeted for equipment for adult education and $2,500 was the actual cost; $7,000 budgeted for gasoline and the true cost was $14,000, twice as much; $25,000 budgeted for print shop supplies and $49,000 actually was spent; and $103,860 budgeted for librarians and the true cost was $68,000."

Actually, Whitlock continued, "we don't know what's going on in finances in this district and we cannot know without a line-by-line accounting of 1974-75 and 1975-76 expenditures."

The auditor knew on Dec. 23, 1975 that the true cost of librarians for that year was $68,000 "yet we on the board were not informed of this until Friday," said Whitlock. "I don't think we know where our money is."

The board scheduled a study session for Aug. 10 to review with new schools Supt. Charles C. Carpenter policy on academic excellence and discipline, recommendations made by the State Management Team and set priorities for the coming year.

"One of my concerns is that the board become part of the management team," said Mrs. Montes.

In a unanimous vote, the board approved spending $2,107.28 for personnel to retest 186 pupils currently categorized as educably mentally retarded in an effort to meet requirements for eligibility for a 1976-77 Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) $1.8 million grant.

Pomona council approves merging of departments

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

An administrative study combining the departments of public works, and street and sewer maintenance was approved by the Pomona City Council Monday night, eliminating about 10 jobs.

The consolidation of departments is expected to save the city $160,000. Approximately half the jobs to be eliminated are in the middle-management level of foremen.

No layoff of city workers is expected, however, since the council has directed that employes be shifted into other city positions that are currently vacant.

Councilman Adrain Wright cast the only vote against the consolidation, although he offered no explanation for his vote.

The consolidation was approved indirectly last week by the council when the city budget was adopted incorporating the savings projected by the reduction in the city work force.

The $20.4 million budget was given second reading approval by the council Monday, again passing by a 3-2 vote. There was no new discussion of the budget although Wright said he was concerned over the inclusion of $750,000 of federal revenue sharing funds in the police department's budget.

The budget includes a 39-cent property tax rate increase, from $2.495 to $2885 per $100 of assessed valuation, although the rate will not be officially set until the tax assessment roles are received in early August.

Wright and Mayor Ray Lepire again cast votes against adopting the budget.

In other business, the council approved an extension of the existing contract between the city and miscellaneous employes' union, which expired July 1.

The extension provides that employes will continue to receive all current benefits pending the outcome of advisory arbitration, scheduled for Friday.

The salary talks have been stalled for weeks with the city offering the employes, which includes most city workers other than policemen, firemen, and management personnel, no wage increase this year.

The extension also carried a no-strike clause agreed to by representatives of the Service Employes International Union, Local 660, AFL-CIO.

The conclusion of the meeting was enlivened when an otherwise innocuous action appointing Councilmember Georgia Grove as delegate to a rapid transit committee infuriated Wright.

Wright, who was the delegate to the committee when it last met over two years ago, charged that "the mayor has tried to eliminate me from everything."

"Either show your faith in me or vote for someone else," said Wright.

The vote to name Mrs. Grove as delegate was 3-1, with Mrs. Grove abstaining.

The committee has to do with the selection of a representative from the San Gabriel-Pomona Valley corridor of the Southern California Rapid Transit District. Each city in the valleys will be represented.

Claremont board offers 3 per cent pay hike

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont school board has offered salary increases of approximately three per cent to teachers and classified employes for the next school year.

For the teachers, the board also offered two per cent increases in step increments and .07 per cent increase in fringe benefits, bringing the total offer to 5.7 per cent.

For classified, in addition to the three per cent on the salary schedule, the board offered 2.5 per cent on step increments and 1.3 per cent on fringe benefits, bringing that total offer to 6.8 per cent.

Those figures were reflected Monday night in the Claremont Unified School District's initial responses to proposals by the Claremont Faculty Association for the teachers, and by Chapter 200 of the California School Employes Association for classified employes.

The teachers had asked for a 7.8 per-cent hike for a beginning teacher from $9276 to $10,000 a year.

The classified employes had asked for a pay increase of about 14 per cent, 1½ times the rise in the cost of living from Jan. 1, 1975 to Jan. 1, 1976.

The school board rejected for both the teachers and the classified employes proposed fully-paid dental plans and fully-paid vision plans for all employes and their dependents.

The board offered $350 bonus annually for a teacher who has an earned doctorate. The teachers had asked for an annual bonus of $350 for a master's degree, and $700 bonus for an earned doctorate, with or without a masters degree.

The board has offered that pupil-teacher ratios for regular programs on a district-wide basis be maintained at 28.5 to 1 for elementary school and 23.75 to 1 for intermediate or high school.

The teachers had asked that the maximum number of students assigned to each class be no mre than 25 in elementary or intermediate school except for physical education or remedial reading.

The teachers had proposed that class loads and assignments at the secondary level be determined by staff in each curricular area, subject only to limitations imposed by "an acceptable teacher-equivalent ratio."

The teachers had asked that no high school teacher be responsible for more than 150 students per semester, except in physical education, which was set at 250 per semester.

In the district proposals to both groups, under "concerted activities," it says: "It is agreed and understood that there will be no strike, work stoppage, slow-down, picketing, or refusal or failure to perform job functions and responsibilities fully and faithfully."

The district also calls upon the groups "in good faith" to take all necessary steps to cause those members to stop such actions if they should strike or picket.

The district feels it will suffer damage in the event of a strike or slow-down, and would call upon an association to pay "as fixed and liquidated damages" $1,000 a day.

The health and welfare benefit allocation of $763.70 a year offered to both teachers and classified employes includes the increased cost of the insurance to the district.

Rejected for classified employes was an increase in vacation time and an increase in paid holidays from 13 to 15.

The board now will give the residents an opportunity at a public hearing to comment on either of the board's responses.

He and his wife, Judy, have two children, Sven, 12, and Krista, 9. The family resides in Placentia.

Claremont police car crashes into autos

A Claremont police car responding to a reported armed robbery collided with two other vehicles Monday on Indian Hill Boulevard and San Jose Avenue.

Officer Lionel Henry Brown, 26, reported he was driving east on San Jose Avenue about 50 miles an hour with the vehicle's red light and siren turned on and lost control of his car as he turned right onto Indian Hill Boulevard.

The police car crossed a center divider and hit the two cars which were stopped for a traffic signal, said highway patrolmen who investigated the accident.

The vehicles were driven by Philip Arthur Leone, 580 Charleston Drive, Claremont and Yvonne Francis Sansone, 404 M. Carmel Drive, Claremont.

The Claremont woman was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for minor cuts caused by broken glass. She was later released.

Investigators reported the Claremont officer was responding to an alarm at the Greyhound Bus depot on Indian Hill Boulevard. The report was later found to be a false alarm, they added.

Little girl hit by auto

A 9-year-old child was injured slightly Monday evening when she was hit by a car at Barbara Lane and JoAnn Way in Pomona.

The child, LaChon Page, 966 Barbara Lane, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was treated and released.

The driver, David F. McCullough, 31, Pomona, said the child ran in front of his car but he managed almost to stop before hitting her.

Escondido annex gets green light

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Local Agency Formation Commission has authorized Escondido to annex 1,650 acres, subject to approval of voters in November.

Ontario man dies from electrocution

A 29-year-old Ontario man was electrocuted early Monday morning when a heavy duty crane unloading a grain hopper tilted and swayed into a high tension power line at the Omline Dairy, 14739 Archibald Ave., in Ontario.

Thomas Edward Richardson died about two hours after the 9:50 a.m. mishap.

According to West End sheriff's deputies and the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office, Richardson was assisting his employer in delivering and unloading a 25-ton capacity grain hopper. A heavy duty crane was used to remove the hopper from a flatbed trailer. The hopper tilted to one side, causing the crane holding it to sway into the high tension wires overhead.

Richardson, holding a metal leg of the hopper, was knocked unconscious and stopped breathing a split second after the mishap. Chino Fire Department paramedics managed to get Richardson breathing again and rushed him to Chino General Hospital.

Legislative giveaway

Recently this newspaper spoke against a proposal by the State Industrial Welfare Commission to adopt a new minimum wage that would cause undue hardship and loss of employment opportunities in many segments of industry in California. More needs to be said on this topic.

The proposed new minimum wage of $2.50 an hour is an increase of 20 cents per hour for most employers, over the existing minimum federal wage of $2.30. Because of its tendency to inflate all wage levels, it will have a substantial impact upon the ability of all California manufacturers to compete with those in other states and other countries.

Other proposals by the commission could be equally costly and damaging to the state's economy. A simple majority of the commission, only three members, can adopt proposals costing as much as several billion dollars. It does raise a serious question of whether an appointive body, not responsive to the electorate, should have such sweeping powers.

By contrast, it took a minimum of 63 individuals, 41 assemblymen, 21 senators, and the governor to adopt the much-publicized $700 million increase in unemployment taxes last year.

Legislation which was passed in 1973 gave the commission jurisdiction over men in addition to women and minors. Included in the bill, however, was a declaration of legislative intent. It stated that it was intended that the commission interpret the act so as not to cause undue hardship or loss of employment opportunities. Considerable testimony in recent public hearings has been presented that numerous provisions of the commission proposals would do precisely what the legislature had intended not be done.

Therefore, a resolution has been introduced into the legislature that would request the commission to conduct further proceedings in scrupulous observance of all requirements of law with special concern of the intent of the legislature. This resolution merits the support of all assemblymen and state senators.

The authority given away by the Legislature to the commission to establish minimum wages was a mistake. In effect, the commission has the power of enacting law. We thought only the lawmakers have that right.

Mt. Meadows not ready yet

Pomona's golfing fraternity have been watching and waiting for more than a year for the completion of the new Mountain Meadows Golf Course just west of the fairgrounds.

But they are going to have to wait a little longer, 60 to 90 days before they will be able to tee it up on the 18 hole course, the 19th course in the county's public golf system which is the largest of its type in the world.

The course architect Ted Robinson has recommended a September or October opening of the course in order to let the ground cover on the fairways take better hold so that when the golfers swarm onto the course the grass can withstand the assault by hackers and handicappers alike.

Four years ago when the old Mountain Meadows course was decimated to put through an access road into the Frank G. Bonelli Park south shore development area, there were those who felt that Pomona's historic golf course had come to an end.

At that time Supervisor Pete Schabarum assured Pomonans that they would indeed have a new links of championship caliber. Although it has taken some maneuvering and some compromising at the Supervisor level, Schabarum has made good on his promise.

The new layout will provide a good test of golf with its trees, lakes and bunkers. The traps are laden with the kind of sand that only the more exclusive, private clubs employ.

Thirteen years ago the city and county entered into a partnership to save Mountain Meadows Golf Course. It was indeed a good investment that will provide the greater Pomona Valley with one more splendid recreational facility. We congratulate the County Parks and Recreation Department with a special thanks to Supervisor Schabarum.

When you are in Rome

Dear Editor:

I've read a lot of letters in your public forum columns and my blood pressure went up a notch or two, but the one from Mrs. Martinez, July 8 took the cake.

What do you mean, dear lady, ". . . why do we make children uncomfortable in school by insisting that they learn a different language than is spoken at home . . . why try to Americanize them?"

My God, why do these people live in the United States in the first place!

What about the Germans, French and Italians, just to name a few. Do you hear them complain and ask for special teachers, special foods in the cafeterias for their children? Our family of 5 migrated to this country, without a father. Look at us now. We were told by our sponsor: 'when you are in Rome you do as the Romans do. Now you are in the U.S., you speak English, go to school, go to work, pay taxes, become citizens and stay off the welfare roll.' (not necessarily in that order) So, we went to school, work, the armed forces, to night school to learn English, which was hard, but we mastered with the help of friends. However, at home we continued to speak German. We are bilingual, did not complain about not being taught our history and English lessons in German, did not write to complain to schools or our Congressman. The class went on as before we joined it, as if no 'foreigner' was present.

We were told to be obedient citizens, living by the law, or we would be deported. So, when coming to this country, sending your children to school in order for them to be good American citizens, they have to first learn English and not be taught their English lessons in Spanish. Who has ever heard of a thing like that. You surely will not experience this being done in any other country.

Another great subject is voting in both languages. I'm sure Mrs. Martinez is elated about that. They even asked me, a blond German, (and long-time naturalized American citizen) if I desire to vote in Spanish or English. What an insult! How about a ballot in German? We spent a lot of money on printing ballots and materials to go along with it, might as well go all the way on printing it in 5 languages like the international drivers license. This way you might not offend too many!

Take it from a 'foreigner' — and from one who traveled many countries this is still "the" place.

Carter the conqueror

NEW YORK — Beneath the surface harmony, as the Democrats assemble here to nominate Jimmy Carter, run conflicting currents of apprehension and hope.

The apprehension arises from both the nature of the victory and the character of the man who won it.

Jimmy Carter overwhelmed the Democratic party by bypassing, even opposing, its traditional bastions. His campaign effort was directed by an old Annapolis classmate here, a born-again church brother there and a local maverick or an enthusiastic kid over yonder.

It was an effort that began in 1972 in the middle of his term as governor of Georgia. He gathered his tight little circle of advisers around him to discuss their next conquest. With an audacity that was breathtaking, they set their sights upon the White House.

They pursued the presidency with a doggedness that sent Carter to Florida 63 times before he entered the Democratic primary there. The strategy was to score a series of rapid, early victories and let the momentum carry them on to the nomination. Carter confidantes tell us that they concentrated their total effort on the first primaries, that they had no plans beyond the Pennsylvania primary.

Carter conquered by indirection. After four years of ingratiating himself with the public, he remains a frustratingly elusive suitor to Democratic professionals and ideologists alike who require the familiar pledges of the flesh and spirit — which he resists giving in full measure.

When Carter waxes effusive, it is about the Holy Spirit, not the more traditional objects of Democratic veneration like economic planning, the evisceration of oil companies and the redistribution of income.

He has embraced his party's predilections just enough to keep his primary opponents from putting him in a box. The feeling persists that his heart isn't in it and that a winnowing of Democratic shibboleths is ahead.

The Carter personality is also a cause of concern. He is aloof and inaccessible even to those who are given access. He has also acquired a palace guard before he has the palace. Even more disturbing to some, those who have his ear speak with accents not of ivy but of magnolia.

There is a disgruntlement, too, about a Carter mean streak beneath the surface of amiability, a hardness beneath the engaging sincerity, a political purpose behind the Billy Graham sermonettes. One Democratic professional, who has come to know Carter, told us: "He's tough as a warehouse rat."

But there was a note of admiration in the old pro's voice. For despite the ambiguities and the remoteness, Carter also offers the Democrats a new hope. They see in him an unexpected leader possessing political skills unseen since the great architect of Democratic supremacy, Franklin D. Roosevelt, burst into American politics.

Instead of mean and elusive, they see Carter as tough and prudent. They see a tactician who outplanned, outmaneuvered, outlegged and outlasted successive waves of opponents, a strategist who won his victories in a way that made possible the unifying of the party and the creation of an electoral coalition of historic significance.

These hopefuls feel that Carter, by his aloofness from the old Democratic powers and panaceas, has given the party a needed facelift in the nick of time. Had the Democrats been caught in a traditional conservative vs. liberal contest, it is suggested, they figured to take a shellacking.

But the advent of Carter has blurred the party's vulnerability without surrendering its basic goals, has held together the old constituencies while ushering in new ones. Reconciled southerners and evangelical Christians — groups which only yesterday were rather wary of the party of Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern — are attracted to Carter.

To many, Carter's campaign as a Southerner who embraced the memory of Martin Luther King Jr., and Carter's crushing but gentle defeat of George Wallace in the South, constituted a political masterplay. They believe it has, without sacrifice of party principles, saved the South for the Democratic party.

There is another aspiration, half-defined, floating around Madison Square Garden. The nomination victory, won essentially without obligation to the old power centers and special interest groups, opens up a chance for Carter to become a truly national leader, a no-sayer to the predators and parasites, a spokesman for the unorganized and reticent.

Midyear audit

This is a rare moment in the history of our nation. Three nice guys running for President; we can't go far wrong. The smoke shrouding Capitol Hill has been ventilated — and the stale perfume. Our economy is back in high gear, by all standards this is a very green year.

The good new days are now. Environmental pollution, air and water, is measurably less. On campus the now preoccupation is with vocational education. Wall Street reports all systems green, and war is going out of style.

Historians will not find many, if any, of our 200 years when we have enjoyed less social ferment, less labor strife, less disease and more take-home prosperity.

Even the crime fever is subsiding. And nobody is going hungry. A midyear audit shows an unprecedented investment, public and private, in developing inexhaustible supplies of clean fuels. To our credit is a new national commitment to tend to our own knitting.

Music is singable again. Uppers and downers are a fading fad, and the comb is making a comeback. At half-past 1976, at long last our nation's most under-appreciated minority — our farmers — are moving up from the back of the bus.

Dollar shrinkage is some less than last year and much less than anywhere else. Philanthropic Americans are giving more than ever before to the needy — almost $27 billion worth. While at the same time beginning, however tardily, to wean the greedy.

(On the sunshine side of the ledger)

Americans have led this world on expeditions of exploration of other worlds and if we have not found life there — the fallout from our adventuring has contributed much to a better life here.

And the horizons for women have been pushed back beyond the kitchen window; a rather long way beyond. Physically, our sons and daughters are so improved over any heretofore that we can't reprint the record books fast enough to catch up with our taller, healthier, faster, stronger athletes.

And there has been no time nor other place where builders, manufacturers, merchants and advertisers have been in such vigorous competition with one another and with themselves to try to provide you with some things better, whether better tasting, better for you or more beautiful.

And with all the bounty and beauty that would surely dull us to sleep — we're still just enough blessed with unsolved problems and inspiring challenges to keep us awake!

So it's little wonder ours is the only dry land on this ball of mud where people are standing in line trying to get in — instead of dying trying to get out.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

There is an old saying that one picture is worth 10,000 words. However, in Seattle they have translated that into dollars and cents and set a monetary value on one picture of $2,500. And, having established that figure, the Seattle Arts Commission initiated a program, funded with federal money naturally, to keep 54 artists working for 5 months at $500 each per month. At the end of that time the City of Seattle owned 54 works of art paid for by your federal tax contributions and mine. — And there, for a paltry expenditure of only $135,000, we have another interesting example of government of the people, by the people and for the people engaged in one of its more artistic share the wealth programs. But I feel sure that 10,000 or even 540,000 words uttered by those of us ignorant infidels who are short on art appreciation but long on anti-boondoggling would never get that $135,000 back again. So if government funded art is inevitable, why not relax and enjoy it? After all, maybe Holmes was right when he said, "Life is painting a picture not doing a sum."

Salary commission

By EARL G. WATERS

Forestalling of the legislative salary proposal may not have been all bad. The Assembly had proposed the creation of a commission to determine proper compensation for legislators and other top state officials. But it bogged down in the Senate in disputes over whether the Legislature should have veto powers on the commission recommendations. Had it passed it would have required voter approval in November.

No doubt, since it included them, the judges had a hand in lobbying its defeat. Traditionally their pay had been set by the solons. Several years ago, however, through some clever legislative legerdemain, the judges locked into the law an annual automatic raise tied to the cost of living index. By this device superior court judges will be paid more than the governor starting in September.

Under present law, proposals to raise the salaries of the governor and other elective state officers must be submitted to the electorate. The legislators escaped this requirement in 1966 when a ballot measure raised their pay from $6,000 to $16,000 and gave them the power to vote their own increases thereafter, which they have done in stages to the present $23,232, effective in December.

The idea of a commission to peg compensation for the officials stems from the increasing criticisms leveled at the lawmakers over the salaries and fringe benefits which they have given themselves. It is a case of not being happy with the heat and seeking to get out from under.

Still, it was evident that not all of the solons wanted to trust their fate entirely to an independent commission. The designation that three of the seven members would be from agencies subject to legislative pressures signalled that. And the demand for legislative ratification of the commission proposals confirmed it.

The reason the measure's defeat was not all bad is that it seems to have put the cart before the horse. It accepted the current manner of legislative operations as inviolate and left nothing for the commission excepting the setting of compensation. All too obvious was the expectation of much higher pay.

Prudent management of resources requires that before one spends money it must first be decided what one wishes to buy. In business, equipment is purchased only after the need is known. Positions are established by determining the job to be performed. Only after that has been defined is the salary set.

It would appear then, that before proper compensation for the lawmakers can be determined, there should be a reexamination of what kind of Legislature the people really want. Having been transposed from a citizen-Legislature, meeting every other year, to a full time, year around, "professional" Legislature in a few short years, it is not at all certain the people are satisfied with the lawmakers being in continuous session.

The solons like to compare the state to a large corporation and themselves to the board of directors. Agreed the state budget ranks with the most giant corporations but whoever heard of a board of directors meeting more than occasionally?

One wonders, now that the legislators' commission is not to be, at least for awhile, why the citizens can't form their own commission to study the problem? Two groups come to mind, both composed of memberships with adequate competence and understanding to do the job and with the financial ability as well. Either the State Chamber of Commerce or the California Taxpayers Association fit the bill. They could do it jointly. Both have played prominent roles in legislative salary setting in the past. Being independent of legislative control their recommendations would carry great weight with the voters. And the setting of public salaries belongs in the hands of the voters.

If they would step forward now and do the job the commission won't be needed.

He loves you, not your nose

Dear Ann Landers: An aunt of mine is driving me crazy. I plan to be married in a few months. She thinks it is very important that I tell my fiance I had rhinoplasty — better known as a nose job.

I don't think it's any of his business. Aunt Marcia insists that it would be unfair not to tell him. And wait till you get a load of the reason. She is afraid our children might be born with a schnozz like my old one and my husband would wonder who the fater is. (I now have a little turned-up nose, and his nose is small also.)

What is your opinion of the situation? — Nobody Nose The Trouble I've Seen

Dear Trouble: The decision should be yours, but I see no reason for not telling him. After all, he fell in love with you, not your nose.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is a 19-year-old son. He has bever been in any kind of trouble, works every day and pays board and room.

Things began to change around here last October when Phil took up with a 14-year-old girl. She looks 17, is very mature physically, but not mentally. Phil is at Dolly's house every night of the week. They seldom go to a movie or out with friends. Their only interest is each other.

Dolly seems like a nice girl, but she forgets to wash her hands before meals and never uses a napkin. When Phil tries to hold her chair to help her get seated, she says, "I'm not crippled. I can seat myself." (No manners whatsoever.)

Last week she asked for permission to stay here for the weekend while her parents were out of town. I said OK. Ann, the girl didn't bring a thing with her, not even a toothbrush. She slept with my daughter who offered her a nightgown. Her reply was, "I hate those things."

Phil bought a camper and plans to take Dolly camping every weekend. I don't know what this girl's parents are thinking about. Will you please comment? — Plenty Worried

Dear P.L.: Phil has obviously gone gaga over this Dolly and there is nothing you can (or should) do about it. He is 19 — old enough to know his own mind — such as it is.

Your son should be aware, however, of the legal ramifications. In many states a 14-year-old girl is considered a child. Under certain circumstances he could get into legal trouble for contributing to her delinquency.

The girl sounds pathetically ignorant and completely without parental guidance. I hope Phil will assume the responsibility to see that his Dolly doesn't get pregnant.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column is a great escape valve for people who need to sound off. May I blow my top? Thank you.

Dear "Gentlemen" Commuters: Although you insist Women's Lib has killed chivalry, it doesn't mean good manners and common sense are also dead. How can you sit in that seat on the bus while a woman eight months pregnant stands, being jostled around for 45 minutes? Doesn't it bother you when a 60-plus, grandmotherly type faints from standing in a crowded aisle, in stifling heat, while you sit next to a breezy window? How do you think you look shoving women and children aside in your rush to get on the bus and grab a seat? If you don't know, I can tell you in a word. Lousy. — Turned Off In D.C.

Dear D.C.: I can't improve on your one-word answer. Thank you.

SLACKS

Q. "Women's slacks are always hung from the waist. But men's trousers are hung from the cuffs. Why this difference?"

A. It's baffling. All I know is the custom of hanging up men's trousers upside down was first devised by a wife who needed some change.

Q. "When did women first start using mud masks as a beauty treatment for their faces?"

A. About Cleopatra's time.

Q. "Do penguins drink fresh water?"

A. Reluctantly. They prefer saltwater.

AUCTIONEERS

You've already read that you can learn to be an auctioneer by going to an auction school. But did you know a professional auctioneer is not the only faculty member at a good auction school? In attendance, too, should be an attorney, a real estate broker, a livestock judge, a veterinarian, an advertising man, a psychologist possibly and a voice coach. Or so say the experts.

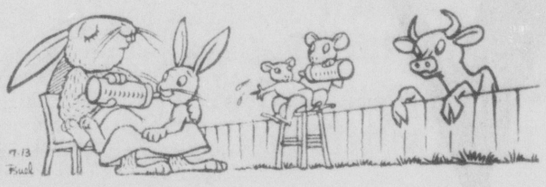
Rabbit milk very, very rich



DEAR DR. MILLER: You said rabbit milk was very rich. Is it as rich as mouse milk? — G. F. .

DEAR G. F.: Rabbit's is richer. While mouse milk's higher in fat at over 12 per cent, its's considerably lower in protein at only nine per cent. (Nine per cent protein's nothing to sneeze at, actually. Cow's milk has only three per cent protein but . . . that's actually not too bad either, if you come to think of it, since cows are considerably easier to milk.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Little Dora, she's our dog, is beginning to swell up in her throat. She doesn't act sore from it or anything, but I'm worried because it looks a lot like a goiter my grandmother had. Can Dora be getting a goiter? — E. M.

DEAR E. M.: Iodine deficiency goiter may occur in the dog, though, as with humans, it's less commonly seen today because most diets today are not deficient in iodine. Other causes for enlargement of the thyroid include tumors, many of which are malignant. Swelling in this area of the neck may also be due to lymph gland or other tissue with no direct involvement of the thyroids. Obviously the problem, be it cyst, foreign body or whatever, can only be handled by her doctor and should be.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Middle Cat was so much trouble we finally got him fixed, but it didn't take. He still has his heat cycles. Does this happen? — N. N.

DEAR N. N.: It must, according to Middle Cat, who's admittedly a mite unusual anyway. Most male cats don't have heat cycles. Most neutered males don't even have the otherwise characteristically consistent sexual drive. They don't, that is, unless they were neutered too late in life. You said "finally" when referring to Middle Cat's surgery, so it could be that his sexual habit patterns were so well-established that he's still going through the motions, even though contribution to the new cat population would be a perfectly acceptable zero. Male cats, and males of some other species, who have become masters of passionate performance may, happily for them, retain this ability — in blank verse — after surgical intervention. A neutered male definitely won't go through the motions if he doesn't know them. This is one of the advantages of neutering the young, but not too young, male who has not yet established sexual habit patterns.

Work is a four-letter word

Next to the oarsman on a slave ship whose captain wanted to water ski, the most maligned person on the face of this earth is the teenager who has just landed his first full-time job.

No one suffers more and is appreciated less.

Many of these "slaves" have heard stories of men who got up each morning, were fully clothed by 7 and on the job at 8:30, but they discarded these as venomous rumors — the kind circulated in Berlin in the 1940s.

My son considers himself a "human sacrifice" on the altar of the Church of the Establishment. He was 15 before we could use the word "employment" in front of him. The word broke his face out and he preferred we spell it. The way he explained it to us on the eve of his marriage to a paycheck, "This is an exercise in group persecution, isn't it? All of you have run the course and now before I come of age, I have to prove that I can hack the 9-5 number, is that it? Okay, you win. If I have to prove that I'm mature, I'll get the dumb full-time J-O-B . . . jjjj . . . jjooo . . . jooob!"

Maybe a lot of you know my son — or at least have heard of him.

He's the only employed person who has to work all day and then come home and feed himself.

He's the only dedicated teenager in North America to work when the "gang" went tubing down the river one Wednesday afternoon.

He's the first person to ever have half of his paycheck withheld for some service which he has never requested (federal income tax, hospitalization, Social Security, etc.). As he stated, "Someone is going to hear about this!"

He stands alone as the only worker who is dominated by a senile boss (age 35) who engages in office brutality by insisting he arrive on time in the mornings, and after lunch.

He's the only full-time worker in the country who has not gained the respect of family and friends for his contribution to labor.

Last Saturday, I tapped him on the shoulder. "Hey, George Meany, out of the sack. It's the crack of noon."

My son rolled over. "I do not believe this is happening to a working person," he said. "All week long, I work five days a week, eight hours a day, and what do I get for it?"

"You get all your meals served like a sultan, your bedroom cleaned, your clothes washed and ironed and a full-time old family retainer — me!"

Something tells me I'll have the first kid to retire three years before he has anything to retire from.

Coconut oil 'hazardous'

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column you say, "There is no cholesterol in foods of plant origin." I have read and been under the impression that coconut was very high in cholesterol. My husband avoids eating it for this reason. Would you care to comment on this. We want to be sure we are doing the right thing.

DEAR READER — That question keeps coming up and it is important that people understand why coconut oil can be hazardous to their health. Coconut oil does not contain one smidgen of cholesterol. No plant or pure plant product contains a molecule of cholesterol. Cholesterol is an animal product. It is found in dairy products, egg yolks, meat, poultry and fish.

The problem with coconut oil is that more than 80 per cent of its fat content is saturated fat. Fat and cholesterol are not the same thing. The saturated fat in coconuts stimulates the body to form excess amounts of cholesterol and fatty particles in the blood stream. For this reason if a person is prone to having excess amounts of fatty-cholesterol particles in the blood, coconut oil and all other sources of saturated fat should be sharply limited. The Inter-Society Commission for Heart Disease Resources recommended on the basis of the opinion of a group of national authorities that the daily saturated fat intake should be less than 10 per cent of the total calorie intake.

You and many others may be getting lots of coconut oil in your diet and not know it. Why? Because many food products are made with coconut oil and the label on the food package will say only vegetable oil. What can you do about this? Simply refuse to buy any product that does not say what the vegetable oil is in specific terms.

It was against the law under the provisions of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to list the amounts of the different types of fats on food labels until about 1972. I know of no other action by the Food and Drug Administration that I have found more repugnant than that sorry bit of history. Fortunately there has been a major change at the FDA since those black days and a more enlightened crew seems to be in command. Note the FDA action was not against false claims but against John Q. Public's right to know how much saturated fat was in the food products he was buying.

Remember that "vegetable fat" can be anything from corn oil to coconut oil. Most of the powdered nondairy creamers are made with coconut oil and contain more saturated fat than does natural cream. The coconut oil will show up in cake mixes, baked goods and any variety of commonly used food products, all sailing under the colors of "vegetable fat." The upshot is the buyer who thinks he or she is doing something good for his health by using a product that contains vegetable fat may have just been had, thanks to our marketing system. The old rule, let the buyer beware, still applies and especially at the grocery store.

East and West have most of the high cards, but North and South have the spade suit and better distribution.

East and West can make four hearts while North and South can make four spades. When the hand was played in a rubber bridge game the bidding went as shown in the box. East and West got after diamonds in time to collect a diamond, two clubs and 100 points above the line, but North and South were very unhappy with the result.

North was mad because South had doubled five hearts. He explained that he would have let East play five hearts, but had to take it out when South doubled.

South was mad because he felt that North had tried to bid both their hands and had managed to get to the wrong contract all by himself.

We have to agree with South on all counts. North might have bid in such manner as to get doubled at four spades, but North had sledge-hammered his way right there.

South had heard all the bidding and decided that he was going to take three tricks against East. Hence his double.

Assuming that you are playing a standard system that your partner has shown a very strong hand you should bid three diamonds with every intention of making some further bid.

GOING UP — Glass tower rising on Detroit's riverfront will be 1,400-room Detroit Plaza. The spectacular 70-story structure is centerpiece in city's new Renaissance Center and is scheduled to open next spring. The glass ring around hotel's base is a skylight over an eight-story atrium that is crossed by aerial walkways.

American art

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Bicentennial exhibit of 388 paintings, drawings, prints and sculpture, called "America As Art," is on exhibit at the National Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institution.

The show "examines how American art has been identified with the changing concepts and ideals associated with the United States over the past 200 years."

Because of its size, the exhibit has three closing dates, Sept. 12, Oct. 3 and Nov. 7.

Leak in California Aqueduct

SACRAMENO (AP) — The California Aqueduct has sprung a leak in Stanislaus County forcing the state for the first time to shut down a section of the canal, the Water Resources Department said today.

Water deliveries to the south won't be affected because the state can release more water from the San Luis Reservoir, 12 miles south of the leak.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation has also agreed to increase the flow in its Delta-Mendota Canal, which parallels the state aqueduct between the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta and San Luis.

The state shut down its Delta pumps while the leak is repaired. Water exports from the Delta won't be decreased, though, because more water will be pumped into the federal canal.

Water Resources Director Ronald Robie said the canal started leaking near pool 10 in the stretch between Patterson and Gustine in April, but it didn't become significant until last week.

A rock and earth dam was built upstream from the leak and a one-mile section of the aqueduct between the dam and a check gate was drained.

James Doody, deputy director of the department's division of operations and maintenance, said the cause of the cracks in the canal was unknown.

He said it was leaking about 3.7 cubic feet of water per second out onto the ground.

Doody said the aqueduct has sprung leaks before, but never one that couldn't be repaired without draining the canal.

Flights to U.S. making money for Concorde

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversial Concorde, its flights watched closely by environmentalists and the Federal Aviation Administration, is making money on flights to the United States, spokesmen for two airlines said Monday.

Flights of the British-French built supersonic jetliner to nearby Dulles International Airport from Paris and London have attracted many more passengers than necessary to warrant permanent routes, the airline officials said.

"It's economically feasible, there's no question about that," said Thomas Craft, a spokesman for British Airways in New York.

"We're very pleased with the Paris-to-Washington route," echoed Bill Klema, district manager in Washington for Air France. "We hope it is a permanent route."

Under a 16-month test approved by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr., Air France is flying three Concordes in and out of Dulles each week. British Airways has two weekly flights.

While both airlines say they could live with passenger loads of about 60 per cent of capacity, Air France reports figures nearer 90 per cent and British Airways 100 per cent for Concorde flights since late May.

"We're flying 80 passengers this summer rather than the full 100 so we can fly non-stop all of the time," Klema said. "With the full 100 passengers, on certain hot days we'd face the possibility of having to stop for fuel."

Air France has had no problems booking 80 passengers for each flight and, after late cancellations, has averaged 71 passengers per flight, Klema said.

At British Airways, Craft said, "We anticipated the London-Washington route would be a good one and we weren't disappointed. "We're flying full."

British Airways is selling 71 to 76 tickets for each flight this summer, putting limits on the planes' weight in hot weather.

Both airlines say they won't be prepared to talk about profits until the end of the 16-month test. But both claim that the Washington flights are lucrative, without detracting from other first-class travel.

Most Concorde passengers are business executives who crave the time savings offered by supersonic travel — a Concorde flight to or from London takes 3½ hours compared to 7 to 8 hours for more conventional jets — and don't mind the ticket prices.

A Concorde flight from Washington to Paris costs $827, $132 higher than other first-class fares. To London, Concorde costs $801, $102 more than the first-class fare.

Both airlines consider New York another lucrative market — but one not linked to Washington's future.

Coleman's agreement to test Concorde flights at New York's Kennedy Airport was blocked when the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, operator of Kennedy, banned the plane for environmental reasons. A federal court hearing on the controversy is scheduled for Sept. 13.

Report Navy bomb kills 4 Filipinos

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — A bomb dropped by a U.S. Navy plane during a bombing exercise killed four Filipino fishermen last month, the government Philippine News Agency has reported.

Police reported that the four were fishing from a motorboat in the Zambales Sea off San Antonio, Zambales, 70 miles northwest of Manila, when they were hit by the bomb on June 18, the agency said.

There was no immediate comment on the report from the Subic U.S. naval base.

'BIRD' PLAY

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of Detroit blows a bubble while sitting on the edge of the Tiger dugout Sunday. Fidrych will be the starting pitcher in tonight's All-Star game.

Peace hopes center on U.S.

MONTREAL (AP) — Peace hopes in the great Olympics dispute rested today on the shoulders of Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and a man with a reputation for patching up other people's quarrels.

Krumm and his committee took over the role of mediators and became the central figures in the drama of the Taiwanese athletes who are shut out of Canada for political reasons

The Americans were talking with the Canadian External Affairs Ministry in Ottawa and the Taiwanese officials in the Olympic Village in Montreal.

Olympic sources gave them a slim chance of success. But it was a last gasp effort to get the Taiwanese into the Games, opening Saturday, and restore the battered image of the Olympic charter.

"We are working like the dickens to get both sides in this dispute to concede a little," Krumm said.

"The future of the Games depend on our success. Instead of friendly athletic competition between athletes, the Olympics have become a political contest between countries."

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) recognizes the national Olympic committee of Taiwan under the name of the Republic of China—a name which offends the Communist Chinese in Peking.

Canada, clearly concerned about its big wheat export trade with Peking, refused to allow the Taiwanese to enter the country unless they agreed to drop the "Republic of China" label and abandon their national flag.

The IOC executive board failed to make any impression on the Canadians. It tried asking the Taiwanese to march in the opening parade under the Olympic flag and the IOC insignia, but the Taiwanese said no.

Unless one side or another gives way, the Taiwanese will be the first athletes ever shut out of an Olympic host country because of politics.

Krumm's men moved into the dispute after an appeal by President Ford in Washington.

Krumm, 69-year-old wealthy sports enthusiast, made his money selling electronic equipment, cabinets and boats.

This is not the first time he has stepped out of the shadows into the limelight. When he was elected president of the U.S. Olympic Committee in 1973 few people outside the committee had ever heard of him.

But he achieved quick results. He made peace between quarreling factions in the U.S. Olympic movement, and brought in young blood to revitalize the committee.

Krumm lives on a 400-acre farm in Kenosha, Wis. He is a man who dislikes high-style living and the glare of publicity. He prefers to work in the background with carefully chosen aides.

Solution of the Taiwan problem in Montreal would only give the IOC breathing space. Sooner or later it must come to grips with the question of Mainland China, with its 800 million people and its aspirations to get into the Olympics.

Peking insists its athletes will never compete alongside those of Taiwan, the island stronghold which still claims sovereignty over the whole of China.

Taiwan's athletes cling to an Olympics berth under the protection of the Olympic charter. The IOC, disclaiming all political interests, refuses to disown a national Olympic committee that is in good standing, regardless of governments and regimes.

Krumm, admitting no great progress was made in his peace moves Monday, said: "We shall be going back to both sides today, and we will aim to get some measure of agreement in time for the full session of the IOC."

The 75-strong IOC started a four-day session today. It will be called upon to approve recommendations of the executive board, which it usually does as a formality.

Rams, Knox remain calm

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Chuck Knox agreed it was not the typical way to open a pro football camp. But the Los Angeles Rams' coach refused to cancel the workout despite the shooting deaths of seven persons a few yards from the practice field.

As Knox, his coaching staff and the 61 players who had reported to the National Football League team's camp were preparing for their first workout Monday morning at California State University-Fullerton, a security guard barged into the locker room and ordered them to "stay put."

The guard told Knox a "lunatic" gunman had just gone on a five-minute shooting spree in the school library and killed an unknown number of persons. He cautioned that the suspect was still loose and armed and that the Rams should not leave the locker room until the gunman had been apprehended.

Knox took the news calmly, waited a few minutes, then ordered the club onto the field.

Campus police then approached the Rams' coach and told him to clear the football field. Again Knox refused.

"We'd walked through the the area where the violence had occurred to get to the field and I didn't see any sense in walking back through it again," Knox said. "I felt we were much better off on the field doing what we're supposed to do."

He insisted the shootings, in which seven persons died and two others were critically injured, did not affect the club's practice session.

"We heard a lot of talk about it and saw a lot of people scurrying around," said a club spokesman, "but we didn't actually see or hear the shootings. It happened just a short distance from where we were, but as for our involvement in it, it could have happened at another school 20 miles away.

"Coach Knox made the right decision in sending the team out to practice. The players would have been more upset if he hadn't, talking about the violence and all."

Knox said the workout went smoothly.

"It was a real good session," he said. "The players were all very enthusiastic. If anyone was bothered by the violence, they didn't show it."

Less than an hour after the shootings, officers arrested 37-year-old library custodian Edward Charles Allaway on suspicion of murder.

Police later said the man, who was separated from his wife and experiencing emotional problems over the estrangement, had yelled at his intended victims that he was going to "get even" with them for messing around with his wife.

The Rams, meanwhile, finished their morning workout, ate lunch, and were back on the field by early afternoon for their second workout of the day.

No worries on lodging

MONTREAL (AP) — The Olympic lodging bureau has arranged housing for about 250,000 visitors to the Games that begin this weekend.

An additional 100,000 have booked rooms through travel agencies, hotels and motels.

Gilles Bergeron, director of Hebergement Quebec-Olypiques '76, said he has "no worries whatsoever that everyone will be lodged," including last-minute visitors to the Games who arrive in Montreal without reservations. There are expected to be some 30,000 in this category. Bergeron said HEQUO has rooms reserved for this purpose.

"We'll be able to lodge 200,000 to 210,000 a night, but we doubt we'll ever reach that peak," he said.

They have 12 inspectors to monitor the situation through the end of the Olympics, but Bergeron said they couldn't watch everyone.

Brad Kramer cut by NFL Seahawks

SEATTLE — Among the players cut by the new NFL Seattle Seahawks Monday was former Chaffey High and JC star Brad Kramer.

Kramer, a kicking specialist who played for Azusa Pacific College the last two years, had been signed by the Seahawks as a free agent.

At APC, the 6-1, 190-pounder averaged 60 yards on 42 kickoffs and 44 yards on 52 punts. He holds the school record with a 54-yard field goal.

Pitchers in a hurry

Fidrych, Jones open classic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers and Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres, two youngsters in a hurry, are the starting pitchers tonight in the 47th All-Star Game,

President Ford will join 61,000 fans at Veterans Stadium who will attend the game, which will be viewed by a national television audience.

Fidrych, the 'Gee Whiz Kid,' says he can't imagine pitching in the majors, let alone starting an All-Star Game.

"There really are no words to describe it," the 21-year-old Fidrych said as the two teams held brief workouts Monday. "My body is feeling it but it's hard to get the words across. I thought that maybe I would get in an inning, but starting ... Wow!"

American League Manager Darrell Johnson picked Detroit's Ron LeFlore as his leadoff hitter. Following the leftfielder will be Rod Carew, Minnesota, first base; George Brett, Kansas City, third base; Thurman Munson, New York, catcher; Fred Lynn, Boston, center field; Toby Harrah, Texas, shortstop; Rusty Staub, Detroit, right field, and Bobby Grich, Baltimore, second base.

In addition to Jones, National League Manager Sparky Anderson said he would have his own Pete Rose, Cincinnati, at third base and leading off, followed by Steve Garvey, Los Angeles, first base; Joe Morgan, Cincinnati, second base; George Foster, Cincinnati, center field; Gregg Luzinski, Philadelphia, left field; Johnny Bench, Cincinnati, catcher; Dave Kingman, New York, right field, and Dave Concepcion, Cincinnati, shortstop.

With Fidrych and the 26-year-old Jones, the All-Star Game has two young pitchers who dash madly from dugout to mound, and mound to dugout. They not only run fast, they pitch well.

Jones, a sinker-ball specialist, has won 16 games at the All-Star break, a National League record. His fast ball takes a long time to get to the plate, but he pitches fast games because he runs to and from the mound and seldom issues a walk. Jones won 20 last year and pitched 12-3 innings to gain a save in last year's All-Star game.

"I'm not at all embarrassed when people comment about how slow I throw," he said Monday as he posed with Fidrych for traditional pictures. "If I do my job well, it will frustrate a hitter. On Astroturf, I have to be more careful. My success is all a matter of where I place the pitches."

Fidrych is more colorful and the media favorite. He not only races to his position and back, he talks to the ball, smooths the dirt on the mound from his knees, shakes hands with infielders who make good plays and, because of his nervous energy, is a cheerleader type.

He lost 1-0 Friday night. His only other loss in a 9-2 season was 2-0. He has completed every game but one.

Asked if his friends consider him kooky, he told newsmen: "No, they're like me, too."

It has been 24 years since the All-Star game was played in Philadelphia. In the 1952 game, the losing pitcher was Bob Lemon, who along with Robin Roberts will be honored tonight as honorary captains and as new members of the Hall of Fame.

Sharman agrees to pact as 'executive'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — And the plot thickens.

Los Angeles Lakers owner Jack Kent Cooke apparently wants to keep the future of coach Bill Sharman a mystery.

Sharman's five-year contract with the club was due to expire at midnight Monday, but 15 minutes before that deadline a club spokesman said the coach and Cooke had "agreed in principle to a multi-year contract employing Sharman as an executive in the Laker organization."

The spokesman added that the announcement "does not rule out the possibility that in this executive capacity Sharman will also coach the Lakers next season."

Sharman said following the announcement that he is "extremely pleased to have the opportunity to continue working for the Los Angeles Lakers and Jack Kent Cooke."

"I'd always hoped," Sharman said, "that as long as I was involved in professional basketball that it would be with the Lakers. Therefore, I'm happy that my future is now tied so tightly with the Laker family."

There had been speculation that Sharman would not be retained as coach after the Lakers' disappointing season last year. He has been seen regularly, however, at the club's summer camp at Loyola University.

Baseball owners, players agree

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It seems only appropriate that after 13 months of haggling, peace should come to baseball in the City of Brotherly Love.

But, like any truce, the agreement reached Monday between the Major League Players Association and the Player Relations Committee had its price. Both sides gave ground to reach the settlement.

Although neither management nor the union would reveal any terms of the pact, these key elements of the four-year agreement were learned:

—A player will have the right to demand a trade after having played in the majors for six years. He will have a veto right over six clubs. If he is not traded, he will become a free agent.

—Players who become free agents, including those now governed by the Andy Messersmith decision, will be able to negotiate with a maximum of 12 teams, starting with the inverse order of the previous season standings.

Each club will be limited in the number of free agents it can sign, being permitted one if the free-agent pool totals one to 14. However, a club will be able to sign as many free agents as it might lose.

—The only compensation for a lost player will be draft choices. If one of the 12 lowest teams signs a player, it would lose its second choice in the next draft of college and high school players to the player's former team. If one of the top 12 teams signs a player, it would forfeit its No. 1 draft choice.

—A player will be able to demand a trade after having played in the majors for five years. He will have a veto right over six clubs.

—Players can take their salary differences to arbitration as they did before the 1974 season. However, if a player is eligible to become a free agent, his salary dispute can go to arbitration only by mutual consent of the player and the club.

The players also had to agree to stay five years with their new teams once they exercised their free agent option.

The new contract also called for a 29 per cent increase in pension plan contributions by management.

But the pact did not solve baseball's "one-and-one" dilemma created when pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally won free agent status last winter under an arbitrator's decision after completing the 1975 season without signing contracts.

The 40 or so unsigned major league players still are considered to be "playing out their options," and unless they sign by October they will be free agents when the season ends. Other players who signed single or multi-year contracts may still exercise their options at the conclusion of those pacts, should they choose to move elsewhere.

The difference now, however, is that with an agreement, management has something of a deadline hanging over the players. Once they exercise or pass up that single option chance, the players will be tied to their teams for various lengths of time.

But, of course, that six-year point could be reached quickly for individual players, depending on when they came to the majors. So baseball still faces a situation which could find many players moving around freely every year.

That element and the continued 1-1 factor apparently has left some owners less than thrilled with the agreement which has the unanimous support of the Player Relations Committee and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The owners will meet Wednesday morning to consider the pact. The committee will recommend approval and the commissioner said he would support that recommendation.

"This is a constructive development for baseball," Kuhn said.

Approval of the pact would require 13 affirmative votes, a simple majority, from the 24 owners. There must be at least five positive votes from each league to pass the agreement.

The player representatives were almost unanimous in approving the agreement presented to them by Marvin Miller, executive director of the union. There was just one abstention in the 23 votes cast. Asked if this meant the labor dispute that delayed the start of spring training some 17 days was over, Miller smiled.

"I believe so," he said.

SWIM CHAMP AT OLYMPICS — U.S. champion Shirley Babashoff passes armed guard after clearing customs at the Olympic Village in Montreal Monday. Games begin Saturday.

'Being realistic'

Stones sees few medals

MONTREAL (AP) — Loquatious Dwight Stones says the United States men's track and field team will win only five individual events at the Summer Olympics and the world record holder in the high jump backs up his prediction with an event-by-event analysis.

"I just don't think it's as strong a team as a lot of people think," he said. "I'm not being anti-American; I'm being realistic."

Even before he was settled into the Olympic Village, the 22-year-old who won the bronze medal in the 1972 Games at Munich set forth his track and field selections, which show he's a dedicated student of events other than his own.

In the 100, for example, he says Soviet Union ace Valeriy Borzov will successfully defend the title he won at Munich in 1972. "He's a machine, said Stones. He has a PhD in running. He has approached it like a scientist.

"Don Quarrie of Jamaica, the second fastest man in the history of the 200-meter dash, will win that event," says Stones, "because there's nobody around with his speed. In fact, he could double. He could beat Borzov in the 100, too.

"The 400 will go to Cuba's tall, strong Alberto Juantorena because he's simply an animal," said Stones. "He's amazing."

In spite of the fact that U. S. team captain Rick Wohlhuter of Chicago is one of the favorites in the men's 800, Stones chooses Kenya's Mike Boit to win the two-lap race. "Rick doesn't seem to have his old gallop in the 800, and he doesn't have the consistency for the 1,500," he said.

The 1,500 was to have been a classic matchup between Filbert Bayi of Tanzania and John Walker of New Zealand, but the race was submarined when Tanzania refused to compete in the Games because of a political dispute with New Zealand. Stones' pick in the 1,500 had been Bayi, "but now I guess it'll be Walker."

He chooses Rod Dixon of New Zealand to win the 5,000 "because he's so tough," and Brendan Foster of Great Britain to take the 10,000 because he's finally free of injuries, but he warns, "Watch out for Lasse Viren. He won both races in '72 and he could win both of them again."

In the steeplechase, Stones takes Bronislaw Malinowski of Poland because he feels Anders Garderud of Sweden "is a head case—always having psyche problems." Garderud is the world record holder.

In the 110-meter hurdles, Stones feels the winner will be France's Guy Drut because nobody in the world has his form. And he's still going with world record holder and defending champion John Akii-Bua of Uganda in the intermediate hurdles.

"But I'm not too sure about that," Stones said, "because Akii has been hurt. If he can't run up to his best, then I'd pick (Edwin) Moses." The latter won the U. S. trials in 48.30, an American record. Akii-Bua's world mark is 47.82.

Stones picks himself to win the high jump, the event in which he finished third for a bronze medal in 1972. "Everybody else is picking me, so why shouldn't I?"

His field event picks include Nenad Stekic of Yugoslavia in the long jump, Viktor Saneyev of the Soviet Union in the triple jump, Mac Wilkins in the discus and his U. E. teammate George Woods to take the shot put.

"Stekic has jumped 27¾," said Stones, "and nobody else can go that far. Saneyev has won the last two triple jump golds in a row and he may be the world's greatest triple jumper ever.

"I wouldn't have picked Wilkins a few months ago, but he has just dominated the event and he hasn't taken a dive. And Woods, well, I don't think he wants a trio of silver medals." Woods was second in the event in 1968 and 1972.

He also says Karl-Heinz Riehm of West Germany will win the hammer throw and Seppo Hovinen of Finland will take the javelin, because both have superb form in their events.

And he takes 1972 champion Nikolay Avilov of the Soviet Union to win the decathlon again, and American Frank Shorter to win the marathon as he did in 1972.

Stones also feels the United States will win both the 400 and 1,600 relay races for a total of seven gold medals in men's track and field, one more than Americans won four years ago.

Jackson breaks record

MONTREAL (AP) — Madelene Manning Jackson set an American record Monday night as she and a group of her United States track and field teammates braved cold winds in tuning up for the Olympics on a practice track near the main Olympic Stadium.

In the impromptu, informal track meet, the 28-year-old Mrs. Jackson started out by running the rarely contested 1,000-meter run in 2:37.3 to better the existing record by about three seconds. Later she ran second to Beth Nail of Australia in a 400-meter race in 53.1. Miss Nail ran 52.6.

Hasley Crawford of Trinidad, Deli Udo of Nigeria and three Kenyans, John Ngeno, Andre Rono and Mike Boit, all had outstanding performances on the fast, artificial surface.

Crawford, who was injured in a semifinal race of the 100-meter race four years ago at Munich, flashed home the winner in the 100 Monday night in 10.0 seconds. He ran into a slight wind.

Udo, a freshman at Missouri, captured the 400 in a fast 46.0 despite winds along the backstretch. In another heat, 800-meter specialist James Robinson of California was clocked in 46.5.

Ngeno won the 3,000-meter race in 7:52.3, beating Tony Colon of Puerto Rico, who was timed in 7:53.5.

Rono captured the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:30.0 as American Doug Brown ran only 8:51.9.

Boit, one of the favorites to win the 800-meter run in the Olympics which start Saturday, won the 1,000 in 2:19.3, a time far off the world mark of 2:13.9 set by Rick Wohlhuter of the United States.

Sports briefs

NEWARK, N.Y. (AP) — A minor league baseball player in the Milwaukee Brewers' organization was shot to death early today in this western New York city.

Police found the body of Daniel Monzon, 18, rookie third baseman for the Newark Co-Pilots of the Class A New York-Penn League, when they responded to a call that a fight was in progress.

Chief Vincent Krebbeks, who said no motive had been established, said a man was being questioned. No charges have been filed, he said.

Monzon, a 6-foot, 175-pounder, lived in Carolina, Puerto Rico.

He was signed to a Milwaukee contract by Felix Delgado, the Brewers' scout in Puerto Rico.

Monzon reported to the Co-Pilots June 12. In his last game against the Elmira Pioneers Saturday night he drove in five runs on five hits, including a bases-loaded double.

The Co-Pilots were rained out Sunday and Monday nights.

In Newark, Monzon lived with several teammates near the shooting scene.

DALLAS, (AP) — Bobbie Thomas, a 25-year-old third year professional from Fort Worth, Tex., nabbed the second round lead Monday night in the Metroplex Professional Women Bowlers Association Open.

Miss Thomas, whose best finish is sixth on the PWBA tour, averaged 200 for 12 games to take a slim four-pin lead over Audrey Coburn of Chesterton, Ind., into Tuesday's third block of qualifying. Miss Thomas sports a 2,410 total and Miss Coburn a 2,406.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have signed pitcher Steve Powers, the most valuable player in the College World Series earlier this summer.

He is due to report Wednesday to the Pirates' Salem, Va., farm club in the Class A Carolina League.

The 22-year-old Powers, a 6-foot-2, 200-pound right-hander from Tucson, Ariz., was the Pirates' top choice in the secondary phase of the free-agent draft in June.

He later led the University of Arizona to victory in the College World Series, gaining a pitching victory over defending champion Arizona State.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— Veteran Grand National driver David Sisco says he'll boycott the Nashville Speedway, except for Grand National races.

Sisco, of Nashville, was angered Saturday night during a Late Model Sportsman race when his car failed to pass a routine inspection for being three-quarters of an inch to near the ground.

Sisco complained that he was singled out for harassment and that the car had been checked two weeks earlier and approved.

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — An eight-member tennis team for competition with the Japanese Collegiate All-Stars in Tokyo, Japan, Sept. 20-23 has been named by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Heading the team are Bruce Manson, University of Southern California, and Tim Garcia, University of New Mexico, the semifinalists in the 1976 Collegiate Tennis Championships, and Barbara Hallquist, University of Southern California, who won the 1976 USTA Women's National Intercollegiate championship.

To join the trio will be Steve Weddereburn, Oklahoma City University; Bill Mize, Stanford University; Francisco Gonzales, Ohio State University; Chris Lewis, USC, and Sandy Stap, Trinity University. Matt Mitchell, Stanford University, is first alternate for the team.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Darryl Dawkins, the Philadelphia 76ers' first draft choice in the 1975 player draft, will be out of action for several weeks because of a foot injury, the 76ers said Monday.

Dawkins suffered a stress facture of the left foot in an exhibition game against the U.S. Olympic team last Thursday. His foot was placed in a cast Monday.

Dawkins, a 19-year-old who was drafted after his senior year of high school in Orlando, Fla., was the starting center on the 76ers affiliate in the Baker League.

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Bowling great Enrico (Hank) Marino, 86, died Monday at Doctor's Hospital after a yearlong illness.

Marino, a native of Sicily, was voted Bowler of the First Half Century in a 1951 Associated Press poll of the Bowling Writers Association of America. He was one of the sport's most decorated champions.

He came to the United States at the age of 11 and settled with a brother in Chicago. By 1915, he was called the "Italian Wonder" in Chicago bowling circles.

JoAnne Carner feels like a pro

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "The first might have been luck. But when you win a second, you feel like a pro."

Such was JoAnne Carner's reaction after beating tiny but tough Sandra Palmer by two strokes Monday in their 18-hole playoff for the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

It was Mrs. Carner's second Open title. She won in 1971, at Kahkwa Club in Erie, Pa. She became the fourth player in the history of the Open to win two or more times.

Mrs. Carner's victory wasn't exactly artistic. She blew a four-stroke lead with five holes to play, and came back to win with the help of an eight-foot birdie putt and a bogey by Miss Palmer on the 17th hole.

Her five-over-par 76 wasn't exactly the kind of score you expect from one of the game's great hitters in a clutch match. Fortunately for Mrs. Carner, however, Miss Palmer shot 78.

But artistic or not, it was good enough to win $9,000 for the 37-year-old Mrs. Carner, and more important the prestige of being Open champion. The Open is the women's most prestigious bauble.

The 35-year-old Miss Palmer, who tied Mrs. Carner in the regulation 72-hole tournament when she rolled in a five-foot putt on the 18th green in Sunday's final round, took her defeat in stride.

"I had my chance and I turned around and gave it back to her," said the 5-foot-1 Miss Palmer, smallest player on the pro tour. "JoAnne is tough. That's why we call her 'Big Mama.'"

The two veteran women golfers each totaled eight-over-par 292s in the four-day tournament, which started with 150 in the field and was cut to 50 for the final two rounds.

Mrs. Carner even in the flush of her triumph knew that neither of the two playoff opponents had played exceptional golf.

"If we hadn't been so tired, you would have seen a lot more birdies," she said almost apologetically. "It became nerve-racking out there. Some trouble shots were impossible."

The 5-6 Mrs. Carner, a giant compared to little Miss Palmer, added, "I'd like to see them get the men's Open here."

Here, was the Rolling Green Golf Club, a tight 6,066-yard layout that belied its difficulty. The best golfers on the distaff circuit and their amateur counterparts found the tree-line fairways, the deep traps, elevated greens that were as slick as super highways, and narrow approaches to the pins almost too much to beat. There were only eight par or better rounds in the tournament.

Mrs. Carner said the difference Monday in her match against Miss Palmer was the tough rough.

"Sandra had a lot of trouble getting out of the rough," Mrs. Carner commented. "She was not quick enough. It was definitely an advantage for me."

Mrs. Carner was so right. She had the strength in those powerful arms to loft the ball out of the thick stuff.

"I worked all week on getting out of the rough," confided Mrs. Carner, the longest hitter among women players.

Mrs. Carner, a five-time U.S. Amateur champion before she joined the pros, also exuded confidence throughout the playoff. She rarely changed expression, even after she lost a four-stroke lead in just three holes.

"I never felt down," she said. "I never felt that I was going to lose."

But there were a few who thought she would, after she took a double bogey, bogey, bogey on 14 through 16, and whisked from four ahead to one behind. Miss Palmer birdied the 15th to complete a swing of five strokes.

On the par-5, 438-yard 17th hole, however, Mrs. Carner struck back. She chipped on the green eight feet from the cup and holed it. Miss Palmer had problems in the rough and bogeyed. That did it.

Mrs. Carner shot one-overpar 37 going out, and held a two-stroke lead after nine holes. She started with a 25-foot birdie putt on the first and led until the 16th. Miss Palmer bogeyed 11, 12 and 13 to fall behind by four.

Miss Palmer summed the playoff perfectly:

"I didn't putt well," she said. "I three-putted three greens. She (Mrs. Carner) putted well. I felt that I made it easy for her. She hits it so far, and every time she was in the rough recovered to put the ball on the green. JoAnne always has the advantage on par five. And she did not three-putt."

Just one question had to be asked before the 1976 Women's Open became history. Did Mrs. Carner really intend to try to qualify for the Men's Open, as she hinted before the tournament started?

"I have enough trouble with the women's tour," she said wearily. "I haven't given it (the Men's Open) any more thought."

Her husband, Don, who travels the tour with his wife in a plush trailer, made it even clearer. "She will not try for the Men's Open," he said firmly. Mrs. Carner may be the Open champion, but there was no doubt about who wears the pants in that family.

It's back to court for players in NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Assocation players' union has returned to court, contending the spirit of the Oscar Robertson antitrust suit settlement is being violated, the New York Times reported in its Tuesday editions.

The proposed merger of the NBA with four teams from the American Basketball Association cannot become a reality until the settlement of the suit is made final.

According to the Times, the NBA Players Association charged the terms, conditions and money offered the players selected in last month's college drafts were far below contracts offered in previous seasons when the NBA and ABA teams were bidding against each other.

Only one first-round draft choice—Ron Lee of the Phoenix Suns—has been signed since the league and the union agreed to a settlement of the Oscar Robertson suit. Three other firstround draft choice—John Lucas of the Houston Rockets, Richard Washington of the Kansas City Kings and Larry Wright of the Washington Bullets—signed before the agreement was announced.

Four first-round picks are on the U.S. Olympic basketball team and cannot be signed.

Larry Fleisher, general counsel of the Players' Association, said the union went to Federal Judge Robert L. Carter "to alert him to what we felt was a serious violation of the agreement.

"We felt it was imperative that he had this information because he was the protector of all the players in the suit we had instituted. It was our information that offers made to the rookies didn't comply with the letter or spirit of the Robertson settlement."

The Robertson class-action suit, instituted in 1970 on behalf of all the NBA players, contended that the common draft, the option clause and a compensation rule violated antitrust laws.

Lawyers for the NBA went before Judge Carter Monday to answer the charges. The judge asked both sides to settle their differences and report to him regularly.

Fleisher said the Portland Trail Blazers reportedly offered Wally Walker of the University of Virginia a seven-year contract with a one-year no-cut clause, meaning Walker could be cut from the squad after his first year.

A similar situation involves Armond Hill of Princeton, the first choice of the Atlanta Hawks.

A number of NBA owners said that unless an agreement is reached quickly, the dispersal of the Kentucky and St. Louis players would be held up and one owner said "the machinery of the merger would come to a complete halt."

Lakers' division will remain same

NEW YORK (AP) — The battle of champions will take place often in the 1976-77 National Basketball Association season.

In realigning the NBA's four divisions to incorporate the four expansion teams from the old American Basketball Association, the 1975 ABA champion New York Nets have been placed in the Atlantic Division with the Boston Celtics, 1975 NBA champions.

Also in the Atlantic Division are Buffalo, Philadelphia and the New York Knicks.

Adopted unanimously Monday by the NBA, the realignment added San Antonio to the Central Division, joining Atlanta, Cleveland, Houston, New Orleans and Washington.

Indiana and Denver will become part of the Midwest Division with Chicago, Kansas City, Milwaukee and Detroit.

The Pacific Divison will remain Golden State, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Portland and Seattle.

The Atlantic and Central Divisions make up the Eastern Conference, while the other two divisions comprise the Western Conference.

The league also announced an adjusted schedule for 1976-77. Each team will play 19 teams four times each and the other two teams three times each. Those final two teams will be chosen by lot.

Taiwan athletes feel like criminals

MONTREAL (AP) — "They make us feel like criminals," said pretty Chi Cheng. "It's as if we are in a court waiting for the judge to hand down the verdict."

"It's really demeaning," added C.K. Yang, once one of the world's great decathlon stars. "Why should they want us to change our name? What if the United States was told it would have to compete under another name?"

The statuesque Miss Cheng, once the world's premier woman sprinter and hurdler, and Yang, silver medalist in the 1960 Games in Rome, are two of the Taiwanese caught up in the political controversy of the XXI Olympics which has grabbed the attention of President Ford.

In a last minute decision, the Canadian government has ruled that the 43-member Taiwanese team cannot compete in the Games, starting here Saturday, unless they agree to change their name and not fly their national flag or sing their national anthem.

The Taiwanese, who have been accepted as members of the International Olympic Committee under the name of Republic of China, insist they won't do it. The IOC has capitulated—"unwillingly," says IOC President Lord Killanin—to Canada's demands.

Canada based its action on the fact that Canada maintains diplomatic relations with the People's Republic while refusing such relations with Taiwan.

"Why Canada, and why now?" said Yang, 42, former UCLA athlete who agreed to help with the 1976 Taiwanese team.

"If they didn't want us here, why did they have to wait until the last minute, after our team had spent months in preparations and had made the long trip across the Pacific?

"No, Canada invited us to compete. We have the invitation. Furthermore, we have been included in all advance literature and schedules of the Games."

Yang remains an imposing figure despite his clerkish, horn-rimmed spectacles. He stands better than six feet and weighs 210 pounds—28 more than in the 1960s when he set the world decathlon record and beat American star Rafer Johnson in seven of their 10 matchups.

Chi Cheng is 32, still svelte, looking as young as the time six years ago when she held records at 100 and 200 meters, 100 and 220 yards and 100-meter hurdles.

She is married to Vince Reel, her coach from Redlands, and is the mother of a nine-month-old child.

Chi and Yang sat in the Taiwanese headquarters at the Olympic Village, munching grapes and bananas, while talking of their deep frustrations and disappointments.

"There is the general assembly meeting of the IOC Tuesday," Chi said. "Chances are slim, but I still hold hope that justice and fair play will prevail."

The Taiwanese athletes are scattered in American cities, denied visas to enter Canada.

"The Chinese should get a refund for all the money they've spent," Yang insisted. "It's not that we are crying over money. Taiwan is not that poor. But no price can be put on our humiliation."

The decathlon star said he is grieved to see the inroads made in the Games by politics.

"When you compete, you don't ask the man next to you what his politics are. You ask, 'What event are you in? How fast do you run?' I competed against the Russians many times. We were good friends," he said.

With Chi and Yang in the Village are two other Taiwanese— Chia Shen, president of the country's Olympic Committee, and Lawrence Ting, the chef de mission.

"I feel very nervous," Chi said. "There are guards everywhere. They act as if they want us to hurry and go away."

Judy Rankin first past $100,000 mark

NEW YORK (AP) — She is not as glamorous as Laura Baugh or Jan Stephenson. Nor is she as controversial as Jane Blalock or Carol Mann. Judy Rankin simply is the best woman professional golfer in the world.

Mrs. Rankin became the first female golfer to pass the $100,000 mark in money winnings for one year on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour Sunday. Her total, after placing 17th in the U.S. Open, stands at $100,614. That may not be a very imposing figure for a player on the men's tour but it is a proud achievement for both Mrs. Rankin and the LPGA.

"I have thought it was coming for quite some time," says Mrs. Rankin, who is in her 14th season on the tour. "I didn't think it could be done in one-half a year. That's what pleases me most about it. I didn't win $100,000 just because there is so much more money on our tour. I won it because I have played very consistently all year."

She has been so consistent that in the last 11 years she's never finished out of the money in a tournament. This year, Mrs. Rankin has captured four titles, including the prestigious Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle championship.

"Maybe now that I have won $100,000, people will remember me as a golfer and not as someone who washes clothes," she laughs, recalling the television commercials she has made in conjunction with the Dinah Shore tournament.

What the government would like to know from consumers

What's the best way to make cars safe?

Should airlines have to explain their fare schedules?

How big a refund are you entitled to on a defective product?

These are some of the questions the government is trying to answer, and it wants help from consumers. Here are some proposed changes in government regulations and information on making your views known:

AIR BAGS

The Transportation Department has proposed extending until Aug. 31, 1977, requirements concerning air bags and seat belts. As of now, auto makers have three options. They can install a complete, passive protection system — such as an air bag — which automatically inflates to provide protection in all types of crashes. They can install a combination system with an air bag to protect the occupant in head-on crashes and lap seat belts for safety in other accidents. Or, they can simply provide lap seat belts.

Most manufacturers have chosen the third option. General Motors offered a passive restraint system as an option on some luxury cars in 1974, 1975 and 1976, but does not intend to offer it in the future.

Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. has scheduled an Aug. 3 public hearing in Washington and also wants written comments. He has said he will issue a written decision by next Jan. 1.

Among the questions Coleman is asking:

—Should the current standards be extended?

—Should air bags be required on all vehicles after a given date?

—Do you favor more federally-sponsored research on the costs and effectiveness of devices such as air bags?

—Would you support state laws requiring the use of safety belts?

The Aug. 3 hearing will be held at the Transportation Department auditorium, Constitution Avenue between 12th and 14th Sts., N.W., in Washington.

Written comments, due by Sept. 17, should be sent to the Secretary of Transportation, Washington, D.C., 20590. Mark the envelope FMVSS 208, indicating that your comments apply to Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 208.

WARRANTIES

The Federal Trade Commission has proposed letting companies offering a full warranty make a deduction if a defective product is used before it is returned.

Under the formula suggested, the amount of the refund would depend on how much use the customer got out of the product. To figure out the size of a refund, you would take the amount of use you got, divide it by the total useful life of the product and multiply it by the purchase price. The company issuing the warranty would have to explain, in the warranty itself, how the formula worked.

Aug. 3 is the deadline for comment. Write: Special Assistant Director for Rulemaking, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

AIR FARES

The Civil Aeronautics Board has proposed requiring air carriers to publish and distribute easy-to-understand summaries of available fares, including any restrictions on use. The proposal is the result of a petition by the Aviation Consumer Action Project, which claimed that the public now "has no practicable way to determine all the options available to it for discretionary travel, since the official fare tariffs are unintelligible to the average layman."

The deadline for comments is Aug. 6. Write: Docket Section, Civil Aeronautics Board, Washington, D.C. 20428.

USED CARS

The Federal Trade Commission has extended the deadline for comment on a plan requiring used-car dealers to provide more information, including known defects, about the vehicles they sell.

The commission has prepared a questionnaire for the use of consumers who have bought used cars and want to relate their experiences. To get a copy of the questionnaire, write to Used Cars, Room 288, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

The deadline for comments on the proposals is July 31. Write: Special Assistant Director for Rulemaking, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

$450 fee gives defense contractor links with military

WASHINGTON (AP) — For as little as $450 a year, a defense contractor can legally derive business benefits from belonging to private organizations with links to the armed services.

By paying a fee to become a sustaining member or an associate of one or more of these organizations, a company can put its representatives in a position to cultivate contacts in the services.

The contractor can also participate in special seminars arranged by the military-oriented organizations to acquaint defense business with service requirements for equipment. Generally, the armed services provide key officials to appear at such seminars.

An official of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) said in an interview that one of that organization's functions is to serve as a bridge between the Army and sections of defense industry interested in meeting the Army's materiel needs.

All the major organizations of this sort — The AUSA, The Air Force Association, (AFA), and the Navy League — deny that they serve to channel defense contracts to firms affiliated with them.

"We don't allow ourselves to get involved in specific contract matters," said a spokesman for the AFA.

The Defense Department takes a somewhat ambivalent position on relations with these organizations. Technically, they are private and legally unconnected with the Pentagon or the individual armed services, although many of their members are in regular uniform, in related reserve forces, or are drawing military retirement pay.

In a recent policy statement, assistant defense secretary William Greener spoke of "the important role of associations as a communication conduit between the Department of Defense and its industrial suppliers."

On the other hand, Greener has tried to enforce rules designed to insulate military officers and civilian officials from entertainment by defense contractors at conventions and other functions sponsored by the service-oriented organizations.

The AUSA, AFA, Navy League and Marine Corps League exist chiefly to promote the causes of the services to which they adhere.

They claim to get the bulk of their annual income from dues paid by individual members, from advertising in their magazines, and from insurance programs they provide for the membership. Most of the advertising, however, is sponsored by defense contractors.

These organizations work to develop grassroots support for the services through hundreds of local chapters, and they try to influence Congress through formal testimony and position papers. Most claim they do no direct lobbying on Capitol Hill.

The Air Force Association is the biggest of the four, with 152,000 members in 286 chapters. About 40 to 45 per cent of its membership is made up of active duty Air Force officers and enlisted men, with much of the remainder drawn from retired Air Force personnel, reservists and Air Guardsmen.

The Army Association claims 88,000 members in 120 chapters. About half of its membership is on active duty in the Army and it, too, gets many of its other members from the ranks of the retired, the reserve and the guard.

The Navy League, with 45,322 members in 325 councils, does not allow active duty Navy officers and enlisted personnel to join, but relies heavily on Navy alumni for its strength.

The smallest is the Marine Corps League with 15,000 members in 350 detachments. All are Marines or former Marines and reservists.

Reopened checkpoint

Illegal aliens caught

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Border Patrolmen are having a field day rounding up illegal aliens at the reopened highway checkpoint, 40 miles north of San Diego.

Since the checkpoint was reopened Saturday on Interstate 5, Border Patrol spokesmen say they have caught 424 illegal aliens, mostly from nearby Mexico. Many of them were children, the spokesmen said.

Border Patrol agent John Wesson said the checkpoint is still catching alien smugglers by surprise, despite the fact that its reopening was announced publicly last week. In fact, some surprised alien smugglers are abandoning their cars on the freeway, he said.

"We will sometimes find cars that have been abandoned just south of the checkpoint," Wesson said. "The lights are on, the motor is still running and the doors are open. They take off into the hills east of us or to the beaches."

Sixteen illegal aliens were found in the hills Saturday after Border Patrol agents discovered one such abandoned car, he said.

The checkpoint had been closed since March 1975, when the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the blanket warrants being used to keep it open were unconstitutional.

But the U.S. Supreme Court overturned that ruling last week.

State's death penalty law to be overturned?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — There appears to be a good chance that California's death penalty law will be overturned by the state Supreme Court later this year.

The state court, which in 1972 found California's death penalty unconstitutional, now will be looking at the state's new death penalty law in light of recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings.

And in those rulings is language which appears to aid the challenge to California's death penalty in the first capital punishment case to reach the state court under the 1974 law.

State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has said he believes the U.S. Supreme Court rulings won't strike down the California law. But a number of legal experts think otherwise.

J. Anthony Kline, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s legal adviser, said in an interview last week:

"I've talked to some district attorneys and public defenders I respect and the consensus is that there is real doubt the California statute will survive."

The deciding vote will be cast by the state Supreme Court, which will hear oral arguments later this year in the murder trial of Donald Bernard, convicted of slaying two teenagers. He is one of 58 persons on Death Row.

Whatever the state court's ruling, experts agree legal battling probably will drag on for years before anyone is executed in the San Quentin gas chamber, where the last execution took place in 1967.

If the court does strike down the current law, supporters like Sen. H.L. Richardson promise another drive to put a new death penalty on the books in California to conform with the new federal rulings.

Brown, a longtime foe of the death penalty, has refused to say what he'd do if the legislature put such a law on his desk.

Since 1974, California has had a new death penalty law making capital punishment mandatory for 11 specific crimes, including murder of an on-duty policeman. The legislature passed the law after voter approval of a ballot initiative.

In its recent rulings, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down death penalty laws in three states that had some form of mandatory capital punishment — North Carolina, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

The death penalties in three other states — Georgia, Texas and Florida — were upheld on the grounds they gave juries enough discretion to consider circumstances of a particular case.

So the issue in California becomes how much leeway the state law gives to judges and juries considering death penalty cases.

"All the statutes upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court permit you to consider the character of the person before you, at least in some vague way. The California law doesn't do that," said Paul Halvonik, the state's acting public defender.

On the issue of discretion, those who believe the state Supreme Court probably will overturn the California law point to the U.S. Supreme Court's language in rejecting North Carolina's mandatory death penalty law:

"A process that accords no significance to relevant facets of the character and record of the individual offender or the circumstances of the particular offense excludes from consideration in the fixing of the ultimate punishment of death the possibility of compassionate or mitigating factors stemming from the diverse frailties of human kind.

"It treats all persons convicted of a designated offense not as uniquely individual human beings but as members of a faceless, undifferentiated mass to be subjected to the blind infliction of the penalty of death."

William Sheffield, the defense attorney in the Bernard case now before the state Supreme Court, said the recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings stated mitigating circumstances had to be considered.

"Most people in California have read earlier press reports and concluded the death penalty here was upheld as constitutional (by the U.S. Supreme Court rulings.) Exactly the opposite is true," said Sheffield.

William James, an assistant state attorney general, had a different reading of the situation. He said the California law does have enough discretion to comply with the recent rulings.

He noted that California's law, like the one in Texas that was upheld, has a two-phase death penalty trial.

But the two laws differ. In Texas, the second phase of the trial, which determines the sentence, looks into the convicted person's background and circumstances of the crime.

In California, a jury that found a defendant guilty of first-degree murder, for example, returns to decide whether the case fits a "special circumstance," such as murder for hire, making the death penalty mandatory.

Richardson, an Arcadia Republican who is a vehement death penalty advocate, said, "I think our law is discretionary in that it gives the judge and jury the capability to look at the criteria" in the law and see if they match the circumstances in a case.

MARIJUANA HAUL — Sheriff's deputies haul away 3,500 pounds of marijuana, part of six tons confiscated Sunday night on Santa Cruz island in the Santa Barbara Channel. Two men were taken into custody. The marijuana was allegedly bound for the Southern California market.

State warranty rules face study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is going to decide whether the state of California can enforce stricter warranty rules than required under federal law.

The FTC will hold hearings in September to determine whether "the California provisions offer greater protection to consumers than the (federal) Warranty Act, and do not unduly burden interstate commerce," the agency announced today.

At issue is a provision in the California statute requiring warrantors to give customers a list of their repair facilities, and several provisions covering warranties on mobile homes.

The FTC will hold public hearings in Los Angeles on Sept. 13 and in Washington on Sept. 20.

Indonesia election to be without criticism

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The Indonesian government is making preparations for the nation's third general election since declaring independence from the Dutch 31 years ago.

Under the rules none of the campaigners next May 2 will be allowed to criticize either government policies or personalities.

Government opponents and other critics maintain that the rules mean balloting will be nothing more than a ritual in which supporters of President Suharto, the army general who took over 10 years ago, will retain control of the parliament.

The Jakarta newspaper Kompas commented: "Every election has its ritual aspects. But a rite, like the general election, must have substance. And this substance is needed by the government itself, namely to strengthen its legitimacy which is not just formal but also moral."

Indonesia is largely run by the same group of generals and admirals who ended the dictatorship of the late President Sukarno 10 years ago.

Suharto formally became a civilian a few weeks ago at the military retirement age of 55 and most other powerful figures wear civilian clothes. Despite this and the upcoming election the country is fundamentally under military rule.

Indonesia's previous elections were in 1955 and 1971.

The last election was marred by allegations of intimidation of candidates and manipulation of some of the 10 competing parties. To assure itself a strong voice in parliament, the government reserved 100 of the 460 seats for its own appointees, three-quarters of them military officers.

Golkar, the acronym for Golongan Karya or "functional groups," had the army's blessing and won 227 seats. Golkar is a blend of civil servants, lawyers, teachers and intellectuals who support Suharto's policies.

The nine other parties were compressed into two even more manageable groups last year. Four Moslem parties merged into the United Development party and five Christian organizations formed the Indonesian Democratic Party — PDI.

Factional disputes prevent the PDI from presenting a common front, diplomats in Jakarta said.

With the exception of the Hindu-Buddhist island of Bali and a few other areas, Moslems are entrenched at all levels, particularly in villages where 30 per cent of the population of 135 million live.

The world's fifth most populous nation is more than 90 per cent Moslem but the constitution declares this a secular state.

Moslem leaders have raised charges of corruption and alleged abuses of power.

The army crushed an uprising by rebellious Moslems in the 1950s. Diplomats say the generals view Moslem militants as security risks and dislike the idea of a Moslem majority in parliament.

With policies and personalities above criticism those on the campaign trail are expected to have little opportunity to discuss the serious problems facing Indonesia.

Per capita income is about 49,200 ruplahs — $120 — a year and the United Nations lists Indonesia as one of the world's poorest places.

The gap between high-income consumers and the mass of poor is so wide that President Suharto last year urged those with wealth not to flaunt it.

"Transmigration" efforts to shift families elsewhere to relieve crowded Java can't keep up with the population explosion. The country as a whole has ample land, 15,577 islands of which about 6,000 are inhabited. But some 32 million live on Java which is about the size of North Carolina and has only 6.9 per cent of the land. This population pressure has made Jakarta one of the great urban slums.

Alleged corruption is probably the thorniest issue which won't be debated in a substantive way during the election campaign.

Corruption and mismanagement were blamed for the financial disaster last year at Pertamina, the state oil corporation. The government stepped in to underwrite about $103 billion in Pertamina debts to the detriment of its foreign exchange reserves. Suharto described it as a "bitter experience."

In his budget speech this year Suharto pleaded with his countrymen to pay their taxes, but added in a remark that was seen as a reference to the corruption of his own tax officials: "Another important measure to ensure state revenues from taxes is the orderly functioning of the tax apparatus itself."

Lt. Gen. Amir Machmud, interior minister and chairman of the General Election Institute, is in charge of making sure the voting comes off to the government's satisfaction.

Use wallcoverings to enhance rooms

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Thoughtful use of wallcoverings can make a dreary room bright, a long room look short and a dull room interesting.

And, for those with limited budgets, a change in wallcovering can achieve an impression of total decoration at a fraction of the cost.

Here are some tips for redecorating with wallcovering from Mrs. Bertha C. Nickel, housing interiors specialist at Oklahoma State University here:

—A boldly patterned wallcovering with large flowers, graphics or the look of tapestry can make a sparsely furnished room appear more cozy.

—High ceilings can be lowered with dark colors, or dramatic designs on the walls, and low ceilings can be raised with vertical stripe .

—Ugly pipes and ducts can be camouflaged by covering them with paint or wallcoverings to match the walls or ceiling.

—For a room without a view, add one in the form of a mural.

—In the kitchen matching vinyl wallcoverings on cabinets, ceiling, and window shades create a festive atmosphere.

—For a small, dull room, select a stunning wallcovering and use matching fabrics for curtains and slipcovers. But limit colors and quantity of furnishings because when a small room becomes too busy, it seems smaller.

Stretch home decorating dollars even further by learning to hang wallcoverings yourself.

"You'll find it easy and fun," Mrs. Nickel says.

State warranty rules face study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is going to decide whether the state of California can enforce stricter warranty rules than required under federal law.

The FTC will hold hearings in September to determine whether "the California provisions offer greater protection to consumers than the (federal) Warranty Act, and do not unduly burden interstate commerce," the agency announced today.

At issue is a provision in the California statute requiring warrantors to give customers a list of their repair facilities, and several provisions covering warranties on mobile homes.

The FTC will hold public hearings in Los Angeles on Sept. 13 and in Washington on Sept. 20.

Indonesia election to be without criticism

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The Indonesian government is making preparations for the nation's third general election since declaring independence from the Dutch 31 years ago.

Under the rules none of the campaigners next May 2 will be allowed to criticize either government policies or personalities.

Government opponents and other critics maintain that the rules mean balloting will be nothing more than a ritual in which supporters of President Suharto, the army general who took over 10 years ago, will retain control of the parliament.

The Jakarta newspaper Kompas commented: "Every election has its ritual aspects. But a rite, like the general election, must have substance. And this substance is needed by the government itself, namely to strengthen its legitimacy which is not just formal but also moral."

Indonesia is largely run by the same group of generals and admirals who ended the dictatorship of the late President Sukarno 10 years ago.

Suharto formally became a civilian a few weeks ago at the military retirement age of 55 and most other powerful figures wear civilian clothes. Despite this and the upcoming election the country is fundamentally under military rule.

Indonesia's previous elections were in 1955 and 1971.

The last election was marred by allegations of intimidation of candidates and manipulation of some of the 10 competing parties. To assure itself a strong voice in parliament, the government reserved 100 of the 460 seats for its own appointees, three-quarters of them military officers.

Golkar, the acronym for Golongan Karya or "functional groups," had the army's blessing and won 227 seats. Golkar is a blend of civil servants, lawyers, teachers and intellectuals who support Suharto's policies.

The nine other parties were compressed into two even more manageable groups last year. Four Moslem parties merged into the United Development party and five Christian organizations formed the Indonesian Democratic Party — PDI.

Factional disputes prevent the PDI from presenting a common front, diplomats in Jakarta said.

With the exception of the Hindu-Buddhist island of Bali and a few other areas, Moslems are entrenched at all levels, particularly in villages where 30 per cent of the population of 135 million live.

The armadillo's name means "little armored one" in Spanish. And that's just what an armadillo is, a little mammal covered with tough, bony plates that look much like the armor once worn by knights.

The armadillo is an American animal. Some are found in South America, some in Mexico and Central America and some in the southern part of the United States.

The armadillo's hard shell is a good protection from most of its enemies. It is connected by movable bands that enable the armadillo to twist and bend.

When frightened, the three-banded armadillo of South America can roll itself into a hard ball, with its feet tucked in out of harm's way, something none of the other armadillos can do.

The armadillo usually makes its home in a deep burrow which it digs in the ground with its long front claws.

Ants are a favorite food and if a nest is discovered, the armadillo quickly licks them up with its long, sticky tongue.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

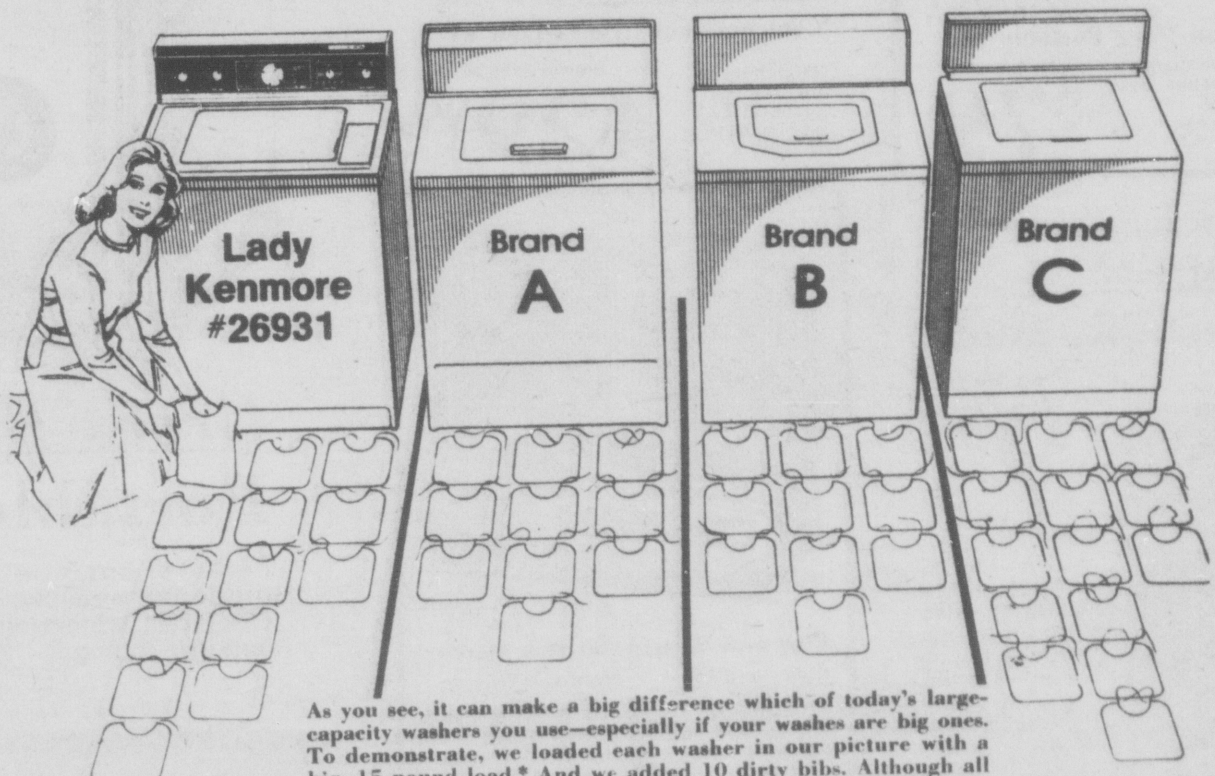
This Lady Kenmore® washer gets big loads cleaner than the next best-selling brands. And we mean cleaner.



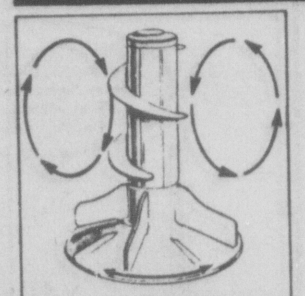
As you see, it can make a big difference which of today's large-capacity washers you use—especially if your washes are big ones. To demonstrate, we loaded each washer in our picture with a big, 15-pound load.* And we added 10 dirty bibs. Although all of the washers got some of the bibs clean, only the Lady Kenmore washer got them all clean. Why? Because only the Lady Kenmore washer has the Dual Action™ agitator!

This Ad Effective thru Sat., July 17

LIMITED TIME ONLY

$100 OFF

Regular Price of DUAL ACTION LADY KENMORE PAIR



Dual Action Agitator

. . . standard on Lady Kenmore washer. Available for large-capacity Kenmore washers from 1974.

How the Dual Action agitator works

This remarkable agitator has a top and bottom that move separately—the top pulls the clothes down into the wash, and the bottom whirls them side-to-side. Results? Testing proved that, compared to a conventional agitator, clothes get cleaner.

*Tests were conducted using a standard 15-pound A.H.A.M. load. Load contained: 3 sheets, 2 tablecloths, 4 shirts, 6 bath towels, 4 "T" shirts, 4 pillow cases, 6 shorts, 6 wash cloths, 5 handkerchiefs. Test results available on written request.

BRAND NAME OR GENERIC DRUGS?

Knowing the difference makes a difference to your budget....

Since a recent California law gives you the option of choosing a brand name drug or its "generic equivalent", some definitions and facts are in order to aid you in making an informed choice.

BRAND VS. GENERIC

When a company first formulates a drug, it identifies it with a chemical or generic name. Then the company gives the drug a name to be used for marketing purposes. This is a brand name.

GENERICS COST LESS

Because their marketing structure is lower, generic drugs cost substantially less. At Value Fair you can be sure that the quality of our generic name drugs is as high as that of the brand name drugs.

THE LAW LETS YOU CHOOSE

California is the fifth state in the nation to give pharmacists the authority to substitute generic for brand name drugs, unless the doctor specifies "no substitute". And at Value Fair, the pharmacist will gladly discuss your preference.

CONSULT YOUR DOCTOR AND US

Discuss the brand vs. generic question with your doctor. Any further questions? Stop by your nearby Value Fair and your pharmacist will be happy to give you any information you may want.

OUR REG. 1.34 79¢

WHY... YOU SHOULD KNOW YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE!

1. High blood pressure (hypertension) is the major cause of death in the U.S. today through heart attack, stroke and kidney failure.
2. High blood pressure is difficult to detect because the disease often has no characteristic symptoms.
3. Statistics show high blood pressure can be a very real factor in reducing life expectancy. High blood pressure kills!
4. A single blood pressure reading may not tell the whole story. Blood pressure may vary from time to time, sometimes rising and sometimes falling.
5. Only your doctor can provide effective treatment for high blood pressure. Visit your doctor regularly, and seek his advice.
6. Many doctors now recommend hypertensive patients monitor their own blood pressure at home.

Ford's son isn't sure he wants dad to win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jack Ford has traveled the campaign trail on behalf of the President, but he isn't sure he wants his father to be elected to a full term. Life, he says, was better before the Ford family moved to 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

President Ford's 24-year-old son said, in an interview with Rolling Stone magazine, that campaigning is "an emotional drag" and that he looked forward to the campaign's close. When asked if, deep in his heart, he wanted his father to be elected, Ford replied:

"Deep in my heart? I don't even have to go that deep. No.

"It's an incredible paradox, you know. I get up in the morning and say to myself, 'God, does it really make sense to do this, even if I'm not convinced that I want him to be President?' "

Predict full recovery for Pat Nixon

LONG BEACH (AP) — Pat Nixon's doctor says the former First Lady will completely recover from her recent stroke but her husband and daughters will have to guard her from the depression that often afflicts stroke victims.

Dr. John Lungren, the Nixon family physician, said Monday that Mrs. Nixon should be out of the hospital within a week to 10 days and should fully recover from the partial paralysis brought on by last week's stroke.

Although the 64-year-old wife of former president Richard Nixon remains listed in serious condition, Lungren said slurring of her speech has diminished and that her blood pressure is under control.

"From the standpoint of function, said neurologist Dr. Stanley van den Noort, who was consulted by Lungren, "I believe she is going to have full recovery...That's our hope and belief."

He added, however, that most stroke victims "usually have some minor problems associated with fatigue."

Lungren said if the former First Lady regains full use of her limbs, "she will probably never have another stroke."

Nixon, his daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, and Julie's husband, David, visited Mrs. Nixon at the hospital twice Monday after she had been moved from the critical care unit to a general treatment area on another floor.

Lungren said the move means Mrs. Nixon will begin a "stepped up" exercise routine. She has been performing simple exercises and taking a few steps for the past several days.

Big Bear blaze under control

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Fire fighters are mopping up the last of a fire that razed 10 structures and burned 5,000 acres of bone-dry brush in the San Bernardino Mountains near Big Bear Lake, officials said.

Close to 1,000 men fought the wind-whipped blaze for four days before bringing it under control at 10 a.m. Monday.

A U.S. Forest Service spokesman said the fire destroyed eight summer cabins, a shed and a garage valued at $90,000. Four firemen received minor and moderate injuries.

Officials still are investigating the cause of the fire.

Another blaze also under investigation burned 10 acres of brush Monday on the south bank of the Pomona Freeway in the Industry area. Officials reported a minor injury to a fireman, but no damages to any structures.

Sharp hikes in property assessments

Pomona has lowest gain (6.4%), while L.V. highest (35%)

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Property values on the Los Angeles County side of the valley are going up an average of 16.52 per cent, Assessor Philip E. Watson announced today.

The increases in assessed valuation, released today, range from 6.41 per cent in Pomona to 35.18 per cent in La Verne, the fastest growing community in the area.

The average increase here is slightly higher than the 14.33 hike recorded for the county, and reflects a $56 million rise in the assessed valuation of property in Pomona, La Verne, San Dimas, Claremont and Walnut.

Assessed valuation is 25 per cent of the market value of the property, Watson explained. Claremont recorded an increase of 31.26 per cent, San Dimas showed 29.90 per cent and Walnut 14.95 per cent.

Over-all, assessed valuation in the five cities on the Los Angeles County side of the valley jumped from $341 million to $397 million. This does not include assessed valuation of property in unincorporated territories such as Diamond Bar and Rowland Heights.

The increase in the assessed valuation was more than anticipated by local officials. It meant additional revenue both for cities and school districts.

In Pomona, City Administrator Gerald Gonce said the budget had been based on a 1.5 per cent increase in assessed valuation. He said that though the finance department has not had a chance to refigure the additional income, it will mean considerably more money.

And in La Verne, where city officials already had an inkling that assessments would take a big jump, the budget had been worked out on a 20 per cent increase. City Treasurer Gerry Peck said the higher assessments will yield at least $20,000 more.

Watson said nearly half of the real estate in the county was reassessed this year, with the largest increases ascribed to those areas which showed the greatest demand in real estate and the largest growth.

Assessed valuation of Del Mar, a small seaside community, went up on average of 96 per cent. But there were areas whose values dropped. They included Duarte, whose value went down .38 per cent and Monrovia, with a drop of 2.82 per cent.

The county assessor said with the assessed valuation rising so steeply, the county will find itself with "many millions of additional dollars. The supervisors could drop the tax rate, if they want to."

While the average throughout the valley was held down by Pomona's light increase, there were homes in the Claremont area whose value jumped nearly 100 per cent, mostly to make up for past years.

Watson pointed out that even if the taxing agencies here do not call for additional levies, they will get large yields of additional income from the reassessments.

Besides the cities the county assessor also recomputed the value of property within local school districts. Bonita had the largest jump at 30.46 per cent; Claremont was close behind with 29.88 per cent, Walnut Valley followed with 12.26 per cent, and Pomona showed 6.90 per cent.

Watson's breakdown for the cities showed these increases:

Pomona — from $192,196,532 to $204,514,458; Claremont — from $54,331,765 to $71,313,698; La Verne — from $31,562,081 to $42,665,126; San Dimas — from $41,775,474 to $54,266,440; Walnut — from $21,129,029 to $24,286,838.

Assessed valuation of the local school district showed:

Pomona — from $220,325,727 to $235,522,623; Bonita — from $77,537,116 to $101,157,251; Claremont — from $71,340,052 to $92,654,118; and Walnut Valley — from $54,112,299 to $60,746,724.

The county assessor said the supervisors are scheduled to set the county tax rates next month.

SIDEWALKS OF NEW YORK — An elderly woman dances to music of a band participating in a "block party" in vicinity of Madison Square Garden. Festival was one of many as National Demo Convention opened.

Platform, VP selection spice convention

NEW YORK (AP) — While Democrats prepared today for a long convention session devoted primarily to laying out their platform, Jimmy Carter, their choice for president, worked in seclusion narrowing his search for a running mate.

After a morning meeting with New Jersey delegates, Carter's schedule was clear. Jody Powell, press secretary to the former Georgia governor, said Carter wanted to use the time for "some working and thinking" about a running mate.

Carter intimates said it was likely he would make his decision today but would not make it known until after the convention nominates him for president Wednesday night.

Most speculation about Carter's choice centered on Sens. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

Others under consideration were Sens. John H. Glenn Jr., of Ohio, Adlai E. Stevenson III of Illinois, Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Frank Church of Idaho.

As co-keynote speaker, Glenn shared the spotlight at Monday night's opening session of the convention.

But the star of the show was the other keynote speaker, Rep. Barbara Jordan of Texas. The black woman who became a national figure as a member of the House Judiciary Committee during its impeachment hearings two years ago was cheered for more than three minutes when she appeared on the podium.

For more than two hours, speakers had called for party unity, for a renewed sense of national purpose and had berated the policies of the Nixon and Ford administrations.

Delegates listened with less than total attention. They milled in the aisles, they chatted, they yawned, they ignored pleas for attention from the presiding officer.

But when Miss Jordan steped to the podium the hall came alive, delegates leaped from their seats to cheer and then sat attentive as she spoke with deep tones that echoed through the hall.

"We must restore our belief in ourselves," she told them. "We must address and master the future together.

"It can be done if we restore the belief that we share a common national endeavor, if we restore our sense of national community."

"We are a people in search of a national community," she said, in order "to fulfill our national purpose, to create and sustain a society in which all of us are equal."

In an interview on the NBC "Today" show, Mondale said he'd had no word from Carter or any one on his staff about the vice-presidential nomination.

Mondale said that during a discussion with Carter last week in Plains, Ga., "I told him I was not interested in a ceremonial office ... that I wanted to be heard." Mondale said Carter replied that he "wouldn't want a vice president of any other kind."

Miss Jordan's name had been included in an early list of potential running mates under consideration by Carter.

Two Pomonans among seven slain in Fullerton shootings

Two Pomona men were among the seven persons shot to death in the library of Cal State Fullerton by a 37-year-old janitor despondent over the breakup of his marriage.

The Pomona men slain were Paul Herzberg, 30, and Bruce Jacobson, 32.

The suspect in the Monday morning shooting, Edward Charles Allaway, is being described by authorities as a quiet, clean-cut loner distraught over the failure of his marriage to his 22-year-old wife, Bonnie.

Allaway surrendered himself to police shortly after the shooting. He was taken into custody at a nearby motel.

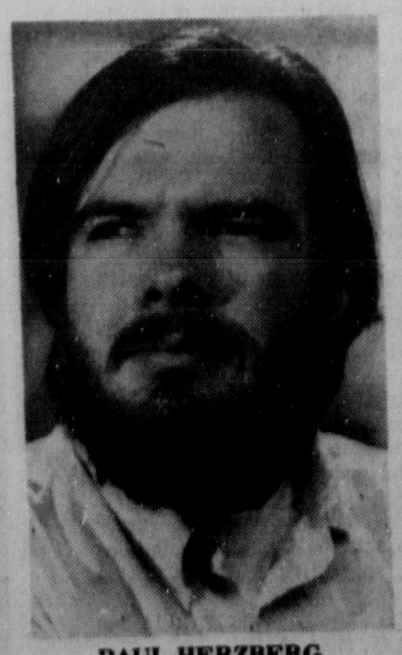
Herzberg had worked for Cal State Fullerton as a photographer since 1970. He prepared movies, slides and other photographic material for professors to use in classrooms.

He and his wife, Judy, 28, moved to Pomona from Brea in 1972.

She didn't learn of her husband's death until about four hours after the murders, when the president of the college, Donald Shields, reached her at work.

The Herzbergs have no children.

Herzberg's mother, Mrs. Bernice Davis of Orange, Va., was contacted about two hours later by friends and relatives while on her vacation with her husband in Vermont.



PAUL HERZBERG

Funeral arrangements at Todd's Memorial Chapel will await Mrs. Davis' arrival in Pomona.

Mr. and Mrs. Herzberg met while both were students at Cal State Fullerton.

Jacobson had been an employe of the university since 1966. He was an equipment technician, specializing in audio equipment in the media center.

The Orange County Coroner's Office listed Jacobson's address as 2020 Nichols St., Pomona.

His widow, Sondra, is also an employe of the university, working in the personnel department. They had no children.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

The shooting spree left bodies strewn throughout the basement of the library building. One policeman said later, "It was just too damn gruesome. It looked like Vietnam."

Authorities said Allaway, a custodian at the school, failed to report for his regular 6 a.m. shift, but turned up about 9 allegedly carrying a rifle.

"I'm gonna' get you SOBs for messing around with my wife," Allaway

Ted Mack, amateur hour emcee, succumbs at 72

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Ted Mack, who presided over the Original Amateur Hour program on radio and television, is dead at 72.

Mack died about 4 p.m. Monday, according to a spokesman at Phelps Memorial Hospital.

Mack began his career in entertainment as a band leader and vaudeville master of ceremonies in the 1920s.

In 1935 he joined the Major Bowes Original Amateur Hour radio show as a talent scout. He succeeded Bowes as emcee of the program in 1948.

Born William Edward Maguiness in Greeley, Colo., Mack studied law at Denver University but turned to a career in music.

He joined the Ben Pollock orchestra in 1926 as a saxophone and clarinet player. Glenn Miller was a member of the band at that time and after Mack left it the following year, Benny Goodman became its clarinetist.

He and his wife, the former Marguerite Overholt, who survives, had their home in Irvington. They observed their 50th wedding anniversary last March.

Patty's life saved by 'a freak chance happening'—Emily

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Emily Harris has told jurors a story of life on the run with Patricia Hearst—a time when each day was lived "as if on the edge of a precipice" and death was around every corner.

Miss Hearst herself escaped by hours—and by sheer luck— an appointment with death, Mrs. Harris revealed.

The 29-year-old Mrs. Harris' unusually personal opening statement, delivered in the role of cocounsel, set the stage for prosecution testimony to begin today against Mrs. Harris and her husband, William, charged with kidnaping, assault and robbery along wtih Miss Hearst.

The 22-year-old newspaper heiress is to be tried separately after sentencing on her San Francisco bank robery conviction.

Miss Hearst's name arose frequently in Mrs. Harris' first memoir of their fugitive days.

She recalled the events of May 16, 1974:

"A freak chance happening" saved Miss Hearst's life, Mrs. Harris said—but for a twist of fate, the newspaper heiress would have been slain with five other Symbionese Liberation Army members in a fiery shootout May 17, 1974.

"Bill and I were going shopping," Mrs. Harris recalled.

Patricia "Mizmoon" Soltysik, an SLA soldier, was to have joined the outing. "But at the last minute, she stayed home and Patricia Hearst stated a desire to come with us. That chance decision cost Mizmoon her life and saved Patricia Hearst from death."

Miss Soltysik died on her 26th birthday in a battle with police which left only charred remains of her body and those of five other SLA "soldiers" at the hideout Miss Hearst had left the day before.

But Mrs. Harris, defending her husband and herself, said Miss Hearst fired two machine guns without orders.

"In the course of these events, Bill and I never fired a shot...We never harmed anyone," she said, recounting how Miss Hearst opened fire on Mel's Sporting Goods store to cover the Harris' escape from an alleged shoplifting.

"These events at Mel's were totally unexpected," she said, "and Patricia Hearst's resulting actions in firing of the automatic weapon were spontaneous...

"...Patricia Hearst was not there to protect Bill or me," Mrs. Harris said. "If anything, it was the reverse."

"We anticipated no problems," she said. "If we had, Patricia Hearst would have been the last person we would have wanted to involve....She was the least experienced of us all."

Miss Hearst has admitted that she fired the guns as "a reflex action" drilled into her by the Harrises. Miss Hearst, kidnaped by the SLA on Feb. 4, 1974, portrayed the Harrises as captors, not comrades. But Mrs. Harris depicted the heiress as a new convert to the SLA.

"She was not a revolutionary," Mrs. Harris said, "and she was not familiar with weapons....She could not be an heiress one day and a trained commando the next. Patricia Hearst was simply a young woman going through a process of change, learning about herself...and she had made the decision to go through this process in the company of people who considered themselves revolutionaries."

Mrs. Harris was calm and softspoken as she faced the jury. She wore blue jeans and a print blouse and read from a yellow legal pad at a lectern. She became slightly flustered when the prosecutor objected to her legal style and, during a recess, she wept outside the jury's view.

But she regained her composure quickly and concluded her remarks, urging jurors not to be swayed by politics.

"The evidence will show that Patricia Hearst, Bill and I were members of the SLA," she said. "...You will hear that Bill and I considered ourselves to be revolutionaries."

This, she said, is irrelevant. "Our political beliefs were only a backdrop."

Mrs. Harris indicated that the recounting of that fateful day in upcoming testimony would be painful to her.

"That short period of time made an indelible impression on Bill and myself and affected our lives," she said softly. "The events began with Bill and myself and Patricia Hearst going shopping...It ended with six of our friends lying dead in the ashes of a burned-out house on 54th street."

Mrs. Harris' remarks followed a statement of the bare facts of the case by Deputy Dist. Atty. Samuel Mayerson and an explanation of the legal defense by attorney Leonard Weinglass.

William Harris, acting as his own attorney, reserved his opening statement until the defense case begins.

Lockheed payoff scandal

Three more testify

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The last of three Lockheed figures subpoenaed to face American and Japanese prosecutors in connection with the giant aerospace firm's admitted multimillion-dollar payments in Japan has begun tesimony.

A. H. Elliott, a marketing executive involved in sales of the firm's TriStar airbuses during the time the payoffs occurred, strode through a crowd of Japanese reporters and photographers as he entered the federal courthouse here. Elliott and his attorney declined comment.

Elliott was preceded at the unusual deposition sessions by J. W. Clutter, former head of Lockheed's Far Eastern operations, who testified Friday, and by A. Carl Kotchian, former vice chairman and chief operating officer of the Burbank-based aerospace company.

It was Kotchian who admitted under questioning by Senate investigators earlier this year that the company had paid at least $12 million in Japan to promote the sale of its products. Tokyo authorities have arrested eight Japanese businessmen in connection with the payoffs scandal, which has threatened to topple the Liberal Democratic government of Prime Minister Takeo Miki.

Murders linked to smuggling of illegal aliens farm workers

STOCKTON (AP) — Smuggling of illegal alien farm workers is considered a common link in five recent northern San Joaquin Valley murders, a U.S Border Patrol agent says.

The homicides, all in Stanislaus and Merced counties, indicate increasing violence in the large-scale smuggling of Mexican illegals to work in California's fields, said Jim Kerr, resident agent in charge of the Border Patrol office here.

"Smuggling of aliens is a multimillion-dollar proposition here in the San Joaquin Valley, and it and the violence it breeds are going to get worse," Kerr warned in an interview.

Authorities listed these homicide cases that, although not necessarily directly connected with each other, have the common denominator of involving illegal alien smuggling:

—Ramiro Ramirez, 28, an illegal alien bearing phony identification papers, was gunned down at a Livingston bar on July 5. Charged with his murder was Gutierrez Serrano, 29, another alien. Police linked both to smuggling operations.

—The stabbed body of Luouis Cervantes Rodriguez, 63, of Avenal, was found in a Salida vineyard on July 1. Detectives say he may have been killed at a Crows Landing tavern during a misunderstanding with "coyotes," the nickname for those who smuggle aliens across the border for money.

—The beaten body of illegal alien Miguel Anaya, 36, was found at Newman on June 24. Authorities believe he was a "coyote."

—An illegal alien is being sought for investigation of murdering two men in western Stanislaus County.

The shooting of Ramirez was the first homicide in Livingston, a Merced County community of 3,900 residents, in more than a decade.

Food ads stir up controversy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Proposals that would ban the word "natural" from cereal boxes are being hotly debated at public hearings here.

The Federal Trade Commission is sponsoring the hearings, which began Monday and continue to July 30 and which one grocery representative called "a waste of taxpayers' money."

The FTC has proposed regulations to require that advertising for food and drink items — not including alcoholic beverages — must contain nutritional information about the product.

The proposed rules would prohibit advertising a food as natural or organic.

They would prohibit advertising that represents that a food "contains, provides, enhances or is a source of energy or food energy" unless it clearly discloses the energy is supplied by calories and the number of calories per serving.

And they would require products to meet certain criteria if they are advertised as low in calories, fat or cholesterol.

Paul Hyman, representing the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., said the proposed rules were "riddled with constitutional holes."

He said his group is vitally interested in providing consumers with truthful and meaningful nutritional information.

But he contended that what he called "bureaucratic overregulation" can only discourage voluntary nutrition advertising and that the FTC "is not qualified by scientific expertise to deal with the needs of consumers for nut.ition information."

George M. Briggs, a nutrition professor at the University of California at Berkeley, said the regulations are necessary to ensure that consumers receive "truthful, accurate information about the food products they are urged to eat through advertising."

Barbara Erickson, a home economist and consumer advocate from Sacramento, said the proposed regulations "could be a very viable, supportive tool in nutrition education."

The hearings will move to Chicago Sept. 13, to Dallas Oct. 11 and Washington, D.C., Nov. 15.

Free immunizations given Wednesday

Immunizations against 10-day measles, rubella (German measles), polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough will be given free of charge at the Pomona Health Center, 750 S. Park Ave., Pomona, Wednesday from 5 to 7 p.m.

Today, it is possible to prevent and control many diseases which once threatened the lives of children and adults. But many children have not received this protection, according to Dr. Annabel J. Teberg, health officer.

Individuals are encouraged to get the needed boosters for polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough since most immunizations do not last for life.

Children must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. Those attending should provide their previous immunization records. These records will be reviewed to determine the immunizations needed by each individual.

To avoid last minute confusion, parents are urged to attend this clinic rather than to wait until the end of the summer to obtain the required immunization for fall school registration.

A high blood pressure testing clinic will be held at the same time. Special nutrition information will be available. Adults who are not under the care of a private physician or a member of a health care group are invited to attend the clinic.

Additional information about the evening clinics may be obtained by calling 623-6811, ext. 528.

The developer has submitted samples of stain and paint colors, but no design of common parkways and the other aspects.

The commission also will look at residential unit developments for Hughes Development Corp.'s tract of homes at the northwest corner of Mills Avenue and Base Line Road, and for John D. Lusk and Son's tract south of Miramar Avenue between Forbes and Bonnie Brae avenues.

The commission also will look at proposals to construct a duplex at 507 Yale Ave., to remodel the danson restaurant at 109 Yale Ave., and to remodel the facade of the building at the corner of First Street and Harvard Avenue.

The Chino school board will conduct public interviews of candidates for the seat vacated by Roy Ward at tonight's special meeting at 7.

Eight individuals have announced intentions of seeking the appointment. The newest candidates are the Rev. Robert Erickson, pastor of St. Margaret Mary Church; Dennis Weik, part owner of a Chino cabinet shop; Earl P. Owens, a consultant to Los Angeles County Schools; and Paul Peterson, a Cal Poly Pomona professor.

Others include Patrick Hooven, a teacher who lost in a tie breaker drawing for a third available seat in the March 1975 election; Robert Bertschinger, a mayoral candidate this year; Kenneth Main, a write-in council candidate last March; and Carol Dobrikin, a teacher.

Walnut's annexation proceedings to be discussed by council tonight

Looking two years ahead, the Walnut City Council will decide Wednesday night whether to start proceedings toward annexations to its open space and landscape maintenance district.

The district itself already affects 390 homeowners in the Grant, La Salana Corp. and Larwin Corp. tracts. It was approved June 23 over opposition from many residents in an audience of 100.

The initial district was two years in preparation, according to city officials, and annexations would require the same amount of time.

One of the tracts annexation would affect, developed by the La Solana Corp., already is completed. It consists of 124 units.

Others, being developed by Umark Corp. and Larwin Corp., are partially constructed or not yet constructed.

2 elderly women held as hostages killed in separate robberies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two hostages — both elderly women — were killed in separate robberies, one a bank hold-up involving a high-speed auto chase and the other a supermarket stick-up in which the bandit purportedly beat his victim to death, then killed himself.

One of the bank robbers also was killed Monday when he tried to shoot his way out of the arms of pursuing police, authorities said.

Police said four persons were hurt, one hostage died and one suspect was killed following the robbery of a Bank of America branch in the Wilshire District.

A separate robbery attempt at a Safeway store left two dead when an armed bandit bludgeoned an elderly South Pasadena woman to death and then turned his gun on himself, authorities said.

Police said two suspected robbers entered the bank at 11 a.m. and opened fire after a teller summoned police with a silent alarm. One customer was wounded by gunfire and another was struck by flying glass, police said. A policeman was slightly injured in the ensuing chase.

The robbers fled with two customers and a bank manager as hostages, firing a sawed-off shotgun and handgun at pursuing officers.

One of the hostage customers and the manager were shot after being dragged from the bank, but authorities said they did not know if police or the suspects fired the wounding shots.

Sgt. R. Carleton, of the Wilshire Division Robbery-Homicide squad, said "it's possible" the hostages were felled by police gunfire during the 10-mile-long chase.

One of the hostages, 78-yearold Osee Newfield died late Monday at USC-County Medical Center from a gunshot wound to the head.

One suspect — as yet unidentified — also died Monday, and another, Aaron Weaver, 24, Los Angeles, was in serious condition, police said. Weaver was booked for investigation of murder and armed robbery.

The woman bank manager was treated for a gunshot wound and released from Queen of Angels Hospital. The two customers hurt inside the bank were in fair condition.

Twenty police units joined in the chase, which ended when a flattened left front tire brought the speeding car to a halt, police said. One suspect was killed after he tried to flee as policemen reached him.

A bank bag containing the stolen money and a large quantity of .45-caliber ammunition allegedly was found in the car, police said.

In the other stick-up, police said two suspects waited inside a Safeway store in South Pasadena to rob armored truck drivers expected on a delivery.

Police arrested one of the suspects, later identified as William Wolf, 26, of Los Angeles, then conducted a house-to-house search before cornering the second suspect in the house of an elderly woman.

Officers said the suspect — later identified as Chuck Fairbanks, 26, of Los Angeles — refused to surrender. Police said they entered the house after hearing a shot and discovered Sarah Gardiner, 80, bound and beaten to death and Fairbanks dead from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Wolf was booked for investigation of murder and robbery. Police said they are looking for a third bandit who may have been an accomplice.

AIMING FOR A MILLION

Plank on abortion may stir convention debate

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrats are expected to give quick approval tonight to a platform pledging "an orderly beginning" to national health insurance and a guaranteed minimum income. The only ripple may be a convention floor debate over abortion.

A spokeswoman for the platform committee said some delegates may attempt to change the wording of the platform plank on abortion. The plank now opposes any attempt to amend the Constitution to overturn U.S. Supreme Court decisions upholding the legality of abortion.

"Many, many delegates are unhappy with that language, although I doubt it's a majority," the spokeswoman said.

Among delegates disapproving of the abortion plank are members of the Missouri contingent who said today they hoped to force a floor debate on the issue by getting the platform committee to endorse a minority report challenging the plank. That would take approval by a fourth of the platform committee.

If the report got to the convention floor for debate it would take a two-thirds majority to change the abortion plank, something platform committee members see as unlikely.

But passage of the whole platform, which also supports legislation to reduce unemployment to 3 per cent in four years, was expected to go smoothly.

Powder Puff Derby pilots injured when plane crashes

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — Two California women whose airplane ran out of gas and crashed into a backyard garden in the transcontinental Powder Puff Derby were listed in serious but stable condition by hospital officials.

A single-engine plane piloted by Mrs. Kay Huffman and Mrs. Lynn Greer, both of Riverside, Calif., apparently ran out of gasoline about 10 miles from Wood County Airport, their scheduled landing spot.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the aircraft was going into a strong headwind when it attempted to land on a golf driving range just outside of town Sunday.

Instead, the aircraft landed in a garden patch in the back yard of Mrs. Pauline Patterson. She said she was getting ready to hose down her patio when she heard something that "sounded like the roof was falling in or a building collapsing.

There was no explosion or fire, the FAA said, although there was "severe damage" to the aircraft. A reporter on the scene said a wing had apparently been clipped off on a tree prior to the crash.

Wood County Airport, some 10 miles north of here, was an alternate refueling stop for the 196 aircraft in the female-only race.

The fliers had been competing for a $10,000 first prize in what might be the final running of the 2,915-mile event. The sponsoring All-Woman Transcontinental Air Race Inc. of Dallas blame fuel and money shortages, crowded skies and a lack of cooperation from the FAA as reasons for the demise of the race.

Growers dump onions; market price down

RIVERSIDE (AP) — The pungent, nose-wrinkling aroma of onions may become familiar to residents of this Southern California community: Farmers are dumping them by the ton to rot on the ground.

Ken Foulke, an agricultural biologist said growers have dumped more than 200 tons of red and yellow onions, including bagged ones ready for the market, because of a glutted market.

"Many growers don't know if they will harvest them. They can't afford to," Foule said.

Onions prices have dropped to as low as 15 cents a pound in markets, down from the 30-cent prices that caused many housewives sharp pains in their budgets.

Foulke said the overabundance of onions — which sent the price spiraling down — stems from last year when growers reaped high profits on crops, encouraging larger plantings this year.

purportedly shouted. Seconds later, he allegedly opened fire. Within five minutes, the nine victims were cut down.

"It was a bloodbath," one observer said.

Others killed were identified as Karges 41, Santa Fe Springs, a custodian; Deborah Paulsen, 25, Anaheim, a custodian; Stephen Becker, 32, a library assistant; Seth Fessenden, 72, Fullerton, professor emeritus of speech communication, and Frank Teplansky, 51, Anaheim, an IMC graphic artist.

Listed in serious condition at St. Jude's Hospital, Fullerton, were Maynard Hoffman, 64, Fullerton, supervisor of custodial services, and Donald Keran, 55, Fullerton, a library employe.

Allaway was described by his supervisor as a soft-spoken, diligent worker.

"He was a quiet type," said Amol Navarro, a chief custodian who said he had known Allaway since he was hired 18 months ago.

"Whenever he went on a break, he would go alone. And he never seemed to eat lunch with anyone. He always seemed to want to be alone."

Navarro said Allaway "never cussed, had a good attendance record at work and was cleancut."

Navarro added, however, that Allaway had been troubled for the past few weeks over the separation from his esranged wife, Bonnie, 22.

"He had a problem," Navarro said. "He told me he had a family problem and the last two days he worked, he was awful hard to get along with."

Navarro said Allaway had tried to fight a co-worker last Friday, and he had to separate the two and give them different work assignments.

Bonnie Allaway is employed at the Hilton Inn in Fullerton. Following the shooting, her husband drove there from the campus and spoke with her before telephoning police to turn himself in.

A waitress at the hotel coffee shop said, "Bonnie said he called her early this morning and told her not to go to work. She said he told her it was his last day to live."

"I think they'd been married two or three years," said Mary Ferguson, Mrs. Allaway's supervisor at the motel, "and Bonnie had recently filed for divorce.

"She's a real quiet, sweet girl. He apparently didn't tell her anything about what went on at the school," Mrs. Ferguson said of his visit with his wife after the shooting.

"She didn't realize what had happened until the police arrived. Then she just backed up against a wall and started crying."

Four suspects arrested after Stater Bros. Market is robbed

Two armed men held several employes and customers of the Stater Bros. Market at 550 S. Garey Ave. at pistol-point late Monday afternoon while robbing the place of $1,100. POMONA police reported.

Officers a few minutes later arrested four suspects at Eighth Street and Hamilton Boulevard and booked them in connection with the robbery. All the money taken in the holdup was recovered, police said.

Employe Sheila Burnett, 22, said the men entered just before 5:30. They were wearing gloves and drew .38-caliber revolvers as they approached. One hit her on the back and announced that they were robbing the store.

The men took money from the cash registers while covering the customers and employes with their weapons. Then, as they fled out the door, one hit his hand against the door causing the revolver he carried to fire. Employe John Truehitt, 18, said the shot almost hit his foot.

The two ran across the parking lot and through an alley to a van parked nearby and were driven away. It was a description of the van which led to the arrest of the four suspects.

The suspects vehicle was stopped and its occupants forced to lie on the ground while police searched and handcuffed them. Inside the van officers reported finding two pistols and the loot.

Those arrested were James Wayne King, 25, Larry Darnell Taylor, 25, John Lee Hodge, 29, and Norma Jean Money, 28, all of Pomona.

Pair booked

A 21-year-old Montclair man and a juvenile seen climbing up a fire escape at the Pomona Valley Miniature Golf building at 1500 W. Seventh St. in UPALND Monday night were arrested by police on burglary charges.

Tony Ramirez, 21, of 9178 Camulos Ave., was booked in the West End Jail this morning for investigation of second degree burglary and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The juvenile was released to his parents.

Police said that Ramirez and the youth were seen on the fire escape by Officer Lonnie Poe. Poe and other officers called to the golf course ordered the two to come down and placed them under arrest.

Detectives said that Ramirez will be questioned by officers in connection with the burglary Sunday night or Monday morning of the miniature golf course that netted burglars about $8,000 in weekend receipts. Police said it was unlikely that the early burglary was committed by the same burglars, however.

In the Sunday night burglary, burglars pried off the steel grill of an office window. They entered the office and managed to find a safe key and opened the safe containing the $8,000.

Pastor Robbed

A masked bandit robbed a POMONA church pastor Monday morning, taking a small amount of cash, the victim's wrist watch and his car.

The victim, the Rev. D. M. Newton, 50, said he was in the office of the White Avenue Baptist Church at 675 S. White Ave. when there was a knock on the door. When he opened the door he was confronted by a man wearing a black ski mask and holding a small pistol.

The man forced the victim into the office, tied his hands behind his back and went through his pockets, taking his car keys before fleeing.

The robber was described as black, 22, 5 feet 10 and 180 pounds. He wore a blue, short-sleeved shirt blue jeans and gloves.

Teenager attacked

ONTARIO police are seeking four teen-agers in connection with a robbery and attack on a 15-year-old Upland boy Sunday morning.

The boy told officers four Latins struck up a conversation with him at the Thunderbird Bowling Lanes on Mountain Avenue at the San Bernardino Freeway at 3:07 a.m. Suddenly, the youths punched him to the ground, knocking him unconscious.

He woke up and found seven cents missing from his pockets.

Police were looking for the youths, who reportedly drove a lowered silver Chevrolet.

Boy arrested

POMONA police late Monday morning arrested a 14-year-old boy they said admitted making firebombs.

The youth was arrested after a witness said he saw a firebomb thrown into Reservoir Street just north of the Pomona Freeway. The arrest was made in the 2300 block of S. Marquette Street where officers reported finding several bottles containing gasoline and wicks in a backyard.

The suspect was booked on suspicion of possessing and manufacturing firebombs.

No landing site but lots of data on Mars

PASADENA (AP) — Though scientists haven't had much luck in finding a safe Martian landing site for Viking 1, they say they are learning a great deal about the mysterious planet as the spacecraft continues its orbital trek.

"We have spent an enormous amount of time trying to find a landing site," Dr. Gentry Lee, head of the project's science analysis team said Monday. "But the synthesis of Mars as a plent is starting to come together."

Much of the data has been used to try to gain an understanding of the rarified Martian atmosphere, likened by one scientist Monday to "a smoggy day in Pasadena."

In most of the recent photogaphs scrutinized by the landing team and released to the news media, the Martian surface could be seen quite clearly, making the atmosphere seem all but transparent.

"The Viking pictures that you've been seeing, pictures of the surface, show no haze or anything like that, so one would get the impression that the atmosphere is crystal clear," said Dr. Bill Baum of the orbiter imaging team.

"In fact, the Martian atmosphere is far from that. It's much like a smoggy day in Pasadena."

Baum explained that while trying to scrutinize the surface of Mars for possible landing hazards scientists had "stretched" Viking's photographs to clear away atmospheric features. When those features are left in, he said, Mars looks much like a polluted city on earth when viewed from a mountaintop.

"The sky, if you could be down on the surface of Mars and look out," said Baum, "would not look blue like it does on the earth. It would look sort of white or gray."

That is because there appears to be a scattering of fine particles in the Martian atmosphere, much thicker than those in the earth's atmosphere. The particles seem to be either ice clouds or dust storms kicked up by Martian surface winds.

The landing team, meanwhile, continued its search for a safe place to touch down, having twice postponed landings because of rugged terrain on the Martian surface.

Scientists were optimistic about a third potential landing site, called the "West-Northwest" site, and are hopeful that it lacks many of the rough edges and huge craters that caused them to delay the previous landings.

"We have identified what looks to be a promising elipse (landing site)," said mission director Tom Young.

Young said scientists would look at still another possible landing area Monday night, and possibly decide by Tuesday whether a landing at the West-Northwest site would be attempted.

If so, Young said, the Viking 1 lander would make its descent to the surface of Mars on July 20.

U.S. defends Israel raid in Uganda

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United States defended Israel's rescue of hijacked hostages from Uganda and called on the Security council Monday night to rally the members of the United Nations against hijacking and international terrorism.

Ambassador William W. Scranton reminded the 15-nation council that the Israeli raid on Uganda's Entebbe airport on July 4 never would have taken place if Palestinian and West German terrorists had not hijacked an Air France jetliner and taken it there with some 250 hostages.

In Brussels, Belgium, the heads of nine West European governments promised today to prosecute or to extradite anyone who takes hostages. They called for a worldwide agreement to do the same.

Straight Talk from UCB/Number 7

9 ways to go to the bank without going to the bank.

1. Bank by mail.

It's great. And unlike some banks and savings & loans, UCB pays postage both ways.

To arrange it, call the Customer Service Representative at your branch for a supply of postage-paid deposit envelopes.

2. Save automatically.

With our Automatic Savings Plan.

Just decide how much you want deposited, and on what dates each month. The money is then transferred from your UCB checking to your UCB savings account. Automatically. At no extra charge.

If you already have both a UCB checking and savings account, phone our Customer Service Representative to start your Automatic Savings Plan. If not, come in to open them.

3. Write yourself a loan.

Yes, you can if you qualify for Balance Plus.®

All you do is write a check for more than you have in the bank. We transfer the money into your account from the unused part of your credit line. It's a loan to you – ready any time you need it. Like any time you spot a bargain.

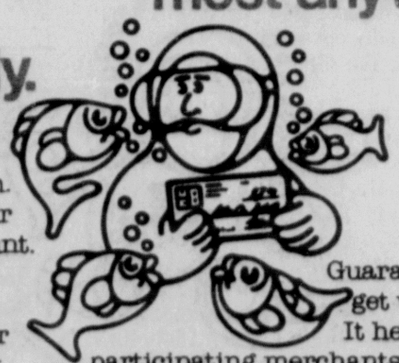
For more information about Balance Plus, call the Customer Service Representative at any branch for a brochure and application.

4. Carry less cash.

A UCB Master Charge® Card gives you credit with over a million merchants around the world.

To get an application, phone the Customer Service Representative at any UCB branch. No UCB account required.

5. Cash checks most anywhere.



With the Check Guarantee Card you can get with Balance Plus. It helps identify you to participating merchants throughout California. They're more likely to accept your personal check, up to $100. Or use your card at any UCB office to make it easier to cash a check, up to $150.

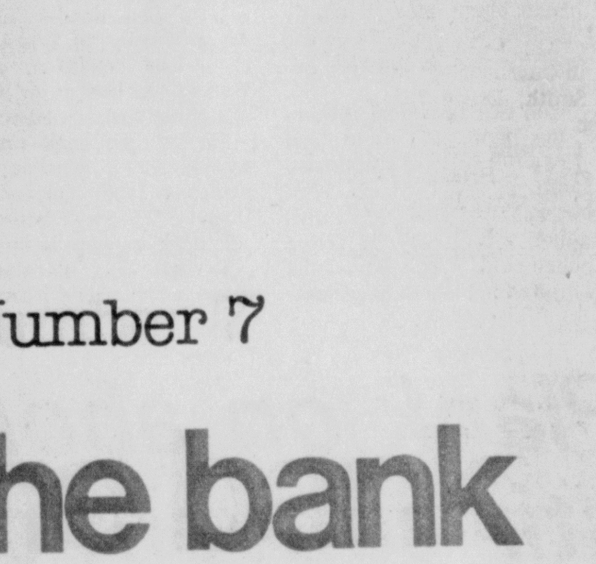
6. Move your money by phone.

Recently a customer called her UCB branch about a family emergency. Because of it, she had to catch the next jet to Boston. But to finance her trip, she'd have to transfer funds from her savings to her checking account. Could this be done by phone?

It can, in special situations. Because she called one of our officers during regular banking hours, we could make the transfer promptly. So our customer left for the airport without delay. With checkbook in hand.

7. Bank from your car.

Some of our branches have tellers perched at windows you drive up to. Some have teller windows that pedestrians can walk up to. And some have extended hours.



8. Bank when we're closed.

Many UCB branches have envelope drops. Just drop off your mail deposit, loan payment, or whatever, any old time.

If you have your own business and need to put a bundle of hard cash in the bank at night, see the Operations Manager at your UCB branch. He or she can tell you about the night depository. You have your own special key; your deposit pouch slides into a receiving safe that's inside the bank for processing the next day.

9. Deposit your pay automatically.

If your company's payroll is handled by UCB, you can arrange for your employer to deposit your pay for you.

You can have all of it automatically put into your checking account. Or some there, and some in your savings account. Or have some of it deposited, and some of it come to you as a check you can cash.

This is not only the easiest way to get your money to the bank; it's also the quickest. And at no extra cost. Ask your payroll accounting department about automatic deposits.

So if you don't find bank lobbies so exciting, or if it's difficult to get to your present bank when it's open, maybe we're the bank that belongs in your life.

Yet the need for blood to be used for hospitalized patients continues during the summer, a Red Cross spokesman said.

Pomona Red Cross has new booklet

A new Red Cross booklet, "First Aid for Foreign Body Obstruction of the Airways," is available now, according to Dwight L. Hanawalt, director of safety programs for Pomona Red Cross Chapter.

The 22-page booklet provides instruction in the prevention, early recognition and emergency treatment of blocked air passages, usually caused by food particles — the so-called "cafe coronary."

Foreign body obstruction of the airway rates sixth as a cause of accidental death in the United States and accounts for approximately 2,900 deaths a year, according to the National Safety Council.

Hanawalt urges all interested residents to contact the Pomona Red Cross Chapter so that courses in this emergency care can be scheduled.

The new material will also be incorporated in future first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation courses, as well as presented as separate seminars to individuals or groups with special interest in the subject.

The booklet itself is designed primarily to be used by authorized Red Cross instructors as a guide for teaching this emergency care in existing Red Cross safety or nursing courses.

A companion poster with illustrations on emergency procedures to aid choking victims will also be available soon, said Hanawalt. The poster is ideal, Hanawalt said, for posting in restaurants and other public or private dining areas, so that restaurant employees and bystanders will be aware of the annual "cafe coronary" toll and will be better prepared to provide assistance to chokers.

Hanawalt emphasized, however, that it is not always easy for a bystander to differentiate between an airway blockage and a heart attack or stroke. For this reason, it is important that people enroll for Red Cross instruction so that they may make a swift judgment on whether to apply "manual abdominal thrusts" for choking, or some other emergency care, such as artificial respiration or cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), for heart attack victims.

Ugandan says he saw body of Dora Bloch

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A Ugandan who arrived in Nairobi said he had seen the halfburned body of 75-year-old Dora Bloch in a forest near Kampala, Uganda, the Daily Nation newspaper reported today. Mrs. Bloch was left behind when Israeli commandos rescued other air hostages in Kampala on July 4.

The Ugandan, who was not identified, was quoted as saying he saw Mrs. Bloch's body in the Namanve Forest. He said the forest is a dumping ground for people executed by the army of President Idi Amin.

A British government spokesman told the House of Commons in London on Monday there was "little doubt" that Mrs. Bloch had been killed.

Diplomatic efforts have been under way to determine her fate.

Mrs. Bloch, who held dual British and Israeli citizenship, was believed to have been hospitalized in Kampala when she became ill during the week she was held hostage. She was not at the airport when Israeli commandos stormed it and rescued more than 100 other hostages.

There was no way to determine the accuracy of the report by the Ugandan quoted in the Daily Nation, a leading Kenyan newspaper.

The newspaper quoted him as saying a number of Ugandan soldiers wounded in the Israeli raid were taken to the same hospital as Mrs. Bloch. They recognized her, he said, and dragged her away.

The Ugandan said he personally saw Mrs. Bloch's body and "all that remained unburnt was her right hand and leg," according to the Daily Nation. He said that when Ugandan army personnel discovered that civilians had recognized Mrs. Bloch's body it was immediately removed.

He was also quoted as saying that the bodies of three airport radar men were also seen in the forest.

City may pay fees

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city of Santa Ana may have to pay $125,000 in attorney fees to the Center for Law in the Public Interest in connection with an employment discrimination case.

A Los Angeles federal judge Monday ordered the city to make the interim payment until a suit about the city's hiring practices for police and fire personnel is settled. The center contends the practices discriminate against Mexican Americans.

It's not hard to 'nose' what culprits are

ALBANY (AP) — It took no great piece of gumshoe work for policemen to pick up the scent of this tiny town's latest public nuisance.

Skunks, those rank little critters with the lingering stench, have got the whole town's nose out of joint.

"This has been an unusually heavy year for skunks," said John Sawer, Albany animal control officer, noting that 10 skunks had been killed already. "Last year we had only seven all year."

He explained the reason for the situation:

"There's a lot more wildlife up on the hills this year for them to compete with, and the skunks, raccoons and oppossums are coming down into Albany looking for food by way of the creeks."

Albany's police force has been performing the skunk hunting duties. Police Chief James Simmons said capturing the skunks and then releasing them elsewhere is not practical because of the high volume of the unwelcome visitors.

Jackie Onassis

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Onassis threw the switch that sent a beam of light onto the statue of the god Mercury atop New York's Grand Central Terminal.

"My, it's beautiful," the former first lady said Monday night as the white beam played on the statue from the top of a building across the street.

It was the first time the four-story statue has been lighted at night since the famed terminal was completed in 1913 and French sculptor Jules Couton finished the piece.

"It's a present to all the people of New York," Mrs. Onassis said. "And to the conventioners who've come here to elect a president. Maybe they'll come home tonight and see it by surprise."

The Democratic National Convention began in New York City Monday evening.

The lighting was arranged by the Municipal Arts Society and paid for with $6,000 in donations from businesses.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the exiled Soviet author, thought he was headed for a U.S. jail when his wife was stopped for speeding in central Kansas, a highway patrolman says.

Highway patrolman Keith Denchfield said he stopped a van driven by Solzhenitsyn's wife on Interstate 70 in Trego County. Denchfield said Solzhenitsyn emerged from the van and came to her aid as she was struggling with the language. The officer said the Nobel prize winner also became confused.

Not understanding the American legal system, Solzhenitsyn had the impression that he and his wife were headed for jail, Denchfield said.

Denchfield wrote a ticket with a note on the back of it to Mrs. Solzhenitsyn's brother in Vermont explaining the violation. The ticket was paid by money order a few days later. The couple was traveling from California to Vermont when the ticket was issued last month.

Hannelore Schmidt

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Betty Ford may be able to influence her husband with "pillow talk," but Hannelore Schmidt says she finds it more convenient to talk to her husband during their evening chess game.

Mrs. Schmidt, 57, said her husband, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, gets ready for bed by reading. "That is the only opportunity for him to read books."

She was asked in an intervew about Betty Ford saying she had been able to occasionally change President Ford's attitude on certain issues with chats before they fell asleep.

When Schmidt wants her opinion on an issue, she said, he will ask her during their evening chess games. "Sometimes there are such important questions that my husband wants to speak with different persons about them," she said. "And I am one of those persons."

Sen. Hugh Scott

TOKYO (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., had a "friendly and frank conversation" with Chinese Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua on Monday, a Peking radio broadcast says.

The broadcast did not say what was discussed.

The official Hsinhua news agency, in a broadcast monitored here, said the Senate minority leader and his wife arrived in Peking on Saturday at the invitation of the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs.

Jack Ford

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jack Ford, who has actively campaigned for his father, says campaigning is an "emotional drain" and he is looking forward to the end of the campaign.

The 24-year-old son of President Ford has said several times before that he believes the Ford family lifestyle was better before Ford became president.

In an interview with Rolling Stone magazine, young Ford was asked whether he really wants his father to be re-elected.

"Deep in my heart? I don't even have to go that deep. No.

"It's an incredible paradox, you know," Ford continued. "I get up in the morning and say to myself, 'God, does it really make sense to do this, even if I'm not convinced that I want him to be President?'"

Clarence Kelley

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, suffering from a painful back ailment, has been admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital for a second round of treatments.

Kelley was in the hospital for about a week in June for tests and treatment of the back problem and for his annual physical examination.

The spokesman said Kelley, who was admitted to the hospital Friday, will undergo additional tests before being discharged this week.

Rosemary finds long road back

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Nostalgia time. Remember Rosemary Clooney? In the late '40s and through the '50s, there wasn't a girl singer around who could touch her. She could sing ballads and up-tempo tunes and the Clooney voice was like spun gold.

I'm pleased to report that she's back. And in fine fettle and fine voice, too.

"I'm going back to work, seriously," Rosie says.

It's been a hard time for her. She had a breakdown in '68, she says, and things were rough.

"I tried to sing again after that," she says, "but I just wasn't very good. But now I think I'm singing as well as I ever have and, more important, I'm enjoying it again."

She's about to leave for London, where she and Bing Crosby will share the Palladium stage. She says she likes to work in the summer, because that's when her five children are with their father, Jose Ferrer. She and Ferrer have long been divorced.

"I'm still singing the old songs," Rosie says. "I start out with 'Come On-a My House,' to get that out of the way, otherwise they'd be calling for it all through my act. But I like some of the new songs, too. I love Paul Simon's songs, and I do some of them."

She isn't red-hot about her career now. She's had success — as much as anybody — so she isn't hungry for that. Now she's working for the fun of it.

"I'm doing some talk shows, some guest shots, some personal appearances," she says. "I don't want to work too much, just in the summer."

Whenever she wants to work, I want to listen.

* * *

Barbara Cartland is the world's best-selling author of romantic novels — but not one of her books has been made into a movie.

"I'm too expensive," says the English author. "All of my stories have lavish settings — gold chairs and tables and many characters. I'm just too late for movies. Twenty years ago, they would have loved me."

ROSEMARY CLOONEY

It really doesn't matter. Her books sell so well and so often she doesn't need the movies. There are now 194 Barbara Cartland novels out, and they keep spewing forth, like from some gigantic writing volcano.

She turns them out, at the rate of one in seven days. That's the writing; she says the research takes longer, because each one is rooted in historical fact. She says she'll read 30 books about a period, then sit down to write.

"Sit down" is not exactly accurate. Her method of writing is unique.

"I recline on a couch," she says, "cuddling my white Pekingnese, and I tell my story to my secretary, who sits behind me, where the sight of her wont' disturb me."

She attributes her phenomenal sales to the increase in pornography in books and on film. A side effect of that increase, she says, is that her sales are increasing.

"My books are all pure and chaste," she says. "My characters all believe in purity and chastity and all those lovely things."

Minces no words

Hillman knows bands

By STEPHEN FORD

Chris Hillman minces few words, uses no euphemisms when describing fellow musicians.

Now fronting his own band and with a solo album "Slippin' Away" (Asylum, 7E-1062) recently released, the 32-year-old Hillman sees small point in perpetuating the facade many bands maintain.

A charter member of the Byrds, Flying Burrito Brothers, Manassas and the very shortlived Souther, Hillman and Furay band, Hillman stands well-qualified to vent criticism.

"I know exactly why and how bands break up after a great relationship over a few years," he says, exasperation in his voice. "But I have no idea how to prevent it. Any band together more than few years always finds members getting on each other's nerves, especially on the road.

"I marvel at bands like the Beach Boys or The Four Seasons," he says. "I don't know how they stay together that long."

His all-American features soften and he pauses, "I guess it's a matter of maintaining that respect for each other as professionals. You know you all have a common goal when you get up on that stage every night. But virtually living with the band tears you down. Most country rock bands depend on a lot of touring and that's why their break-up rate is among the highest."

Looking back at his own experiences, he adds that it's not exclusively personal conflicts that ruin a band: "An artist's creativity can become exhausted," Hillman states. "It was personal hassles that broke up the Byrds and probably the Burritos, but Manassas was just a good thing that ran its course and came to an unproductive end. Steven Stills got together a fine band with a lot of ideas and we turned out a great first album. We weren't ready for a second, did it anyway and everyone decided after that it was time to split up-."

CHRIS HILLMAN

Stills headed back to Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young and Hillman set his sights on a super trio with highly-praised country rock singer John David Souther and Richie Furay of the legendary Buffalo Springfield.

With the world anxiously awaiting a masterpiece on the level of other super unions like CSN&Y or Poco, Souther, Hillman and Furay's debut was a dud.

"I wasn't too surprised when the album did get a poor reception," Hillman confides, "That was the strangest band I'd ever been in. We didn't have any fights but doing an album was like the three of us all going off in separate corners and each doing a few songs without anybody else contributing. What we ended up with were three mini-solo albums. Worse yet, we all saved the best songs we'd written for our own solo albums.

"Then," he continues, "We wanted to go on the road and Richie was having a personal problem. He didn't want to travel and just after that, we decided we had all better go our own ways."

He is equally apologetic about the Byrds' disappointing reunion Lp released last year. "That was a disaster," Hillman declares, "because none of us was ready to do an entire album together.

"But it wasn't because we couldn't compromise with each other," he quickly points out. "Hell, we compromised ourselves right into blandness. We hand't been together for five years and everyone was afraid of stepping on the other's toes, so nobody did anything worthwhile for fear of causing a scene."

Hillman believes the only way the Byrds can atone themselves for the reunion debacle "is to get together again, maybe next year, and do an album right, take more time. More care."

For one so obviously immersed in the country sound, Hillman's solo Lp mysteriously evades the Country rock influence everyone expected from him.

"I deliberately stayed away from an all-country sound," he explains. "I still plan to do one but I don't think I'm ready for it just yet. I still can't believe I went ahead and did 'Slippin' Away'."

He recalls how he and another country rock pioneer, the late Gram Parsons, sat around in Los Angeles eight years ago churning out Country tunes non-stop.

"And now people are making all that money doing Country rock," he says, eyes widening. "Gram and I couldn't make peanuts doing that then. I told my band a few nights ago that we should go back to playing only Country, especially when I see the New Riders of the Purple Sage on television wearing rhinestone suits and making all kinds of money and THEY'RE LOUSY!"

He shakes his head, voice lowered, "S'true. They can't sing, no harmony. Gram should hear this stuff now."

Taylor due at Forum

Johnnie Taylor, due for a Saturday performance at the Forum in Inglewood, started his career as a gospel singer.

"I grew up with gospel music," explained Taylor, a West Memphis, Ark. native. "My first public appearance came at age 5 when my aunt enlisted me in her church choir. I was enchanted by the music and loved the appaluse. It was the ham in me and I decided that very day to become an entertainer."

Taylor soon became a hit in West Memphis gospel circles. He was bitten by the blues bug after seeing blues artist Lil Green in the old Beale Street Theater in Memphis.

At 14, Taylor moved to Chicago and joined the Highway C.Q's, a top gospel group. There he met the late Sam Cooke, who was with The Soul Stirrers gospel group at the time. When Cooke entered the pop field, Taylor replaced him in the Stirrers. Later, when Cooke formed his own company SAR Records, he signed Taylor as his first artist.

Taylor's current album "Eargasm" includes the single hit "Disco Lady." Other albums include "Taylored in Silk."

On the program will be The Sylvers, a brothers-and-sisters act; the Brass Construction Band direct from the New York disco scene; and Dorothy Moore, rhythm and blues singer.

GOLDEN TRUMPET — Harry James puts his all into performances at Disneyland's Plaza Gardens from 8:15 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. nightly through Saturday. Also appearing at the Anaheim amusement park is recording star Ray Stevens, who performs on a stage near the It's a Small World attraction at 8:15 and 11:15 p.m.

School board okays publication budget

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

A $37 million 1976-77 publication budget, reflecting a 10 cent cut in the general purpose tax rate, was approved by a 4-0 vote of Pomona school board at a special meeting Monday night.

Approval grew from a five-part motion by board member C. Allen Braswell, and followed a discussion during which member Gene Whitlock warned that "passing the publication budget may be walking into a trap."

Whitlock stopped action on the publication budget last week when he requested 1974-75 and 1975-76 expenditures in order to make "realistic comparisons" with 1976-77 budgeting.

Board members received "updated accounting" for expenditures of 1974-75 on July 6. They still are waiting for an accounting of 1975-76 expenditures.

Braswell's motion covered this ground. His proposal, which won Whitlock's support, was:

—That the board approve the publication budget as presented, recognizing that it is not a final budget for which the deadline is Aug. 3.

—That it reaffirm the general purpose tax rate of $4.6029, down 10 cents from the 1975-76 rate of $4.7029 per $100 of assessed evaluation.

—That it establish 1975-76 actual expenditures (which Braswell said he felt would be closer to $30 million) as the base budget for 1976-77.

—That any proposals for increases or decreases from that base budget be related to board-approved program changes reflecting policy priorities, grade and step pay increases, salary adjustments or inflationary trends.

—And that these final expenditure figures with proposed changes and cost estimates be presented to the board at a special meeting July 27 at 6 p.m. in the Education Center board room during a line-item budget presentation.

Board President Mary Montes instructed Lynn Rountree, assistant superintendent of business services, to prepare, if possible, one printout sheet showing 1974-75 budget and expenditures, 1975-76 budget and expenditures and 1976-77 budget, "so we don't have various documents to compare."

Rountree said he would have to check with the Claremont computer center to see if that could be done.

"It is very difficult to make an analysis. We don't know how the money has been spent. We have critical questions in many areas," said Mrs. Montes.

"I have dozens of questions I could not get answered," said member Don Donnelly, "particularly in the area of adult education where there are tremendous increases in administrative costs."

"We are extremely late in coming to this point," said Braswell. "This is where we should have started in March."

However, of all the board members present Whitlock was most vocal in expressing his dissatisfaction. (Board member Ken Pine is at Pomona Valley Community Hospital recuperating from surgery performed July 8.)

"I have studied these 1974-75 updated costs I received July 6, which was a handwritten document, and I have picked items which I want to bring to the public. They should know what's going on," Whitlock said.

In what he termed "shocking" errors in budgeting, Whitlock read "$36,500 budgeted for transportation for the handicapped while $382 was the true cost.

"Five thousand dollars budgeted for equipment for adult education and $2,500 was the actual cost; $7,000 budgeted for gasoline and the true cost was $14,000, twice as much; $25,000 budgeted for print shop supplies and $49,000 actually was spent; and $103,860 budgeted for librarians and the true cost was $68,000."

Actually, Whitlock continued, "we don't know what's going on in finances in this district and we cannot know without a line-by-line accounting of 1974-75 and 1975-76 expenditures."

The auditor knew on Dec. 23, 1975 that the true cost of librarians for that year was $68,000 "yet we on the board were not informed of this until Friday," said Whitlock. "I don't think we know where our money is."

The board scheduled a study session for Aug. 10 to review with new schools Supt. Charles C. Carpenter policy on academic excellence and discipline, recommendations made by the State Management Team and set priorities for the coming year.

"One of my concerns is that the board become part of the management team," said Mrs. Montes.

In a unanimous vote, the board approved spending $2,107.28 for personnel to retest 186 pupils currently categorized as educably mentally retarded in an effort to meet requirements for eligibility for a 1976-77 Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) $1.8 million grant.

Pomona council approves merging of departments

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

An administrative study combining the departments of public works, and street and sewer maintenance was approved by the Pomona City Council Monday night, eliminating about 10 jobs.

The consolidation of departments is expected to save the city $160,000. Approximately half the jobs to be eliminated are in the middle-management level of foremen.

No layoff of city workers is expected, however, since the council has directed that employes be shifted into other city positions that are currently vacant.

Councilman Adrain Wright cast the only vote against the consolidation, although he offered no explanation for his vote.

The consolidation was approved indirectly last week by the council when the city budget was adopted incorporating the savings projected by the reduction in the city work force.

The $20.4 million budget was given second reading approval by the council Monday, again passing by a 3-2 vote. There was no new discussion of the budget although Wright said he was concerned over the inclusion of $750,000 of federal revenue sharing funds in the police department's budget.

The budget includes a 39-cent property tax rate increase, from $2.495 to $2885 per $100 of assessed valuation, although the rate will not be officially set until the tax assessment roles are received in early August.

Wright and Mayor Ray Lepire again cast votes against adopting the budget.

In other business, the council approved an extension of the existing contract between the city and miscellaneous employes' union, which expired July 1.

The extension provides that employes will continue to receive all current benefits pending the outcome of advisory arbitration, scheduled for Friday.

The salary talks have been stalled for weeks with the city offering the employes, which includes most city workers other than policemen, firemen, and management personnel, no wage increase this year.

The extension also carried a no-strike clause agreed to by representatives of the Service Employes International Union, Local 660, AFL-CIO.

The conclusion of the meeting was enlivened when an otherwise innocuous action appointing Councilmember Georgia Grove as delegate to a rapid transit committee infuriated Wright.

Wright, who was the delegate to the committee when it last met over two years ago, charged that "the mayor has tried to eliminate me from everything."

"Either show your faith in me or vote for someone else," said Wright.

The vote to name Mrs. Grove as delegate was 3-1, with Mrs. Grove abstaining.

The committee has to do with the selection of a representative from the San Gabriel-Pomona Valley corridor of the Southern California Rapid Transit District. Each city in the valleys will be represented.

Claremont board offers 3 per cent pay hike

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont school board has offered salary increases of approximately three per cent to teachers and classified employes for the next school year.

For the teachers, the board also offered two per cent increases in step increments and .07 per cent increase in fringe benefits, bringing the total offer to 5.7 per cent.

For classified, in addition to the three per cent on the salary schedule, the board offered 2.5 per cent on step increments and 1.3 per cent on fringe benefits, bringing that total offer to 6.8 per cent.

Those figures were reflected Monday night in the Claremont Unified School District's initial responses to proposals by the Claremont Faculty Association for the teachers, and by Chapter 200 of the California School Employes Association for classified employes.

The teachers had asked for a 7.8 per-cent hike for a beginning teacher from $9276 to $10,000 a year.

The classified employes had asked for a pay increase of about 14 per cent, 1½ times the rise in the cost of living from Jan. 1, 1975 to Jan. 1, 1976.

The school board rejected for both the teachers and the classified employes proposed fully-paid dental plans and fully-paid vision plans for all employes and their dependents.

The board offered $350 bonus annually for a teacher who has an earned doctorate. The teachers had asked for an annual bonus of $350 for a master's degree, and $700 bonus for an earned doctorate, with or without a masters degree.

The board has offered that pupil-teacher ratios for regular programs on a district-wide basis be maintained at 28.5 to 1 for elementary school and 23.75 to 1 for intermediate or high school.

The teachers had asked that the maximum number of students assigned to each class be no mre than 25 in elementary or intermediate school except for physical education or remedial reading.

The teachers had proposed that class loads and assignments at the secondary level be determined by staff in each curricular area, subject only to limitations imposed by "an acceptable teacher-equivalent ratio."

The teachers had asked that no high school teacher be responsible for more than 150 students per semester, except in physical education, which was set at 250 per semester.

In the district proposals to both groups, under "concerted activities," it says: "It is agreed and understood that there will be no strike, work stoppage, slow-down, picketing, or refusal or failure to perform job functions and responsibilities fully and faithfully."

The district also calls upon the groups "in good faith" to take all necessary steps to cause those members to stop such actions if they should strike or picket.

The district feels it will suffer damage in the event of a strike or slow-down, and would call upon an association to pay "as fixed and liquidated damages" $1,000 a day.

The health and welfare benefit allocation of $763.70 a year offered to both teachers and classified employes includes the increased cost of the insurance to the district.

Rejected for classified employes was an increase in vacation time and an increase in paid holidays from 13 to 15.

The board now will give the residents an opportunity at a public hearing to comment on either of the board's responses.

Ontario CHP commander is promoted

Capt. Eriks Svede, commander of the California Highway Patrol office in Ontario, has been promoted to inspector and will be assigned to a zone office in San Francisco.

Svede was assigned to the local office July 15, 1975 after serving as commander of the Los Angeles communications center.

His promotion takes effect Aug. 1 and he will serve as a deputy zone commander. He will be responsible for coordinating area offices within that zone.

Svede will be replaced by Capt. Jim Perkins, now area commander in Barstow. Perkins assignment to Ontario also is effective on Aug. 1.

Svede joined the highway patrol in 1958 and had served as a traffic officer in East Los Angeles, sergeant in Indio, Norwalk and Santa Fe Springs, lieutenant at the Sacramento headquarters and San Jose and captain at the communications center and Ontario.

He and his wife, Judy, have two children, Sven, 12, and Krista, 9. The family resides in Placentia.

Claremont police car crashes into autos

A Claremont police car responding to a reported armed robbery collided with two other vehicles Monday on Indian Hill Boulevard and San Jose Avenue.

Officer Lionel Henry Brown, 26, reported he was driving east on San Jose Avenue about 50 miles an hour with the vehicle's red light and siren turned on and lost control of his car as he turned right onto Indian Hill Boulevard.

The police car crossed a center divider and hit the two cars which were stopped for a traffic signal, said highway patrolmen who investigated the accident.

The vehicles were driven by Philip Arthur Leone, 580 Charleston Drive, Claremont and Yvonne Francis Sansone, 404 M. Carmel Drive, Claremont.

The Claremont woman was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for minor cuts caused by broken glass. She was later released.

Investigators reported the Claremont officer was responding to an alarm at the Greyhound Bus depot on Indian Hill Boulevard. The report was later found to be a false alarm, they added.

Little girl hit by auto

A 9-year-old child was injured slightly Monday evening when she was hit by a car at Barbara Lane and JoAnn Way in Pomona.

The child, LaChon Page, 966 Barbara Lane, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was treated and released.

The driver, David F. McCullough, 31, Pomona, said the child ran in front of his car but he managed almost to stop before hitting her.

Boys can still apply for camp

Openings are still available for a three-day mountain camp for boys from 8 to 12 in a special program offered by the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department and the Old Baldy Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The camp will be held July 19 to 21 at Holcomb Valley Scout Ranch near Big Bear Lake. Registration deadline for the camp is Thursday.

Cost is $9.50 per boy, which includes lodging, meals, hiking, swimming, archery and many other activities, plus transportation and insurance.

For information, persons may contact the Parks and Recreation Department at 620-2321 or the Old Baldy Council at 626-3551.

Escondido annex gets green light

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Local Agency Formation Commission has authorized Escondido to annex 1,650 acres, subject to approval of voters in November.

Ontario man dies from electrocution

A 29-year-old Ontario man was electrocuted early Monday morning when a heavy duty crane unloading a grain hopper tilted and swayed into a high tension power line at the Omline Dairy, 14739 Archibald Ave., in Ontario.

Thomas Edward Richardson died about two hours after the 9:50 a.m. mishap.

According to West End sheriff's deputies and the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office, Richardson was assisting his employer in delivering and unloading a 25-ton capacity grain hopper. A heavy duty crane was used to remove the hopper from a flatbed trailer. The hopper tilted to one side, causing the crane holding it to sway into the high tension wires overhead.

Richardson, holding a metal leg of the hopper, was knocked unconscious and stopped breathing a split second after the mishap. Chino Fire Department paramedics managed to get Richardson breathing again and rushed him to Chino General Hospital.

Legislative giveaway

Recently this newspaper spoke against a proposal by the State Industrial Welfare Commission to adopt a new minimum wage that would cause undue hardship and loss of employment opportunities in many segments of industry in California. More needs to be said on this topic.

The proposed new minimum wage of $2.50 an hour is an increase of 20 cents per hour for most employers, over the existing minimum federal wage of $2.30. Because of its tendency to inflate all wage levels, it will have a substantial impact upon the ability of all California manufacturers to compete with those in other states and other countries.

Other proposals by the commission could be equally costly and damaging to the state's economy. A simple majority of the commission, only three members, can adopt proposals costing as much as several billion dollars. It does raise a serious question of whether an appointive body, not responsive to the electorate, should have such sweeping powers.

By contrast, it took a minimum of 63 individuals, 41 assemblymen, 21 senators, and the governor to adopt the much-publicized $700 million increase in unemployment taxes last year.

Legislation which was passed in 1973 gave the commission jurisdiction over men in addition to women and minors. Included in the bill, however, was a declaration of legislative intent. It stated that it was intended that the commission interpret the act so as not to cause undue hardship or loss of employment opportunities. Considerable testimony in recent public hearings has been presented that numerous provisions of the commission proposals would do precisely what the legislature had intended not be done.

Therefore, a resolution has been introduced into the legislature that would request the commission to conduct further proceedings in scrupulous observance of all requirements of law with special concern of the intent of the legislature. This resolution merits the support of all assemblymen and state senators.

The authority given away by the Legislature to the commission to establish minimum wages was a mistake. In effect, the commission has the power of enacting law. We thought only the lawmakers have that right.

Mt. Meadows not ready yet

Pomona's golfing fraternity have been watching and waiting for more than a year for the completion of the new Mountain Meadows Golf Course just west of the fairgrounds.

But they are going to have to wait a little longer, 60 to 90 days before they will be able to tee it up on the 18 hole course, the 19th course in the county's public golf system which is the largest of its type in the world.

The course architect Ted Robinson has recommended a September or October opening of the course in order to let the ground cover on the fairways take better hold so that when the golfers swarm onto the course the grass can withstand the assault by hackers and handicappers alike.

Four years ago when the old Mountain Meadows course was decimated to put through an access road into the Frank G. Bonelli Park south shore development area, there were those who felt that Pomona's historic golf course had come to an end.

At that time Supervisor Pete Schabarum assured Pomonans that they would indeed have a new links of championship caliber. Although it has taken some maneuvering and some compromising at the Supervisor level, Schabarum has made good on his promise.

The new layout will provide a good test of golf with its trees, lakes and bunkers. The traps are laden with the kind of sand that only the more exclusive, private clubs employ.

Thirteen years ago the city and county entered into a partnership to save Mountain Meadows Golf Course. It was indeed a good investment that will provide the greater Pomona Valley with one more splendid recreational facility. We congratulate the County Parks and Recreation Department with a special thanks to Supervisor Schabarum.

The public forum

When you are in Rome

Dear Editor:

I've read a lot of letters in your public forum columns and my blood pressure went up a notch or two, but the one from Mrs. Martinez, July 8 took the cake.

What do you mean, dear lady, ". . . why do we make children uncomfortable in school by insisting that they learn a different language than is spoken at home . . . why try to Americanize them?"

My God, why do these people live in the United States in the first place!

What about the Germans, French and Italians, just to name a few. Do you hear them complain and ask for special teachers, special foods in the cafeterias for their children? Our family of 5 migrated to this country, without a father. Look at us now. We were told by our sponsor: 'when you are in Rome you do as the Romans do. Now you are in the U.S., you speak English, go to school, go to work, pay taxes, become citizens and stay off the welfare roll.' (not necessarily in that order) So, we went to school, work, the armed forces, to night school to learn English, which was hard, but we mastered with the help of friends. However, at home we continued to speak German. We are bilingual, did not complain about not being taught our history and English lessons in German, did not write to complain to schools or our Congressman. The class went on as before we joined it, as if no 'foreigner' was present.

We were told to be obedient citizens, living by the law, or we would be deported. So, when coming to this country, sending your children to school in order for them to be good American citizens, they have to first learn English and not be taught their English lessons in Spanish. Who has ever heard of a thing like that. You surely will not experience this being done in any other country.

Another great subject is voting in both languages. I'm sure Mrs. Martinez is elated about that. They even asked me, a blond German, (and long-time naturalized American citizen) if I desire to vote in Spanish or English. What an insult! How about a ballot in German? We spent a lot of money on printing ballots and materials to go along with it, might as well go all the way on printing it in 5 languages like the international drivers license. This way you might not offend too many!

Take it from a 'foreigner' — and from one who traveled many countries this is still "the" place.

Carter the conqueror

NEW YORK — Beneath the surface harmony, as the Democrats assemble here to nominate Jimmy Carter, run conflicting currents of apprehension and hope.

The apprehension arises from both the nature of the victory and the character of the man who won it.

Jimmy Carter overwhelmed the Democratic party by bypassing, even opposing, its traditional bastions. His campaign effort was directed by an old Annapolis classmate here, a born-again church brother there and a local maverick or an enthusiastic kid over yonder.

It was an effort that began in 1972 in the middle of his term as governor of Georgia. He gathered his tight little circle of advisers around him to discuss their next conquest. With an audacity that was breathtaking, they set their sights upon the White House.

They pursued the presidency with a doggedness that sent Carter to Florida 63 times before he entered the Democratic primary there. The strategy was to score a series of rapid, early victories and let the momentum carry them on to the nomination. Carter confidantes tell us that they concentrated their total effort on the first primaries, that they had no plans beyond the Pennsylvania primary.

Carter conquered by indirection. After four years of ingratiating himself with the public, he remains a frustratingly elusive suitor to Democratic professionals and ideologists alike who require the familiar pledges of the flesh and spirit — which he resists giving in full measure.

When Carter waxes effusive, it is about the Holy Spirit, not the more traditional objects of Democratic veneration like economic planning, the evisceration of oil companies and the redistribution of income.

He has embraced his party's predilections just enough to keep his primary opponents from putting him in a box. The feeling persists that his heart isn't in it and that a winnowing of Democratic shibboleths is ahead.

The Carter personality is also a cause of concern. He is aloof and inaccessible even to those who are given access. He has also acquired a palace guard before he has the palace. Even more disturbing to some, those who have his ear speak with accents not of ivy but of magnolia.

There is a disgruntlement, too, about a Carter mean streak beneath the surface of amiability, a hardness beneath the engaging sincerity, a political purpose behind the Billy Graham sermonettes. One Democratic professional, who has come to know Carter, told us: "He's tough as a warehouse rat."

But there was a note of admiration in the old pro's voice. For despite the ambiguities and the remoteness, Carter also offers the Democrats a new hope. They see in him an unexpected leader possessing political skills unseen since the great architect of Democratic supremacy, Franklin D. Roosevelt, burst into American politics.

Instead of mean and elusive, they see Carter as tough and prudent. They see a tactician who outplanned, outmaneuvered, outlegged and outlasted successive waves of opponents, a strategist who won his victories in a way that made possible the unifying of the party and the creation of an electoral coalition of historic significance.

These hopefuls feel that Carter, by his aloofness from the old Democratic powers and panaceas, has given the party a needed facelift in the nick of time. Had the Democrats been caught in a traditional conservative vs. liberal contest, it is suggested, they figured to take a shellacking.

But the advent of Carter has blurred the party's vulnerability without surrendering its basic goals, has held together the old constituencies while ushering in new ones. Reconciled southerners and evangelical Christians — groups which only yesterday were rather wary of the party of Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern — are attracted to Carter.

To many, Carter's campaign as a Southerner who embraced the memory of Martin Luther King Jr., and Carter's crushing but gentle defeat of George Wallace in the South, constituted a political masterplay. They believe it has, without sacrifice of party principles, saved the South for the Democratic party.

There is another aspiration, half-defined, floating around Madison Square Garden. The nomination victory, won essentially without obligation to the old power centers and special interest groups, opens up a chance for Carter to become a truly national leader, a no-sayer to the predators and parasites, a spokesman for the unorganized and reticent.

Midyear audit

This is a rare moment in the history of our nation. Three nice guys running for President; we can't go far wrong. The smoke shrouding Capitol Hill has been ventilated — and the stale perfume. Our economy is back in high gear, by all standards this is a very green year.

The good new days are now. Environmental pollution, air and water, is measurably less. On campus the now preoccupation is with vocational education. Wall Street reports all systems green, and war is going out of style.

Historians will not find many, if any, of our 200 years when we have enjoyed less social ferment, less labor strife, less disease and more take-home prosperity.

Even the crime fever is subsiding. And nobody is going hungry. A midyear audit shows an unprecedented investment, public and private, in developing inexhaustible supplies of clean fuels. To our credit is a new national commitment to tend to our own knitting.

Music is singable again. Uppers and downers are a fading fad, and the comb is making a comeback. At half-past 1976, at long last our nation's most under-appreciated minority — our farmers — are moving up from the back of the bus.

Dollar shrinkage is some less than last year and much less than anywhere else. Philanthropic Americans are giving more than ever before to the needy — almost $27 billion worth. While at the same time beginning, however tardily, to wean the greedy.

(On the sunshine side of the ledger)

Americans have led this world on expeditions of exploration of other worlds and if we have not found life there — the fallout from our adventuring has contributed much to a better life here.

And the horizons for women have been pushed back beyond the kitchen window; a rather long way beyond. Physically, our sons and daughters are so improved over any heretofore that we can't reprint the record books fast enough to catch up with our taller, healthier, faster, stronger athletes.

And there has been no time nor other place where builders, manufacturers, merchants and advertisers have been in such vigorous competition with one another and with themselves to try to provide you with some things better, whether better tasting, better for you or more beautiful.

And with all the bounty and beauty that would surely dull us to sleep — we're still just enough blessed with unsolved problems and inspiring challenges to keep us awake!

So it's little wonder ours is the only dry land on this ball of mud where people are standing in line trying to get in — instead of dying trying to get out.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

There is an old saying that one picture is worth 10,000 words. However, in Seattle they have translated that into dollars and cents and set a monetary value on one picture of $2,500. And, having established that figure, the Seattle Arts Commission initiated a program, funded with federal money naturally, to keep 54 artists working for 5 months at $500 each per month. At the end of that time the City of Seattle owned 54 works of art paid for by your federal tax contributions and mine. — And there, for a paltry expenditure of only $135,000, we have another interesting example of government of the people, by the people and for the people engaged in one of its more artistic share the wealth programs. But I feel sure that 10,000 or even 540,000 words uttered by those of us ignorant infidels who are short on art appreciation but long on anti-boondoggling would never get that $135,000 back again. So if government funded art is inevitable, why not relax and enjoy it? After all, maybe Holmes was right when he said, "Life is painting a picture not doing a sum."

Salary commission

By EARL G. WATERS

Forestalling of the legislative salary proposal may not have been all bad. The Assembly had proposed the creation of a commission to determine proper compensation for legislators and other top state officials. But it bogged down in the Senate in disputes over whether the Legislature should have veto powers on the commission recommendations. Had it passed it would have required voter approval in November.

No doubt, since it included them, the judges had a hand in lobbying its defeat. Traditionally their pay had been set by the solons. Several years ago, however, through some clever legislative legerdemain, the judges locked into the law an annual automatic raise tied to the cost of living index. By this device superior court judges will be paid more than the governor starting in September.

Under present law, proposals to raise the salaries of the governor and other elective state officers must be submitted to the electorate. The legislators escaped this requirement in 1966 when a ballot measure raised their pay from $6,000 to $16,000 and gave them the power to vote their own increases thereafter, which they have done in stages to the present $23,232, effective in December.

The idea of a commission to peg compensation for the officials stems from the increasing criticisms leveled at the lawmakers over the salaries and fringe benefits which they have given themselves. It is a case of not being happy with the heat and seeking to get out from under.

Still, it was evident that not all of the solons wanted to trust their fate entirely to an independent commission. The designation that three of the seven members would be from agencies subject to legislative pressures signalled that. And the demand for legislative ratification of the commission proposals confirmed it.

The reason the measure's defeat was not all bad is that it seems to have put the cart before the horse. It accepted the current manner of legislative operations as inviolate and left nothing for the commission excepting the setting of compensation. All too obvious was the expectation of much higher pay.

Prudent management of resources requires that before one spends money it must first be decided what one wishes to buy. In business, equipment is purchased only after the need is known. Positions are established by determining the job to be performed. Only after that has been defined is the salary set.

It would appear then, that before proper compensation for the lawmakers can be determined, there should be a reexamination of what kind of Legislature the people really want. Having been transposed from a citizen-Legislature, meeting every other year, to a full time, year around, "professional" Legislature in a few short years, it is not at all certain the people are satisfied with the lawmakers being in continuous session.

The solons like to compare the state to a large corporation and themselves to the board of directors. Agreed the state budget ranks with the most giant corporations but whoever heard of a board of directors meeting more than occasionally?

One wonders, now that the legislators' commission is not to be, at least for awhile, why the citizens can't form their own commission to study the problem? Two groups come to mind, both composed of memberships with adequate competence and understanding to do the job and with the financial ability as well. Either the State Chamber of Commerce or the California Taxpayers Association fit the bill. They could do it jointly. Both have played prominent roles in legislative salary setting in the past. Being independent of legislative control their recommendations would carry great weight with the voters. And the setting of public salaries belongs in the hands of the voters.

If they would step forward now and do the job the commission won't be needed.

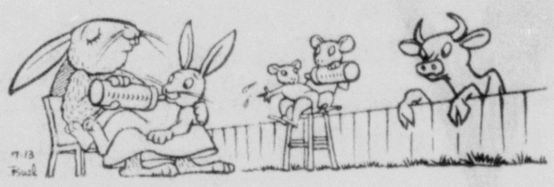
Rabbit milk very, very rich



DEAR DR. MILLER: You said rabbit milk was very rich. Is it as rich as mouse milk? — G. F. .

DEAR G. F.: Rabbit's is richer. While mouse milk's higher in fat at over 12 per cent, its's considerably lower in protein at only nine per cent. (Nine per cent protein's nothing to sneeze at, actually. Cow's milk has only three per cent protein but . . . that's actually not too bad either, if you come to think of it, since cows are considerably easier to milk.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Little Dora, she's our dog, is beginning to swell up in her throat. She doesn't act sore from it or anything, but I'm worried because it looks a lot like a goiter my grandmother had. Can Dora be getting a goiter? — E. M.

DEAR E. M.: Iodine deficiency goiter may occur in the dog, though, as with humans, it's less commonly seen today because most diets today are not deficient in iodine. Other causes for enlargement of the thyroid include tumors, many of which are malignant. Swelling in this area of the neck may also be due to lymph gland or other tissue with no direct involvement of the thyroids. Obviously the problem, be it cyst, foreign body or whatever, can only be handled by her doctor and should be.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Middle Cat was so much trouble we finally got him fixed, but it didn't take. He still has his heat cycles. Does this happen? — N. N.

DEAR N. N.: It must, according to Middle Cat, who's admittedly a mite unusual anyway. Most male cats don't have heat cycles. Most neutered males don't even have the otherwise characteristically consistent sexual drive. They don't, that is, unless they were neutered too late in life. You said "finally" when referring to Middle Cat's surgery, so it could be that his sexual habit patterns were so well-established that he's still going through the motions, even though contribution to the new cat population would be a perfectly acceptable zero. Male cats, and males of some other species, who have become masters of passionate performance may, happily for them, retain this ability — in blank verse — after surgical intervention. A neutered male definitely won't go through the motions if he doesn't know them. This is one of the advantages of neutering the young, but not too young, male who has not yet established sexual habit patterns.

What people say

"The significance of the women's movement is distorted and blunted through the images presented by the media. We are witnessing a systematic effort to undercut the significance of the movement. Our aim will be to forge a Marxist interpretation of the opression and emancipation of women."

Ann Landers

He loves you, not your nose

Dear Ann Landers: An aunt of mine is driving me crazy. I plan to be married in a few months. She thinks it is very important that I tell my fiance I had rhinoplasty — better known as a nose job.

I don't think it's any of his business. Aunt Marcia insists that it would be unfair not to tell him. And wait till you get a load of the reason. She is afraid our children might be born with a schnozz like my old one and my husband would wonder who the fater is. (I now have a little turned-up nose, and his nose is small also.)

What is your opinion of the situation? — Nobody Nose The Trouble I've Seen

Dear Trouble: The decision should be yours, but I see no reason for not telling him. After all, he fell in love with you, not your nose.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is a 19-year-old son. He has bever been in any kind of trouble, works every day and pays board and room.

Things began to change around here last October when Phil took up with a 14-year-old girl. She looks 17, is very mature physically, but not mentally. Phil is at Dolly's house every night of the week. They seldom go to a movie or out with friends. Their only interest is each other.

Dolly seems like a nice girl, but she forgets to wash her hands before meals and never uses a napkin. When Phil tries to hold her chair to help her get seated, she says, "I'm not crippled. I can seat myself." (No manners whatsoever.)

Last week she asked for permission to stay here for the weekend while her parents were out of town. I said OK. Ann, the girl didn't bring a thing with her, not even a toothbrush. She slept with my daughter who offered her a nightgown. Her reply was, "I hate those things."

Phil bought a camper and plans to take Dolly camping every weekend. I don't know what this girl's parents are thinking about. Will you please comment? — Plenty Worried

Dear P.L.: Phil has obviously gone gaga over this Dolly and there is nothing you can (or should) do about it. He is 19 — old enough to know his own mind — such as it is.

Your son should be aware, however, of the legal ramifications. In many states a 14-year-old girl is considered a child. Under certain circumstances he could get into legal trouble for contributing to her delinquency.

The girl sounds pathetically ignorant and completely without parental guidance. I hope Phil will assume the responsibility to see that his Dolly doesn't get pregnant.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column is a great escape valve for people who need to sound off. May I blow my top? Thank you.

Dear "Gentlemen" Commuters: Although you insist Women's Lib has killed chivalry, it doesn't mean good manners and common sense are also dead. How can you sit in that seat on the bus while a woman eight months pregnant stands, being jostled around for 45 minutes? Doesn't it bother you when a 60-plus, grandmotherly type faints from standing in a crowded aisle, in stifling heat, while you sit next to a breezy window? How do you think you look shoving women and children aside in your rush to get on the bus and grab a seat? If you don't know, I can tell you in a word. Lousy. — Turned Off In D.C.

Dear D.C.: I can't improve on your one-word answer. Thank you.

Work is a four-letter word

Next to the oarsman on a slave ship whose captain wanted to water ski, the most maligned person on the face of this earth is the teenager who has just landed his first full-time job.

No one suffers more and is appreciated less.

Many of these "slaves" have heard stories of men who got up each morning, were fully clothed by 7 and on the job at 8:30, but they discarded these as venomous rumors — the kind circulated in Berlin in the 1940s.

My son considers himself a "human sacrifice" on the altar of the Church of the Establishment. He was 15 before we could use the word "employment" in front of him. The word broke his face out and he preferred we spell it. The way he explained it to us on the eve of his marriage to a paycheck, "This is an exercise in group persecution, isn't it? All of you have run the course and now before I come of age, I have to prove that I can hack the 9-5 number, is that it? Okay, you win. If I have to prove that I'm mature, I'll get the dumb full-time J-O-B . . . jjjj . . . jjooo . . . jooob!"

Maybe a lot of you know my son — or at least have heard of him.

He's the only employed person who has to work all day and then come home and feed himself.

He's the only dedicated teenager in North America to work when the "gang" went tubing down the river one Wednesday afternoon.

He's the first person to ever have half of his paycheck withheld for some service which he has never requested (federal income tax, hospitalization, Social Security, etc.). As he stated, "Someone is going to hear about this!"

He stands alone as the only worker who is dominated by a senile boss (age 35) who engages in office brutality by insisting he arrive on time in the mornings, and after lunch.

He's the only full-time worker in the country who has not gained the respect of family and friends for his contribution to labor.

Last Saturday, I tapped him on the shoulder. "Hey, George Meany, out of the sack. It's the crack of noon."

My son rolled over. "I do not believe this is happening to a working person," he said. "All week long, I work five days a week, eight hours a day, and what do I get for it?"

"You get all your meals served like a sultan, your bedroom cleaned, your clothes washed and ironed and a full-time old family retainer — me!"

Something tells me I'll have the first kid to retire three years before he has anything to retire from.

Coconut oil 'hazardous'

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column you say, "There is no cholesterol in foods of plant origin." I have read and been under the impression that coconut was very high in cholesterol. My husband avoids eating it for this reason. Would you care to comment on this. We want to be sure we are doing the right thing.

DEAR READER — That question keeps coming up and it is important that people understand why coconut oil can be hazardous to their health. Coconut oil does not contain one smidgen of cholesterol. No plant or pure plant product contains a molecule of cholesterol. Cholesterol is an animal product. It is found in dairy products, egg yolks, meat, poultry and fish.

The problem with coconut oil is that more than 80 per cent of its fat content is saturated fat. Fat and cholesterol are not the same thing. The saturated fat in coconuts stimulates the body to form excess amounts of cholesterol and fatty particles in the blood stream. For this reason if a person is prone to having excess amounts of fatty-cholesterol particles in the blood, coconut oil and all other sources of saturated fat should be sharply limited. The Inter-Society Commission for Heart Disease Resources recommended on the basis of the opinion of a group of national authorities that the daily saturated fat intake should be less than 10 per cent of the total calorie intake.

You and many others may be getting lots of coconut oil in your diet and not know it. Why? Because many food products are made with coconut oil and the label on the food package will say only vegetable oil. What can you do about this? Simply refuse to buy any product that does not say what the vegetable oil is in specific terms.

It was against the law under the provisions of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to list the amounts of the different types of fats on food labels until about 1972. I know of no other action by the Food and Drug Administration that I have found more repugnant than that sorry bit of history. Fortunately there has been a major change at the FDA since those black days and a more enlightened crew seems to be in command. Note the FDA action was not against false claims but against John Q. Public's right to know how much saturated fat was in the food products he was buying.

Remember that "vegetable fat" can be anything from corn oil to coconut oil. Most of the powdered nondairy creamers are made with coconut oil and contain more saturated fat than does natural cream. The coconut oil will show up in cake mixes, baked goods and any variety of commonly used food products, all sailing under the colors of "vegetable fat." The upshot is the buyer who thinks he or she is doing something good for his health by using a product that contains vegetable fat may have just been had, thanks to our marketing system. The old rule, let the buyer beware, still applies and especially at the grocery store.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis. Other who wants this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Big bid bombs spade game

By Oswald & James Jacoby

East and West have most of the high cards, but North and South have the spade suit and better distribution.

East and West can make four hearts while North and South can make four spades. When the hand was played in a rubber bridge game the bidding went as shown in the box. East and West got after diamonds in time to collect a diamond, two clubs and 100 points above the line, but North and South were very unhappy with the result.

North was mad because South had doubled five hearts. He explained that he would have let East play five hearts, but had to take it out when South doubled.

South was mad because he felt that North had tried to bid both their hands and had managed to get to the wrong contract all by himself.

We have to agree with South on all counts. North might have bid in such manner as to get doubled at four spades, but North had sledge-hammered his way right there.

South had heard all the bidding and decided that he was going to take three tricks against East. Hence his double.

Ask the Jacobys

A Connecticut reader wants to know the correct bid with:

♠ 7 ♥ 9 8 7 6 ♦ Q 8 5 3 ♣ A Q 10 5.

The bidding was opened one heart to your left; your partner bid two hearts and third hand passed.

Assuming that you are playing a standard system that your partner has shown a very strong hand you should bid three diamonds with every intention of making some further bid.

American art

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Bicentennial exhibit of 388 paintings, drawings, prints and sculpture, called "America As Art," is on exhibit at the National Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institution.

The show "examines how American art has been identified with the changing concepts and ideals associated with the United States over the past 200 years."

Because of its size, the exhibit has three closing dates, Sept. 12, Oct. 3 and Nov. 7.

Leak in California Aqueduct

SACRAMENO (AP) — The California Aqueduct has sprung a leak in Stanislaus County forcing the state for the first time to shut down a section of the canal, the Water Resources Department said today.

Water deliveries to the south won't be affected because the state can release more water from the San Luis Reservoir, 12 miles south of the leak.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation has also agreed to increase the flow in its Delta-Mendota Canal, which parallels the state aqueduct between the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta and San Luis.

The state shut down its Delta pumps while the leak is repaired. Water exports from the Delta won't be decreased, though, because more water will be pumped into the federal canal.

Water Resources Director Ronald Robie said the canal started leaking near pool 10 in the stretch between Patterson and Gustine in April, but it didn't become significant until last week.

A rock and earth dam was built upstream from the leak and a one-mile section of the aqueduct between the dam and a check gate was drained.

James Doody, deputy director of the department's division of operations and maintenance, said the cause of the cracks in the canal was unknown.

He said it was leaking about 3.7 cubic feet of water per second out onto the ground.

Doody said the aqueduct has sprung leaks before, but never one that couldn't be repaired without draining the canal.

Flights to U.S. making money for Concorde

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversial Concorde, its flights watched closely by environmentalists and the Federal Aviation Administration, is making money on flights to the United States, spokesmen for two airlines said Monday.

Flights of the British-French built supersonic jetliner to nearby Dulles International Airport from Paris and London have attracted many more passengers than necessary to warrant permanent routes, the airline officials said.

"It's economically feasible, there's no question about that," said Thomas Craft, a spokesman for British Airways in New York.

"We're very pleased with the Paris-to-Washington route," echoed Bill Klema, district manager in Washington for Air France. "We hope it is a permanent route."

Under a 16-month test approved by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr., Air France is flying three Concordes in and out of Dulles each week. British Airways has two weekly flights.

While both airlines say they could live with passenger loads of about 60 per cent of capacity, Air France reports figures nearer 90 per cent and British Airways 100 per cent for Concorde flights since late May.

"We're flying 80 passengers this summer rather than the full 100 so we can fly non-stop all of the time," Klema said. "With the full 100 passengers, on certain hot days we'd face the possibility of having to stop for fuel."

Air France has had no problems booking 80 passengers for each flight and, after late cancellations, has averaged 71 passengers per flight, Klema said.

At British Airways, Craft said, "We anticipated the London-Washington route would be a good one and we weren't disappointed. "We're flying full."

British Airways is selling 71 to 76 tickets for each flight this summer, putting limits on the planes' weight in hot weather.

Both airlines say they won't be prepared to talk about profits until the end of the 16-month test. But both claim that the Washington flights are lucrative, without detracting from other first-class travel.

Most Concorde passengers are business executives who crave the time savings offered by supersonic travel — a Concorde flight to or from London takes 3½ hours compared to 7 to 8 hours for more conventional jets — and don't mind the ticket prices.

A Concorde flight from Washington to Paris costs $827, $132 higher than other first-class fares. To London, Concorde costs $801, $102 more than the first-class fare.

Both airlines consider New York another lucrative market — but one not linked to Washington's future.

Coleman's agreement to test Concorde flights at New York's Kennedy Airport was blocked when the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, operator of Kennedy, banned the plane for environmental reasons. A federal court hearing on the controversy is scheduled for Sept. 13.

Report Navy bomb kills 4 Filipinos

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — A bomb dropped by a U.S. Navy plane during a bombing exercise killed four Filipino fishermen last month, the government Philippine News Agency has reported.

Police reported that the four were fishing from a motorboat in the Zambales Sea off San Antonio, Zambales, 70 miles northwest of Manila, when they were hit by the bomb on June 18, the agency said.

There was no immediate comment on the report from the Subic U.S. naval base.

'BIRD' PLAY

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of Detroit blows a bubble while sitting on the edge of the Tiger dugout Sunday. Fidrych will be the starting pitcher in tonight's All-Star game.

Peace hopes center on U.S.

MONTREAL (AP) — Peace hopes in the great Olympics dispute rested today on the shoulders of Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and a man with a reputation for patching up other people's quarrels.

Krumm and his committee took over the role of mediators and became the central figures in the drama of the Taiwanese athletes who are shut out of Canada for political reasons

The Americans were talking with the Canadian External Affairs Ministry in Ottawa and the Taiwanese officials in the Olympic Village in Montreal.

Olympic sources gave them a slim chance of success. But it was a last gasp effort to get the Taiwanese into the Games, opening Saturday, and restore the battered image of the Olympic charter.

"We are working like the dickens to get both sides in this dispute to concede a little," Krumm said.

"The future of the Games depend on our success. Instead of friendly athletic competition between athletes, the Olympics have become a political contest between countries."

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) recognizes the national Olympic committee of Taiwan under the name of the Republic of China—a name which offends the Communist Chinese in Peking.

Canada, clearly concerned about its big wheat export trade with Peking, refused to allow the Taiwanese to enter the country unless they agreed to drop the "Republic of China" label and abandon their national flag.

The IOC executive board failed to make any impression on the Canadians. It tried asking the Taiwanese to march in the opening parade under the Olympic flag and the IOC insignia, but the Taiwanese said no.

Unless one side or another gives way, the Taiwanese will be the first athletes ever shut out of an Olympic host country because of politics.

Krumm's men moved into the dispute after an appeal by President Ford in Washington.

Krumm, 69-year-old wealthy sports enthusiast, made his money selling electronic equipment, cabinets and boats.

This is not the first time he has stepped out of the shadows into the limelight. When he was elected president of the U.S. Olympic Committee in 1973 few people outside the committee had ever heard of him.

But he achieved quick results. He made peace between quarreling factions in the U.S. Olympic movement, and brought in young blood to revitalize the committee.

Krumm lives on a 400-acre farm in Kenosha, Wis. He is a man who dislikes high-style living and the glare of publicity. He prefers to work in the background with carefully chosen aides.

Solution of the Taiwan problem in Montreal would only give the IOC breathing space. Sooner or later it must come to grips with the question of Mainland China, with its 800 million people and its aspirations to get into the Olympics.

Peking insists its athletes will never compete alongside those of Taiwan, the island stronghold which still claims sovereignty over the whole of China.

Taiwan's athletes cling to an Olympics berth under the protection of the Olympic charter. The IOC, disclaiming all political interests, refuses to disown a national Olympic committee that is in good standing, regardless of governments and regimes.

Krumm, admitting no great progress was made in his peace moves Monday, said: "We shall be going back to both sides today, and we will aim to get some measure of agreement in time for the full session of the IOC."

The 75-strong IOC started a four-day session today. It will be called upon to approve recommendations of the executive board, which it usually does as a formality.

Rams, Knox remain calm

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Chuck Knox agreed it was not the typical way to open a pro football camp. But the Los Angeles Rams' coach refused to cancel the workout despite the shooting deaths of seven persons a few yards from the practice field.

As Knox, his coaching staff and the 61 players who had reported to the National Football League team's camp were preparing for their first workout Monday morning at California State University-Fullerton, a security guard barged into the locker room and ordered them to "stay put."

The guard told Knox a "lunatic" gunman had just gone on a five-minute shooting spree in the school library and killed an unknown number of persons. He cautioned that the suspect was still loose and armed and that the Rams should not leave the locker room until the gunman had been apprehended.

Knox took the news calmly, waited a few minutes, then ordered the club onto the field.

Campus police then approached the Rams' coach and told him to clear the football field. Again Knox refused.

"We'd walked through the the area where the violence had occurred to get to the field and I didn't see any sense in walking back through it again," Knox said. "I felt we were much better off on the field doing what we're supposed to do."

He insisted the shootings, in which seven persons died and two others were critically injured, did not affect the club's practice session.

"We heard a lot of talk about it and saw a lot of people scurrying around," said a club spokesman, "but we didn't actually see or hear the shootings. It happened just a short distance from where we were, but as for our involvement in it, it could have happened at another school 20 miles away.

"Coach Knox made the right decision in sending the team out to practice. The players would have been more upset if he hadn't, talking about the violence and all."

Knox said the workout went smoothly.

"It was a real good session," he said. "The players were all very enthusiastic. If anyone was bothered by the violence, they didn't show it."

Less than an hour after the shootings, officers arrested 37-year-old library custodian Edward Charles Allaway on suspicion of murder.

Police later said the man, who was separated from his wife and experiencing emotional problems over the estrangement, had yelled at his intended victims that he was going to "get even" with them for messing around with his wife.

The Rams, meanwhile, finished their morning workout, ate lunch, and were back on the field by early afternoon for their second workout of the day.

No worries on lodging

MONTREAL (AP) — The Olympic lodging bureau has arranged housing for about 250,000 visitors to the Games that begin this weekend.

An additional 100,000 have booked rooms through travel agencies, hotels and motels.

Gilles Bergeron, director of Hebergement Quebec-Olypiques '76, said he has "no worries whatsoever that everyone will be lodged," including last-minute visitors to the Games who arrive in Montreal without reservations. There are expected to be some 30,000 in this category. Bergeron said HEQUO has rooms reserved for this purpose.

"We'll be able to lodge 200,000 to 210,000 a night, but we doubt we'll ever reach that peak," he said.

They have 12 inspectors to monitor the situation through the end of the Olympics, but Bergeron said they couldn't watch everyone.

Brad Kramer cut by NFL Seahawks

SEATTLE — Among the players cut by the new NFL Seattle Seahawks Monday was former Chaffey High and JC star Brad Kramer.

Kramer, a kicking specialist who played for Azusa Pacific College the last two years, had been signed by the Seahawks as a free agent.

At APC, the 6-1, 190-pounder averaged 60 yards on 42 kickoffs and 44 yards on 52 punts. He holds the school record with a 54-yard field goal.

Pitchers in a hurry

Fidrych, Jones open classic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers and Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres, two youngsters in a hurry, are the starting pitchers tonight in the 47th All-Star Game.

President Ford will join 61,000 fans at Veterans Stadium who will attend the game, which will be viewed by a national television audience.

Fidrych, the 'Gee Whiz Kid,' says he can't imagine pitching in the majors, let alone starting an All-Star Game.

"There really are no words to describe it," the 21-year-old Fidrych said as the two teams held brief workouts Monday. "My body is feeling it but it's hard to get the words across. I thought that maybe I would get in an inning, but starting ... Wow!"

American League Manager Darrell Johnson picked Detroit's Ron LeFlore as his leadoff hitter. Following the leftfielder will be Rod Carew, Minnesota, first base; George Brett, Kansas City, third base; Thurman Munson, New York, catcher; Fred Lynn, Boston, center field; Toby Harrah, Texas, shortstop; Rusty Staub, Detroit, right field, and Bobby Grich, Baltimore, second base.

In addition to Jones, National League Manager Sparky Anderson said he would have his own Pete Rose, Cincinnati, at third base and leading off, followed by Steve Garvey, Los Angeles, first base; Joe Morgan, Cincinnati, second base; George Foster, Cincinnati, center field; Gregg Luzinski; Philadelphia, left field; Johnny Bench, Cincinnati, catcher; Dave Kingman, New York, right field, and Dave Concepcion, Cincinnati, shortstop.

With Fidrych and the 26-year-old Jones, the All-Star Game has two young pitchers who dash madly from dugout to mound, and mound to dugout. They not only run fast, they pitch well.

Jones, a sinker-ball specialist, has won 16 games at the All-Star break, a National League record. His fast ball takes a long time to get to the plate, but he pitches fast games because he runs to and from the mound and seldom issues a walk. Jones won 20 last year and pitched 12-3 innings to gain a save in last year's All-Star game.

"I'm not at all embarrassed when people comment about how slow I throw," he said Monday as he posed with Fidrych for traditional pictures. "If I do my job well, it will frustrate a hitter. On Astroturf, I have to be more careful. My success is all a matter of where I place the pitches."

Fidrych is more colorful and the media favorite. He not only races to his position and back, he talks to the ball, smooths the dirt on the mound from his knees, shakes hands with infielders who make good plays and, because of his nervous energy, is a cheerleader type.

He lost 1-0 Friday night. His only other loss in a 9-2 season was 2-0. He has completed every game but one.

Asked if his friends consider him kooky, he told newsmen: "No, they're like me, too."

It has been 24 years since the All-Star game was played in Philadelphia. In the 1952 game, the losing pitcher was Bob Lemon, who along with Robin Roberts will be honored tonight as honorary captains and as new members of the Hall of Fame.

Sharman agrees to pact as 'executive'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — And the plot thickens.

Los Angeles Lakers owner Jack Kent Cooke apparently wants to keep the future of coach Bill Sharman a mystery.

Sharman's five-year contract with the club was due to expire at midnight Monday, but 15 minutes before that deadline a club spokesman said the coach and Cooke had "agreed in principle to a multi-year contract employing Sharman as an executive in the Laker organization."

The spokesman added that the announcement "does not rule out the possibility that in this executive capacity Sharman will also coach the Lakers next season."

Sharman said following the announcement that he is "extremely pleased to have the opportunity to continue working for the Los Angeles Lakers and Jack Kent Cooke."

"I'd always hoped," Sharman said, "that as long as I was involved in professional basketball that it would be with the Lakers. Therefore, I'm happy that my future is now tied so tightly with the Laker family."

There had been speculation that Sharman would not be retained as coach after the Lakers' disappointing season last year. He has been seen regularly, however, at the club's summer camp at Loyola University.

Baseball owners, players agree

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It seems only appropriate that after 13 months of haggling, peace should come to baseball in the City of Brotherly Love.

But, like any truce, the agreement reached Monday between the Major League Players Association and the Player Relations Committee had its price. Both sides gave ground to reach the settlement.

Although neither management nor the union would reveal any terms of the pact, these key elements of the four-year agreement were learned:

—A player will have the right to demand a trade after having played in the majors for six years. He will have a veto right over six clubs. If he is not traded, he will become a free agent.

—Players who become free agents, including those now governed by the Andy Messersmith decision, will be able to negotiate with a maximum of 12 teams, starting with the inverse order of the previous season standings.

Each club will be limited in the number of free agents it can sign, being permitted one if the free-agent pool totals one to 14. However, a club will be able to sign as many free agents as it might lose.

—The only compensation for a lost player will be draft choices. If one of the 12 lowest teams signs a player, it would lose its second choice in the next draft of college and high school players to the player's former team. If one of the top 12 teams signs a player, it would forfeit its No. 1 draft choice.

—A player will be able to demand a trade after having played in the majors for five years. He will have a veto right over six clubs.

—Players can take their salary differences to arbitration as they did before the 1974 season. However, if a player is eligible to become a free agent, his salary dispute can go to arbitration only by mutual consent of the player and the club.

The players also had to agree to stay five years with their new teams once they exercised their free agent option.

The new contract also called for a 29 per cent increase in pension plan contributions by management.

But the pact did not solve baseball's "one-and-one" dilemma created when pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally won free agent status last winter under an arbitrator's decision after completing the 1975 season without signing contracts.

The 40 or so unsigned major league players still are considered to be "playing out their options," and unless they sign by October they will be free agents when the season ends. Other players who signed single or multi-year contracts may still exercise their options at the conclusion of those pacts, should they choose to move elsewhere.

The difference now, however, is that with an agreement, management has something of a deadline hanging over the players. Once they exercise or pass up that single option chance, the players will be tied to their teams for various lengths of time.

But, of course, that six-year point could be reached quickly for individual players, depending on when they came to the majors. So baseball still faces a situation which could find many players moving around freely every year.

That element and the continued 1-1 factor apparently has left some owners less than thrilled with the agreement which has the unanimous support of the Player Relations Committee and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The owners will meet Wednesday morning to consider the pact. The committee will recommend approval and the commissioner said he would support that recommendation.

"This is a constructive development for baseball," Kuhn said.

Approval of the pact would require 13 affirmative votes, a simple majority, from the 24 owners. There must be at least five positive votes from each league to pass the agreement.

The player representatives were almost unanimous in approving the agreement presented to them by Marvin Miller, executive director of the union. There was just one abstention in the 23 votes cast. Asked if this meant the labor dispute that delayed the start of spring training some 17 days was over, Miller smiled.

"I believe so," he said.

SWIM CHAMP AT OLYMPICS — U.S. champion Shirley Babashoff passes armed guard after clearing customs at the Olympic Village in Montreal Monday. Games begin Saturday.

'Being realistic'

Stones sees few medals

MONTREAL (AP) — Loquatious Dwight Stones says the United States men's track and field team will win only five individual events at the Summer Olympics and the world record holder in the high jump backs up his prediction with an event-by-event analysis.

"I just don't think it's as strong a team as a lot of people think," he said. "I'm not being anti-American; I'm being realistic."

Even before he was settled into the Olympic Village, the 22-year-old who won the bronze medal in the 1972 Games at Munich set forth his track and field selections, which show he's a dedicated student of events other than his own.

In the 100, for example, he says Soviet Union ace Valeriy Borzov will successfully defend the title he won at Munich in 1972. "He's a machine, said Stones. He has a PhD in running. He has approached it like a scientist.

"Don Quarrie of Jamaica, the second fastest man in the history of the 200-meter dash, will win that event," says Stones, "because there's nobody around with his speed. In fact, he could double. He could beat Borzov in the 100, too.

"The 400 will go to Cuba's tall, strong Alberto Juantorena because he's simply an animal," said Stones. "He's amazing."

In spite of the fact that U. S. team captain Rick Wohlhuter of Chicago is one of the favorites in the men's 800, Stones chooses Kenya's Mike Boit to win the two-lap race. "Rick doesn't seem to have his old gallop in the 800, and he doesn't have the consistency for the 1,500," he said.

The 1,500 was to have been a classic matchup between Filbert Bayi of Tanzania and John Walker of New Zealand, but the race was submarined when Tanzania refused to compete in the Games because of a political dispute with New Zealand. Stones' pick in the 1,500 had been Bayi, "but now I guess it'll be Walker."

He chooses Rod Dixon of New Zealand to win the 5,000 "because he's so tough," and Brendan Foster of Great Britain to take the 10,000 because he's finally free of injuries, but he warns, "Watch out for Lasse Viren. He won both races in '72 and he could win both of them again."

In the steeplechase, Stones takes Bronislaw Malinowski of Poland because he feels Anders Garderud of Sweden "is a head case—always having psyche problems." Garderud is the world record holder.

In the 110-meter hurdles, Stones feels the winner will be France's Guy Drut because nobody in the world has his form. And he's still going with world record holder and defending champion John Akii-Bua of Uganda in the intermediate hurdles.

"But I'm not too sure about that," Stones said, "because Akii has been hurt. If he can't run up to his best, then I'd pick (Edwin) Moses." The latter won the U. S. trials in 48.30, an American record. Akii-Bua's world mark is 47.82.

Stones picks himself to win the high jump, the event in which he finished third for a bronze medal in 1972. "Everybody else is picking me, so why shouldn't I?"

His field event picks include Nenad Stekic of Yugoslavia in the long jump, Viktor Saneyev of the Soviet Union in the triple jump, Mac Wilkins in the discus and his U. E. teammate George Woods to take the shot put.

"Stekic has jumped 27¾," said Stones, "and nobody else can go that far. Saneyev has won the last two triple jump golds in a row and he may be the world's greatest triple jumper ever.

"I wouldn't have picked Wilkins a few months ago, but he has just dominated the event and he hasn't taken a dive. And Woods, well, I don't think he wants a trio of silver medals." Woods was second in the event in 1968 and 1972.

He also says Karl-Heinz Riehm of West Germany will win the hammer throw and Seppo Hovinen of Finland will take the javelin, because both have superb form in their events.

And he takes 1972 champion Nikolay Avilov of the Soviet Union to win the decathlon again, and American Frank Shorter to win the marathon as he did in 1972.

Stones also feels the United States will win both the 400 and 1,600 relay races for a total of seven gold medals in men's track and field, one more than Americans won four years ago.

All-Stars

Jackson breaks record

MONTREAL (AP) — Madelene Manning Jackson set an American record Monday night as she and a group of her United States track and field teammates braved cold winds in tuning up for the Olympics on a practice track near the main Olympic Stadium.

In the impromptu, informal track meet, the 28-year-old Mrs. Jackson started out by running the rarely contested 1,000-meter run in 2:37.3 to better the existing record by about three seconds. Later she ran second to Beth Nail of Australia in a 400-meter race in 53.1. Miss Nail ran 52.6.

Hasley Crawford of Trinidad, Deli Udo of Nigeria and three Kenyans, John Ngeno, Andre Rono and Mike Boit, all had outstanding performances on the fast, artificial surface.

Crawford, who was injured in a semifinal race of the 100-meter race four years ago at Munich, flashed home the winner in the 100 Monday night in 10.0 seconds. He ran into a slight wind.

Udo, a freshman at Missouri, captured the 400 in a fast 46.0 despite winds along the backstretch. In another heat, 800-meter specialist James Robinson of California was clocked in 46.5.

Ngeno won the 3,000-meter race in 7:52.3, beating Tony Colon of Puerto Rico, who was timed in 7:53.5.

Rono captured the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:30.0 as American Doug Brown ran only 8:51.9.

Boit, one of the favorites to win the 800-meter run in the Olympics which start Saturday, won the 1,000 in 2:19.3, a time far off the world mark of 2:13.9 set by Rick Wohlhuter of the United States.

NEWARK, N.Y. (AP) — A minor league baseball player in the Milwaukee Brewers' organization was shot to death early today in this western New York city.

Police found the body of Daniel Monzon, 18, rookie third baseman for the Newark Co-Pilots of the Class A New York-Penn League, when they responded to a call that a fight was in progress.

Chief Vincent Krebbeks, who said no motive had been established, said a man was being questioned. No charges have been filed, he said.

Monzon, a 6-foot, 175-pounder, lived in Carolina, Puerto Rico.

He was signed to a Milwaukee contract by Felix Delgado, the Brewers' scout in Puerto Rico.

Monzon reported to the Co-Pilots June 12. In his last game against the Elmira Pioneers Saturday night he drove in five runs on five hits, including a bases-loaded double.

The Co-Pilots were rained out Sunday and Monday nights.

In Newark, Monzon lived with several teammates near the shooting scene.

DALLAS, (AP) — Bobbie Thomas, a 25-year-old third year professional from Fort Worth, Tex., nabbed the second round lead Monday night in the Metroplex Professional Women Bowlers Association Open.

Miss Thomas, whose best finish is sixth on the PWBA tour, averaged 200 for 12 games to take a slim four-pin lead over Audrey Coburn of Chesterton, Ind., into Tuesday's third block of qualifying. Miss Thomas sports a 2,410 total and Miss Coburn a 2,406.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have signed pitcher Steve Powers, the most valuable player in the College World Series earlier this summer.

He is due to report Wednesday to the Pirates' Salem, Va., farm club in the Class A Carolina League.

The 22-year-old Powers, a 6-foot-2, 200-pound right-hander from Tucson, Ariz., was the Pirates' top choice in the secondary phase of the free-agent draft in June.

He later led the University of Arizona to victory in the College World Series, gaining a pitching victory over defending champion Arizona State.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— Veteran Grand National driver David Sisco says he'll boycott the Nashville Speedway, except for Grand National races.

Sisco, of Nashville, was angered Saturday night during a Late Model Sportsman race when his car failed to pass a routine inspection for being three-quarters of an inch to near the ground.

Sisco complained that he was singled out for harassment and that the car had been checked two weeks earlier and approved.

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — An eight-member tennis team for competition with the Japanese Collegiate All-Stars in Tokyo, Japan, Sept. 20-23 has been named by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Heading the team are Bruce Manson, University of Southern California, and Tim Garcia, University of New Mexico, the semifinalists in the 1976 Collegiate Tennis Championships, and Barbara Hallquist, University of Southern California, who won the 1976 USTA Women's National Intercollegiate championship.

To join the trio will be Steve Weddereburn, Oklahoma City University; Bill Mize, Stanford University; Francisco Gonzales, Ohio State University; Chris Lewis, USC, and Sandy Stap, Trinity University. Matt Mitchell, Stanford University, is first alternate for the team.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Darryl Dawkins, the Philadelphia 76ers' first draft choice in the 1975 player draft, will be out of action for several weeks because of a foot injury, the 76ers said Monday.

Dawkins suffered a stress facture of the left foot in an exhibition game against the U.S. Olympic team last Thursday. His foot was placed in a cast Monday.

Dawkins, a 19-year-old who was drafted after his senior year of high school in Orlando, Fla., was the starting center on the 76ers affiliate in the Baker League.

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Bowling great Enrico (Hank) Marino, 86, died Monday at Doctor's Hospital after a yearlong illness.

Marino, a native of Sicily, was voted Bowler of the First Half Century in a 1951 Associated Press poll of the Bowling Writers Association of America. He was one of the sport's most decorated champions.

He came to the United States at the age of 11 and settled with a brother in Chicago. By 1915, he was called the "Italian Wonder" in Chicago bowling circles.

JoAnne Carner feels like a pro

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "The first might have been luck. But when you win a second, you feel like a pro."

Such was JoAnne Carner's reaction after beating tiny but tough Sandra Palmer by two strokes Monday in their 18-hole playoff for the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

It was Mrs. Carner's second Open title. She won in 1971, at Kahkwa Club in Erie, Pa. She became the fourth player in the history of the Open to win two or more times.

Mrs. Carner's victory wasn't exactly artistic. She blew a four-stroke lead with five holes to play, and came back to win with the help of an eight-foot birdie putt and a bogey by Miss Palmer on the 17th hole.

Her five-over-par 76 wasn't exactly the kind of score you expect from one of the game's great hitters in a clutch match. Fortunately for Mrs. Carner, however, Miss Palmer shot 78.

But artistic or not, it was good enough to win $9,000 for the 37-year-old Mrs. Carner, and more important the prestige of being Open champion. The Open is the women's most prestigious bauble.

The 35-year-old Miss Palmer, who tied Mrs. Carner in the regulation 72-hole tournament when she rolled in a five-foot putt on the 18th green in Sunday's final round, took her defeat in stride.

"I had my chance and I turned around and gave it back to her," said the 5-foot-1 Miss Palmer, smallest player on the pro tour. "JoAnne is tough. That's why we call her 'Big Mama.'"

The two veteran women golfers each totaled eight-over-par 292s in the four-day tournament, which started with 150 in the field and was cut to 50 for the final two rounds.

Mrs. Carner even in the flush of her triumph knew that neither of the two playoff opponents had played exceptional golf.

"If we hadn't been so tired, you would have seen a lot more birdies," she said almost apologetically. "It became nerve-racking out there. Some trouble shots were impossible."

The 5-6 Mrs. Carner, a giant compared to little Miss Palmer, added, "I'd like to see them get the men's Open here."

Here, was the Rolling Green Golf Club, a tight 6,066-yard layout that belied its difficulty. The best golfers on the distaff circuit and their amateur counterparts found the tree-line fairways, the deep traps, elevated greens that were as slick as super highways, and narrow approaches to the pins almost too much to beat. There were only eight par or better rounds in the tournament.

Mrs. Carner said the difference Monday in her match against Miss Palmer was the tough rough.

"Sandra had a lot of trouble getting out of the rough," Mrs. Carner commented. "She was not quick enough. It was definitely an advantage for me."

Mrs. Carner was so right. She had the strength in those powerful arms to loft the ball out of the thick stuff.

"I worked all week on getting out of the rough," confided Mrs. Carner, the longest hitter among women players.

Mrs. Carner, a five-time U.S. Amateur champion before she joined the pros, also exuded confidence throughout the playoff. She rarely changed expression, even after she lost a four-stroke lead in just three holes.

"I never felt down," she said. "I never felt that I was going to lose."

But there were a few who thought she would, after she took a double bogey, bogey, bogey on 14 through 16, and whisked from four ahead to one behind. Miss Palmer birdied the 15th to complete a swing of five strokes.

On the par-5, 438-yard 17th hole, however, Mrs. Carner struck back. She chipped on the green eight feet from the cup and holed it. Miss Palmer had problems in the rough and bogeyed. That did it.

Mrs. Carner shot one-overpar 37 going out, and held a two-stroke lead after nine holes. She started with a 25-foot birdie putt on the first and led until the 16th. Miss Palmer bogeyed 11, 12 and 13 to fall behind by four.

Miss Palmer summed the playoff perfectly:

"I didn't putt well," she said. "I three-putted three greens. She (Mrs. Carner) putted well. I felt that I made it easy for her. She hits it so far, and every time she was in the rough recovered to put the ball on the green. JoAnne always has the advantage on par five. And she did not three-putt."

Just one question had to be asked before the 1976 Women's Open became history. Did Mrs. Carner really intend to try to qualify for the Men's Open, as she hinted before the tournament started?

"I have enough trouble with the women's tour," she said wearily. "I haven't given it (the Men's Open) any more thought."

Her husband, Don, who travels the tour with his wife in a plush trailer, made it even clearer. "She will not try for the Men's Open," he said firmly. Mrs. Carner may be the Open champion, but there was no doubt about who wears the pants in that family.

It's back to court for players in NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Assocation players' union has returned to court, contending the spirit of the Oscar Robertson antitrust suit settlement is being violated, the New York Times reported in its Tuesday editions.

The proposed merger of the NBA with four teams from the American Basketball Association cannot become a reality until the settlement of the suit is made final.

According to the Times, the NBA Players Association charged the terms, conditions and money offered the players selected in last month's college drafts were far below contracts offered in previous seasons when the NBA and ABA teams were bidding against each other.

Only one first-round draft choice—Ron Lee of the Phoenix Suns—has been signed since the league and the union agreed to a settlement of the Oscar Robertson suit. Three other firstround draft choice—John Lucas of the Houston Rockets, Richard Washington of the Kansas City Kings and Larry Wright of the Washington Bullets—signed before the agreement was announced.

Four first-round picks are on the U.S. Olympic basketball team and cannot be signed.

Larry Fleisher, general counsel of the Players' Association, said the union went to Federal Judge Robert L. Carter "to alert him to what we felt was a serious violation of the agreement.

"We felt it was imperative that he had this information because he was the protector of all the players in the suit we had instituted. It was our information that offers made to the rookies didn't comply with the letter or spirit of the Robertson settlement."

The Robertson class-action suit, instituted in 1970 on behalf of all the NBA players, contended that the common draft, the option clause and a compensation rule violated antitrust laws.

Lawyers for the NBA went before Judge Carter Monday to answer the charges. The judge asked both sides to settle their differences and report to him regularly.

Fleisher said the Portland Trail Blazers reportedly offered Wally Walker of the University of Virginia a seven-year contract with a one-year no-cut clause, meaning Walker could be cut from the squad after his first year.

A similar situation involves Armond Hill of Princeton, the first choice of the Atlanta Hawks.

A number of NBA owners said that unless an agreement is reached quickly, the dispersal of the Kentucky and St. Louis players would be held up and one owner said "the machinery of the merger would come to a complete halt."

Lakers' division will remain same

NEW YORK (AP) — The battle of champions will take place often in the 1976-77 National Basketball Association season.

In realigning the NBA's four divisions to incorporate the four expansion teams from the old American Basketball Association, the 1975 ABA champion New York Nets have been placed in the Atlantic Division with the Boston Celtics, 1975 NBA champions.

Also in the Atlantic Division are Buffalo, Philadelphia and the New York Knicks.

Adopted unanimously Monday by the NBA, the realignment added San Antonio to the Central Division, joining Atlanta, Cleveland, Houston, New Orleans and Washington.

Indiana and Denver will become part of the Midwest Division with Chicago, Kansas City, Milwaukee and Detroit.

The Pacific Divison will remain Golden State, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Portland and Seattle.

The Atlantic and Central Divisions make up the Eastern Conference, while the other two divisions comprise the Western Conference.

The league also announced an adjusted schedule for 1976-77. Each team will play 19 teams four times each and the other two teams three times each. Those final two teams will be chosen by lot.

Taiwan athletes feel like criminals

MONTREAL (AP) — "They make us feel like criminals," said pretty Chi Cheng. "It's as if we are in a court waiting for the judge to hand down the verdict."

"It's really demeaning," added C.K. Yang, once one of the world's great decathlon stars. "Why should they want us to change our name? What if the United States was told it would have to compete under another name?"

The statuesque Miss Cheng, once the world's premier woman sprinter and hurdler, and Yang, silver medalist in the 1960 Games in Rome, are two of the Taiwanese caught up in the political controversy of the XXI Olympics which has grabbed the attention of President Ford.

In a last minute decision, the Canadian government has ruled that the 43-member Taiwanese team cannot compete in the Games, starting here Saturday, unless they agree to change their name and not fly their national flag or sing their national anthem.

The Taiwanese, who have been accepted as members of the International Olympic Committee under the name of Republic of China, insist they won't do it. The IOC has capitulated—"unwillingly," says IOC President Lord Killanin—to Canada's demands.

Canada based its action on the fact that Canada maintains diplomatic relations with the People's Republic while refusing such relations with Taiwan.

"Why Canada, and why now?" said Yang, 42, former UCLA athlete who agreed to help with the 1976 Taiwanese team.

"If they didn't want us here, why did they have to wait until the last minute, after our team had spent months in preparations and had made the long trip across the Pacific?

"No, Canada invited us to compete. We have the invitation. Furthermore, we have been included in all advance literature and schedules of the Games."

Yang remains an imposing figure despite his clerkish, horn-rimmed spectacles. He stands better than six feet and weighs 210 pounds—28 more than in the 1960s when he set the world decathlon record and beat American star Rafer Johnson in seven of their 10 matchups.

Chi Cheng is 32, still svelte, looking as young as the time six years ago when she held records at 100 and 200 meters, 100 and 220 yards and 100-meter hurdles.

She is married to Vince Reel, her coach from Redlands, and is the mother of a nine-month-old child.

Chi and Yang sat in the Taiwanese headquarters at the Olympic Village, munching grapes and bananas, while talking of their deep frustrations and disappointments.

"There is the general assembly meeting of the IOC Tuesday," Chi said. "Chances are slim, but I still hold hope that justice and fair play will prevail."

The Taiwanese athletes are scattered in American cities, denied visas to enter Canada.

"The Chinese should get a refund for all the money they've spent," Yang insisted. "It's not that we are crying over money. Taiwan is not that poor. But no price can be put on our humiliation."

The decathlon star said he is grieved to see the inroads made in the Games by politics.

"When you compete, you don't ask the man next to you what his politics are. You ask, 'What event are you in? How fast do you run?' I competed against the Russians many times. We were good friends," he said.

With Chi and Yang in the Village are two other Taiwanese— Chia Shen, president of the country's Olympic Committee, and Lawrence Ting, the chef de mission.

"I feel very nervous," Chi said. "There are guards everywhere. They act as if they want us to hurry and go away."

Judy Rankin first past $100,000 mark

NEW YORK (AP) — She is not as glamorous as Laura Baugh or Jan Stephenson. Nor is she as controversial as Jane Blalock or Carol Mann. Judy Rankin simply is the best woman professional golfer in the world.

Mrs. Rankin became the first female golfer to pass the $100,000 mark in money winnings for one year on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour Sunday. Her total, after placing 17th in the U.S. Open, stands at $100,614. That may not be a very imposing figure for a player on the men's tour but it is a proud achievement for both Mrs. Rankin and the LPGA.

"I have thought it was coming for quite some time," says Mrs. Rankin, who is in her 14th season on the tour. "I didn't think it could be done in one-half a year. That's what pleases me most about it. I didn't win $100,000 just because there is so much more money on our tour. I won it because I have played very consistently all year."

She has been so consistent that in the last 11 years she's never finished out of the money in a tournament. This year, Mrs. Rankin has captured four titles, including the prestigious Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle championship.

"Maybe now that I have won $100,000, people will remember me as a golfer and not as someone who washes clothes," she laughs, recalling the television commercials she has made in conjunction with the Dinah Shore tournament.

What the government would like to know from consumers

What's the best way to make cars safe?

Should airlines have to explain their fare schedules?

How big a refund are you entitled to on a defective product?

These are some of the questions the government is trying to answer, and it wants help from consumers. Here are some proposed changes in government regulations and information on making your views known:

AIR BAGS

The Transportation Department has proposed extending until Aug. 31, 1977, requirements concerning air bags and seat belts. As of now, auto makers have three options. They can install a complete, passive protection system — such as an air bag — which automatically inflates to provide protection in all types of crashes. They can install a combination system with an air bag to protect the occupant in head-on crashes and lap seat belts for safety in other accidents. Or, they can simply provide lap seat belts.

Most manufacturers have chosen the third option. General Motors offered a passive restraint system as an option on some luxury cars in 1974, 1975 and 1976, but does not intend to offer it in the future.

Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. has scheduled an Aug. 3 public hearing in Washington and also wants written comments. He has said he will issue a written decision by next Jan. 1.

Among the questions Coleman is asking:

—Should the current standards be extended?

—Should air bags be required on all vehicles after a given date?

—Do you favor more federally-sponsored research on the costs and effectiveness of devices such as air bags?

—Would you support state laws requiring the use of safety belts?

The Aug. 3 hearing will be held at the Transportation Department auditorium, Constitution Avenue between 12th and 14th Sts., N.W., in Washington.

Written comments, due by Sept. 17, should be sent to the Secretary of Transportation, Washington, D.C., 20590. Mark the envelope FMVSS 208, indicating that your comments apply to Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 208.

WARRANTIES

The Federal Trade Commission has proposed letting companies offering a full warranty make a deduction if a defective product is used before it is returned.

Under the formula suggested, the amount of the refund would depend on how much use the customer got out of the product. To figure out the size of a refund, you would take the amount of use you got, divide it by the total useful life of the product and multiply it by the purchase price. The company issuing the warranty would have to explain, in the warranty itself, how the formula worked.

Aug. 3 is the deadline for comment. Write: Special Assistant Director for Rulemaking, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

AIR FARES

The Civil Aeronautics Board has proposed requiring air carriers to publish and distribute easy-to-understand summaries of available fares, including any restrictions on use. The proposal is the result of a petition by the Aviation Consumer Action Project, which claimed that the public now "has no practicable way to determine all the options available to it for discretionary travel, since the official fare tariffs are unintelligible to the average layman."

The deadline for comments is Aug. 6. Write: Docket Section, Civil Aeronautics Board, Washington, D.C. 20428.

USED CARS

The Federal Trade Commission has extended the deadline for comment on a plan requiring used-car dealers to provide more information, including known defects, about the vehicles they sell.

The commission has prepared a questionnaire for the use of consumers who have bought used cars and want to relate their experiences. To get a copy of the questionnaire, write to Used Cars, Room 288, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

The deadline for comments on the proposals is July 31. Write: Special Assistant Director for Rulemaking, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580.

$450 fee gives defense contractor links with military

WASHINGTON (AP) — For as little as $450 a year, a defense contractor can legally derive business benefits from belonging to private organizations with links to the armed services.

By paying a fee to become a sustaining member or an associate of one or more of these organizations, a company can put its representatives in a position to cultivate contacts in the services.

The contractor can also participate in special seminars arranged by the military-oriented organizations to acquaint defense business with service requirements for equipment. Generally, the armed services provide key officials to appear at such seminars.

An official of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) said in an interview that one of that organization's functions is to serve as a bridge between the Army and sections of defense industry interested in meeting the Army's materiel needs.

All the major organizations of this sort — The AUSA, The Air Force Association, (AFA), and the Navy League — deny that they serve to channel defense contracts to firms affiliated with them.

"We don't allow ourselves to get involved in specific contract matters," said a spokesman for the AFA.

The Defense Department takes a somewhat ambivalent position on relations with these organizations. Technically, they are private and legally unconnected with the Pentagon or the individual armed services, although many of their members are in regular uniform, in related reserve forces, or are drawing military retirement pay.

In a recent policy statement, assistant defense secretary William Greener spoke of "the important role of associations as a communication conduit between the Department of Defense and its industrial suppliers."

On the other hand, Greener has tried to enforce rules designed to insulate military officers and civilian officials from entertainment by defense contractors at conventions and other functions sponsored by the service-oriented organizations.

The AUSA, AFA, Navy League and Marine Corps League exist chiefly to promote the causes of the services to which they adhere.

They claim to get the bulk of their annual income from dues paid by individual members, from advertising in their magazines, and from insurance programs they provide for the membership. Most of the advertising, however, is sponsored by defense contractors.

These organizations work to develop grassroots support for the services through hundreds of local chapters, and they try to influence Congress through formal testimony and position papers. Most claim they do no direct lobbying on Capitol Hill.

The Air Force Association is the biggest of the four, with 152,000 members in 286 chapters. About 40 to 45 per cent of its membership is made up of active duty Air Force officers and enlisted men, with much of the remainder drawn from retired Air Force personnel, reservists and Air Guardsmen.

The Army Association claims 88,000 members in 120 chapters. About half of its membership is on active duty in the Army and it, too, gets many of its other members from the ranks of the retired, the reserve and the guard.

The Navy League, with 45,322 members in 325 councils, does not allow active duty Navy officers and enlisted personnel to join, but relies heavily on Navy alumni for its strength.

The smallest is the Marine Corps League with 15,000 members in 350 detachments. All are Marines or former Marines and reservists.

Library official U.S. depository

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The University of Iowa's main library has been designated since 1894 as an official depository for all documents printed by the U.S. Government Printing Office.

The documents arrive at the rate of 500 to 600 a day and the collection is expected to grow by 150,000 documents this year, it says. Another 100 documents arrive daily from state and foreign sources.

Reopened checkpoint

Illegal aliens caught

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Border Patrolmen are having a field day rounding up illegal aliens at the reopened highway checkpoint, 40 miles north of San Diego.

Since the checkpoint was reopened Saturday on Interstate 5, Border Patrol spokesmen say they have caught 424 illegal aliens, mostly from nearby Mexico. Many of them were children, the spokesmen said.

Border Patrol agent John Wesson said the checkpoint is still catching alien smugglers by surprise, despite the fact that its reopening was announced publicly last week. In fact, some surprised alien smugglers are abandoning their cars on the freeway, he said.

"We will sometimes find cars that have been abandoned just south of the checkpoint," Wesson said. "The lights are on, the motor is still running and the doors are open. They take off into the hills east of us or to the beaches."

Sixteen illegal aliens were found in the hills Saturday after Border Patrol agents discovered one such abandoned car, he said.

The checkpoint had been closed since March 1975, when the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the blanket warrants being used to keep it open were unconstitutional.

But the U.S. Supreme Court overturned that ruling last week.

State's death penalty law to be overturned?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — There appears to be a good chance that California's death penalty law will be overturned by the state Supreme Court later this year.

The state court, which in 1972 found California's death penalty unconstitutional, now will be looking at the state's new death penalty law in light of recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings.

And in those rulings is language which appears to aid the challenge to California's death penalty in the first capital punishment case to reach the state court under the 1974 law.

State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has said he believes the U.S. Supreme Court rulings won't strike down the California law. But a number of legal experts think otherwise.

J. Anthony Kline, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s legal adviser, said in an interview last week:

"I've talked to some district attorneys and public defenders I respect and the consensus is that there is real doubt the California statute will survive."

The deciding vote will be cast by the state Supreme Court, which will hear oral arguments later this year in the murder trial of Donald Bernard, convicted of slaying two teenagers. He is one of 58 persons on Death Row.

Whatever the state court's ruling, experts agree legal battling probably will drag on for years before anyone is executed in the San Quentin gas chamber, where the last execution took place in 1967.

If the court does strike down the current law, supporters like Sen. H.L. Richardson promise another drive to put a new death penalty on the books in California to conform with the new federal rulings.

Brown, a longtime foe of the death penalty, has refused to say what he'd do if the legislature put such a law on his desk.

Since 1974, California has had a new death penalty law making capital punishment mandatory for 11 specific crimes, including murder of an on-duty policeman. The legislature passed the law after voter approval of a ballot initiative.

In its recent rulings, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down death penalty laws in three states that had some form of mandatory capital punishment — North Carolina, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

The death penalties in three other states — Georgia, Texas and Florida — were upheld on the grounds they gave juries enough discretion to consider circumstances of a particular case.

So the issue in California becomes how much leeway the state law gives to judges and juries considering death penalty cases.

"All the statutes upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court permit you to consider the character of the person before you, at least in some vague way. The California law doesn't do that," said Paul Halvonik, the state's acting public defender.

On the issue of discretion, those who believe the state Supreme Court probably will overturn the California law point to the U.S. Supreme Court's language in rejecting North Carolina's mandatory death penalty law:

"A process that accords no significance to relevant facets of the character and record of the individual offender or the circumstances of the particular offense excludes from consideration in the fixing of the ultimate punishment of death the possibility of compassionate or mitigating factors stemming from the diverse frailties of human kind.

"It treats all persons convicted of a designated offense not as uniquely individual human beings but as members of a faceless, undifferentiated mass to be subjected to the blind infliction of the penalty of death."

William Sheffield, the defense attorney in the Bernard case now before the state Supreme Court, said the recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings stated mitigating circumstances had to be considered.

"Most people in California have read earlier press reports and concluded the death penalty here was upheld as constitutional (by the U.S. Supreme Court rulings.) Exactly the opposite is true," said Sheffield.

William James, an assistant state attorney general, had a different reading of the situation. He said the California law does have enough discretion to comply with the recent rulings.

He noted that California's law, like the one in Texas that was upheld, has a two-phase death penalty trial.

But the two laws differ. In Texas, the second phase of the trial, which determines the sentence, looks into the convicted person's background and circumstances of the crime.

In California, a jury that found a defendant guilty of first-degree murder, for example, returns to decide whether the case fits a "special circumstance," such as murder for hire, making the death penalty mandatory.

Richardson, an Arcadia Republican who is a vehement death penalty advocate, said, "I think our law is discretionary in that it gives the judge and jury the capability to look at the criteria" in the law and see if they match the circumstances in a case.

MARIJUANA HAUL — Sheriff's deputies haul away 3,500 pounds of marijuana, part of six tons confiscated Sunday night on Santa Cruz island in the Santa Barbara Channel. Two men were taken into custody. The marijuana was allegedly bound for the Southern California market.

State warranty rules face study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is going to decide whether the state of California can enforce stricter warranty rules than required under federal law.

The FTC will hold hearings in September to determine whether "the California provisions offer greater protection to consumers than the (federal) Warranty Act, and do not unduly burden interstate commerce," the agency announced today.

At issue is a provision in the California statute requiring warrantors to give customers a list of their repair facilities, and several provisions covering warranties on mobile homes.

The FTC will hold public hearings in Los Angeles on Sept. 13 and in Washington on Sept. 20.

Indonesia election to be without criticism

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The Indonesian government is making preparations for the nation's third general election since declaring independence from the Dutch 31 years ago.

Under the rules none of the campaigners next May 2 will be allowed to criticize either government policies or personalities.

Government opponents and other critics maintain that the rules mean balloting will be nothing more than a ritual in which supporters of President Suharto, the army general who took over 10 years ago, will retain control of the parliament.

The Jakarta newspaper Kompas commented: "Every election has its ritual aspects. But a rite, like the general election, must have substance. And this substance is needed by the government itself, namely to strengthen its legitimacy which is not just formal but also moral."

Indonesia is largely run by the same group of generals and admirals who ended the dictatorship of the late President Sukarno 10 years ago.

Suharto formally became a civilian a few weeks ago at the military retirement age of 55 and most other powerful figures wear civilian clothes. Despite this and the upcoming election the country is fundamentally under military rule.

Indonesia's previous elections were in 1955 and 1971.

The last election was marred by allegations of intimidation of candidates and manipulation of some of the 10 competing parties. To assure itself a strong voice in parliament, the government reserved 100 of the 460 seats for its own appointees, three-quarters of them military officers.

Golkar, the acronym for Golongan Karya or "functional groups," had the army's blessing and won 227 seats. Golkar is a blend of civil servants, lawyers, teachers and intellectuals who support Suharto's policies.

The nine other parties were compressed into two even more manageable groups last year. Four Moslem parties merged into the United Development party and five Christian organizations formed the Indonesian Democratic Party — PDI.

Factional disputes prevent the PDI from presenting a common front, diplomats in Jakarta said.

With the exception of the Hindu-Buddhist island of Bali and a few other areas, Moslems are entrenched at all levels, particularly in villages where 30 per cent of the population of 135 million live.

The world's fifth most populous nation is more than 90 per cent Moslem but the constitution declares this a secular state.

Moslem leaders have raised charges of corruption and alleged abuses of power.

The army crushed an uprising by rebellious Moslems in the 1950s. Diplomats say the generals view Moslem militants as security risks and dislike the idea of a Moslem majority in parliament.

With policies and personalities above criticism those on the campaign trail are expected to have little opportunity to discuss the serious problems facing Indonesia.

Per capita income is about 49,200 ruplahs — $120 — a year and the United Nations lists Indonesia as one of the world's poorest places.

The gap between high-income consumers and the mass of poor is so wide that President Suharto last year urged those with wealth not to flaunt it.

"Transmigration" efforts to shift families elsewhere to relieve crowded Java can't keep up with the population explosion. The country as a whole has ample land, 15,577 islands of which about 6,000 are inhabited. But some 32 million live on Java which is about the size of North Carolina and has only 6.9 per cent of the land. This population pressure has made Jakarta one of the great urban slums.

Alleged corruption is probably the thorniest issue which won't be debated in a substantive way during the election campaign.

Corruption and mismanagement were blamed for the financial disaster last year at Pertamina, the state oil corporation. The government stepped in to underwrite about $103 billion in Pertamina debts to the detriment of its foreign exchange reserves. Suharto described it as a "bitter experience."

In his budget speech this year Suharto pleaded with his countrymen to pay their taxes, but added in a remark that was seen as a reference to the corruption of his own tax officials: "Another important measure to ensure state revenues from taxes is the orderly functioning of the tax apparatus itself."

Lt. Gen. Amir Machmud, interior minister and chairman of the General Election Institute, is in charge of making sure the voting comes off to the government's satisfaction.

Use wallcoverings to enhance rooms

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Thoughtful use of wallcoverings can make a dreary room bright, a long room look short and a dull room interesting.

And, for those with limited budgets, a change in wallcovering can achieve an impression of total decoration at a fraction of the cost.

Here are some tips for redecorating with wallcovering from Mrs. Bertha C. Nickel, housing interiors specialist at Oklahoma State University here:

—A boldly patterned wallcovering with large flowers, graphics or the look of tapestry can make a sparsely furnished room appear more cozy.

—High ceilings can be lowered with dark colors, or dramatic designs on the walls, and low ceilings can be raised with vertical stripe .

—Ugly pipes and ducts can be camouflaged by covering them with paint or wallcoverings to match the walls or ceiling.

—For a room without a view, add one in the form of a mural.

—In the kitchen matching vinyl wallcoverings on cabinets, ceiling, and window shades create a festive atmosphere.

—For a small, dull room, select a stunning wallcovering and use matching fabrics for curtains and slipcovers. But limit colors and quantity of furnishings because when a small room becomes too busy, it seems smaller.

Stretch home decorating dollars even further by learning to hang wallcoverings yourself.

"You'll find it easy and fun," Mrs. Nickel says.

MARIJUANA HAUL — Sheriff's deputies haul away 3,500 pounds of marijuana, part of six tons confiscated Sunday night on Santa Cruz island in the Santa Barbara Channel. Two men were taken into custody. The marijuana was allegedly bound for the Southern California market.

State warranty rules face study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is going to decide whether the state of California can enforce stricter warranty rules than required under federal law.

The FTC will hold hearings in September to determine whether "the California provisions offer greater protection to consumers than the (federal) Warranty Act, and do not unduly burden interstate commerce," the agency announced today.

At issue is a provision in the California statute requiring warrantors to give customers a list of their repair facilities, and several provisions covering warranties on mobile homes.

The FTC will hold public hearings in Los Angeles on Sept. 13 and in Washington on Sept. 20.

Talks linger

Militarily the American Revolution ended at Yorktown in 1782, but peace negotiations continued for another year.

Indonesia election to be without criticism

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The Indonesian government is making preparations for the nation's third general election since declaring independence from the Dutch 31 years ago.

Under the rules none of the campaigners next May 2 will be allowed to criticize either government policies or personalities.

Government opponents and other critics maintain that the rules mean balloting will be nothing more than a ritual in which supporters of President Suharto, the army general who took over 10 years ago, will retain control of the parliament.

The Jakarta newspaper Kompas commented: "Every election has its ritual aspects. But a rite, like the general election, must have substance. And this substance is needed by the government itself, namely to strengthen its legitimacy which is not just formal but also moral."

Indonesia is largely run by the same group of generals and admirals who ended the dictatorship of the late President Sukarno 10 years ago.

Suharto formally became a civilian a few weeks ago at the military retirement age of 55 and most other powerful figures wear civilian clothes. Despite this and the upcoming election the country is fundamentally under military rule.

Indonesia's previous elections were in 1955 and 1971.

The last election was marred by allegations of intimidation of candidates and manipulation of some of the 10 competing parties. To assure itself a strong voice in parliament, the government reserved 100 of the 460 seats for its own appointees, three-quarters of them military officers.

Golkar, the acronym for Golongan Karya or "functional groups," had the army's blessing and won 227 seats. Golkar is a blend of civil servants, lawyers, teachers and intellectuals who support Suharto's policies.

The nine other parties were compressed into two even more manageable groups last year. Four Moslem parties merged into the United Development party and five Christian organizations formed the Indonesian Democratic Party — PDI.

Factional disputes prevent the PDI from presenting a common front, diplomats in Jakarta said.

With the exception of the Hindu-Buddhist island of Bali and a few other areas, Moslems are entrenched at all levels, particularly in villages where 30 per cent of the population of 135 million live.

The world's fifth most populous nation is more than 90 per cent Moslem but the constitution declares this a secular state.

Moslem leaders have raised charges of corruption and alleged abuses of power.

The army crushed an uprising by rebellious Moslems in the 1950s. Diplomats say the generals view Moslem militants as security risks and dislike the idea of a Moslem majority in parliament.

With policies and personalities above criticism those on the campaign trail are expected to have little opportunity to discuss the serious problems facing Indonesia.

Per capita income is about 49,200 ruplahs — $120 — a year and the United Nations lists Indonesia as one of the world's poorest places.

The gap between high-income consumers and the mass of poor is so wide that President Suharto last year urged those with wealth not to flaunt it.

"Transmigration" efforts to shift families elsewhere to relieve crowded Java can't keep up with the population explosion. The country as a whole has ample land, 15,577 islands of which about 6,000 are inhabited. But some 32 million live on Java which is about the size of North Carolina and has only 6.9 per cent of the land. This population pressure has made Jakarta one of the great urban slums.

Alleged corruption is probably the thorniest issue which won't be debated in a substantive way during the election campaign.

Corruption and mismanagement were blamed for the financial disaster last year at Pertamina, the state oil corporation. The government stepped in to underwrite about $103 billion in Pertamina debts to the detriment of its foreign exchange reserves. Suharto described it as a "bitter experience."

In his budget speech this year Suharto pleaded with his countrymen to pay their taxes, but added in a remark that was seen as a reference to the corruption of his own tax officials: "Another important measure to ensure state revenues from taxes is the orderly functioning of the tax apparatus itself."

Lt. Gen. Amir Machmud, interior minister and chairman of the General Election Institute, is in charge of making sure the voting comes off to the government's satisfaction.

Use wallcoverings to enhance rooms

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Thoughtful use of wallcoverings can make a dreary room bright, a long room look short and a dull room interesting.

And, for those with limited budgets, a change in wallcovering can achieve an impression of total decoration at a fraction of the cost.

Here are some tips for redecorating with wallcovering from Mrs. Bertha C. Nickel, housing interiors specialist at Oklahoma State University here:

—A boldly patterned wallcovering with large flowers, graphics or the look of tapestry can make a sparsely furnished room appear more cozy.

—High ceilings can be lowered with dark colors, or dramatic designs on the walls, and low ceilings can be raised with vertical stripe .

—Ugly pipes and ducts can be camouflaged by covering them with paint or wallcoverings to match the walls or ceiling.

—For a room without a view, add one in the form of a mural.

—In the kitchen matching vinyl wallcoverings on cabinets, ceiling, and window shades create a festive atmosphere.

—For a small, dull room, select a stunning wallcovering and use matching fabrics for curtains and slipcovers. But limit colors and quantity of furnishings because when a small room becomes too busy, it seems smaller.

Stretch home decorating dollars even further by learning to hang wallcoverings yourself.

"You'll find it easy and fun," Mrs. Nickel says.

The armadillo's name means "little armored one" in Spanish. And that's just what an armadillo is, a little mammal covered with tough, bony plates that look much like the armor once worn by knights.

The armadillo is an American animal. Some are found in South America, some in Mexico and Central America and some in the southern part of the United States.

The armadillo's hard shell is a good protection from most of its enemies. It is connected by movable bands that enable the armadillo to twist and bend.

When frightened, the three-banded armadillo of South America can roll itself into a hard ball, with its feet tucked in out of harm's way, something none of the other armadillos can do.

The armadillo usually makes its home in a deep burrow which it digs in the ground with its long front claws.

Ants are a favorite food and if a nest is discovered, the armadillo quickly licks them up with its long, sticky tongue.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

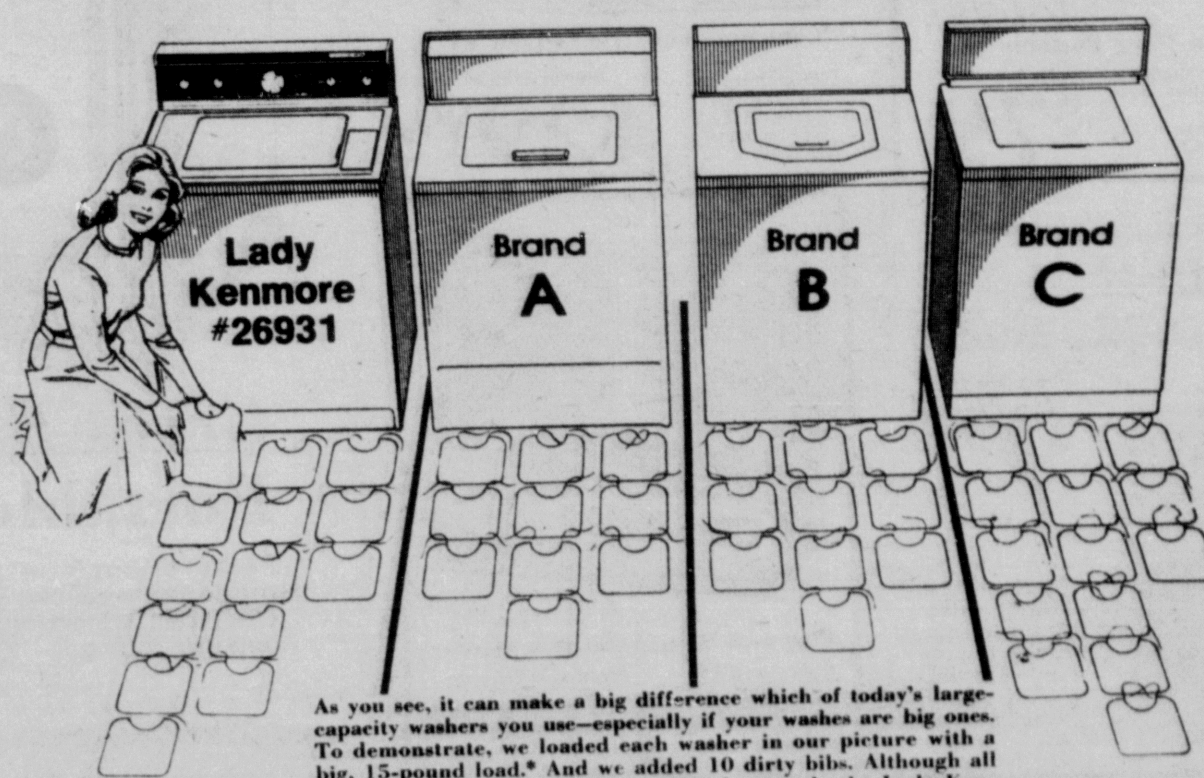
This Lady Kenmore® washer gets big loads cleaner than the next best-selling brands. And we mean cleaner.



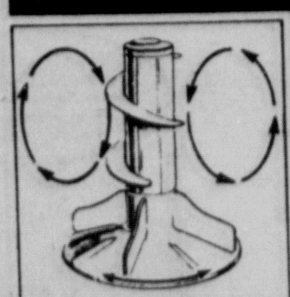
As you see, it can make a big difference which of today's large-capacity washers you use—especially if your washes are big ones. To demonstrate, we loaded each washer in our picture with a big, 15-pound load.* And we added 10 dirty bibs. Although all of the washers got some of the bibs clean, only the Lady Kenmore washer got them all clean. Why? Because only the Lady Kenmore washer has the Dual Action™ agitator!

This Ad Effective thru Sat., July 17

LIMITED TIME ONLY

$100 OFF

Regular Price of DUAL ACTION LADY KENMORE PAIR



Dual Action Agitator

. . . standard on Lady Kenmore washer. Available for large-capacity Kenmore washers from 1974.

How the Dual Action agitator works

This remarkable agitator has a top and bottom that move separately—the top pulls the clothes down into the wash, and the bottom whirls them side-to-side. Results? Testing proved that, compared to a conventional agitator, clothes get cleaner.

*Tests were conducted using a standard 15-pound A.H.A.M. load. Load contained: 3 sheets, 2 tablecloths, 4 shirts, 6 bath towels, 4 "T" shirts, 4 pillow cases, 6 shorts, 6 wash cloths, 5 handkerchiefs. Test results available on written request.

BRAND NAME OR GENERIC DRUGS?

Knowing the difference makes a difference to your budget....

Since a recent California law gives you the option of choosing a brand name drug or its "generic equivalent", some definitions and facts are in order to aid you in making an informed choice.

BRAND VS. GENERIC

When a company first formulates a drug, it identifies it with a chemical or generic name. Then the company gives the drug a name to be used for marketing purposes. This is a brand name.

GENERICS COST LESS

Because their marketing structure is lower, generic drugs cost substantially less. At Value Fair you can be sure that the quality of our generic name drugs is as high as that of the brand name drugs.

THE LAW LETS YOU CHOOSE

California is the fifth state in the nation to give pharmacists the authority to substitute generic for brand name drugs, unless the doctor specifies "no substitute". And at Value Fair, the pharmacist will gladly discuss your preference.

CONSULT YOUR DOCTOR AND US

Discuss the brand vs. generic question with your doctor. Any further questions? Stop by your nearby Value Fair and your pharmacist will be happy to give you any information you may want.

WHY... YOU SHOULD KNOW YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE!

1 High blood pressure (hypertension) is the major cause of death in the U.S. today through heart attack, stroke and kidney failure.

2 High blood pressure is difficult to detect because the disease often has no characteristic symptoms.

3 Statistics show high blood pressure can be a very real factor in reducing life expectancy. High blood pressure kills!

4 A single blood pressure reading may not tell the whole story. Blood pressure may vary from time to time, sometimes rising and sometimes falling.

5 Only your doctor can provide effective treatment for high blood pressure. Visit your doctor regularly, and seek his advice.

6 Many doctors now recommend hypertensive patients monitor their own blood pressure at home.
